Additional news on metropolitan airport decision on Pages 4-6-15-28-29-30-31 today

Funds for airport site are approved

HAPPY ADMINISTRATOR Arven Saunders, executive director of the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority, beams as U.S. Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. announces his approval of an application by the SMAAA to construct a major new St. Louis area airport at Columbia-Waterloo.

Regional cooperation urged

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Staff Writer
Columbia-Waterloo in Illinois received federal approval yesterday as the site for a new major St. Louis area airport.

U.S. Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. announced his decision yesterday in a St. Louis news conference at which he termed the decision to build a new airport South of here in Illinois "the toughest decision I have ever had to make in my life as a public official."

Coleman stressed the importance of bi-state cooperation in development of the new airport, and restricted opening of the airport until 1992, unless officials of both sides of the river work together in its planning.

"If a joint authority representing both Illinois and Missouri equally is developed, such operations could commence as early as 1987, or even sooner if the joint authority so desires," Coleman said.

Since airport planning and construction is expected to take about 10 to 12 years, work and detailed planning could begin immediately, if a joint bi-state airport authority can be created.

Many Missourians at the news conference expressed disappointment with the decision and indicated that a suit may be filed challenging Secretary Coleman's legal authority to approve the application for an Illinois airport.

Anticipating talk of such a suit, Coleman distributed a booklet explaining his position. It contained specific statutes and legal opinions he used in determining that he did have the authority to make such a decision.

He noted that Congress or the courts could overrule his decision, but said he believes appropriate actions have been followed in making the decision—and that it is well supported by fact. As a consequence, he feels that any legal challenge would be unsuccessful.

"It would have been easy for me to call for another study or just delay the decision, but I feel appointed federal officials should, whenever possible, decide controversial issues which they face rather than delay or temporize."

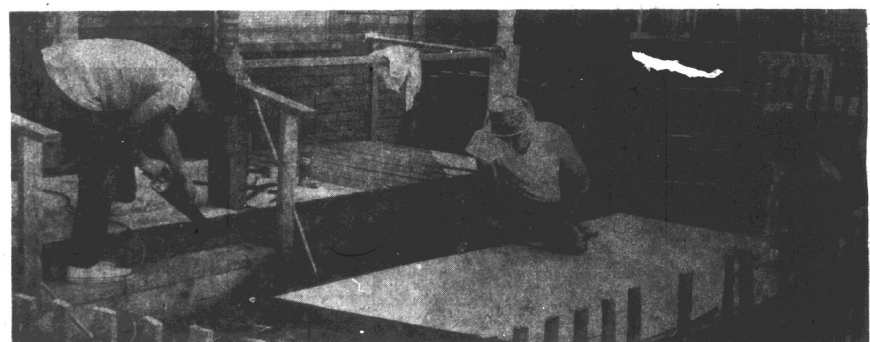

"I had high hopes this issue could be decided on the local level."

"But when it became apparent the two sides could not reach a decision, it became my responsibility to step in and

AIRPORT ANNOUNCEMENT yesterday in St. Louis by U.S. Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. as he officially approved Illinois' application to create an airport at Columbia-Waterloo. Coleman termed the choice of whether to approve or block an Illinois airport the hardest decision he has made in his career.

Intense sewer bid competition likely

VENICE RESIDENTIAL REHABILITATION. First major project of the South Venice Neighborhood Organization is the facelift of the home of Mrs. Clifffe Rebertson, 518 Third St., started during the weekend.

Shown resurfacing the front porch deck of the residence are, from left, Scott Worley, Frank Parker and Barney Hogan. The group also arranged to paint the window and door trim and caulk a weather-damaged flue.

Optimism that Area One sanitary sewer construction can proceed soon is being buoyed by the likelihood of widespread competition among contractors for participation in the project, Edward L. Juneau, engineer for the county-township sewer installation, said last night.

Juneau commented at the September board dinner of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, held at Sunset Hill Holiday Inn, that dozens of firms from Illinois, Missouri and other states are studying the bid specifications and planning to submit construction bids.

Such competition is viewed by some as improving the prospects of the low bid or bids being less than advance estimates.

A go-ahead has been given to the Chouteau, Nantouki and Venice Townships project by local, county, state and federal officials but a lawsuit has been filed by several property

Enrollment down

By DONNA HARTWICK
Press-Record Staff Writer
Student enrollment in public and parochial schools in the Quad-City area so far this fall totals 15,778, down 1,000 students from last year's tally of 16,859.

This week's figures may grow slightly, but a downturn was expected due to birthrate and population trends, Illinois officials have forecast an enrollment increase starting in the 1980s.

Total enrollment in Quad-City parochial schools, grades one through eight, is 888, a decrease of 77 pupils from the 1975-76 total of 965, school authorities said Wednesday.

Quad-City elementary grades in public schools have registered 7,828 pupils, including kindergarten through the eighth grade in Granite City, Madison and Venice schools and 104 pre-school students in Granite City.

Elementary pupils number 6,069 in Granite City, 1,106 in Madison and 333 in Venice. The 1975-76 enrollment was: Granite

Confidence in United drive

"We're working hard, which is the best policy in any fund drive, but confidence in the outcome is real and growing," Bill H. Terrell, Tri-Cities Area United Way campaign chairman, commented Tuesday after a meeting of the organization's executive committee.

The annual drive is scheduled to begin with a breakfast at 7:30 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 23, at the Granite City Army installation. Pre-campaign training sessions are being led by Terrell, Franklin Life Insurance Co. district manager. Training has been held in the Industrial Division, where active contacts are being made with potential contributors. The response so far in that division is described as encouraging. Sessions for training are scheduled for the Business Division Sept. 9, Commercial Divisions I and II Sept. 15 and Civic Division Sept. 16, all in the YMCA auditorium.

Other divisions gearing for the drive kickoff are Construction, Professional, Mail and Madison-Venice. The latter division is being coordinated by members of the Rotary Club of Madison-Venice.

Most assignments for campaign tasks have been made, except in the Professional Division, where eight attorneys, four physicians and a dentist have accepted group leader duties.

At Tuesday's United Way board executive committee meeting, chaired by President M. B. Milonski, David Fox reviewed a newly-completed study discussing potential service improvements.

The group conferred with Larry Miller, new AFL-CIO community services representative on the United Way staff, and authorized a $2,000 emergency allocation to the Catholic Charities on the recommendation of a UW budget committee report.

Regional headquarters being established here

By WALTER F. STRANGE
Press-Record Staff Writer
A 7,600-square-foot, pre-engineered steel office building is under construction at 16th Street and Cleveland Boulevard to house NL Industries' new central region offices.

The company has combined the Midwest and Southwest regions into the new 22-state central region.

NL has nine manufacturing plants within this region.

"I think the locating of the new regional office here in Granite City is indicative of the confidence in the community we have. We will continue to assist in the positive growth of the Quad-Cities," R. J. Sabatino, manager of the newly-created central region, commented.

Ed Moore Construction Co. is erecting the building. Work began in August and is scheduled to be completed by Sept. 30. Cost will total $59,500.

The new building will house sales and administrative offices.

The local NL plant presently employs 171 people. When the headquarters consolidation is completed, the number here will be increased to 216 employees.

The largest portion of sales of the Metals Group of NL involves the Metal Division, of which the Hoyt plant is a part.

Major products are secondary (recycled) lead, sold in metallic and oxide forms, and a variety of fabricated lead products.

Chief customer for NL's lead is the electric storage battery industry.

The company's 1975 annual report showed Metals Group sales of $58,900. At the end of 1975, the report showed 23,300 persons employed worldwide. John Behrman is manager of the Hoyt plant.

NEW CENTRAL REGION OFFICE for NL Industries is being built at 16th Street and Cleveland Boulevard. Looking at blueprints of the office building are, left to right: R. J. Sabatino, manager of the newly-created 22-state central region; John Behrman, manager of the local NL Hoyt plant; and Henry D. Karandjoff, local banker who worked at the plant here in 1968.

Lead poison test teams in area today, Saturday

Lead poisoning prevention teams are at work at several locations in the Quad-Cities today and will be active again on Saturday.

Tests for lead poisoning, a serious health hazard to children between the ages of 1 year and 6 years, also are being given until 3 p.m. today at the Tri-Cities Area YMCA, 20th Street and Edison Avenue, and until 5 p.m. today at the Madison EOC Neighborhood Service Center, Second Street and Madison Avenue.

The service will be repeated from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday at the YMCA location only.

Personnel also are operating a mobile unit, provided by the Illinois Association for Retarded Citizens, at various locations in this area, testing children who have been assembled in groups.

The fully equipped van will be available Saturday to conduct tests in areas where a high concentration of children to be tested reside.

To arrange for the van to visit a specific area on Saturday, persons knowing groups of children from 1 to 6 years, who can be tested at one location, are being asked to call 797-0596 with the information.

The testing program is being sponsored here by the Tri-Cities Area Association for Retarded Citizens, Inc., and Madison County Association for Retarded Citizens.

If your small child comes in contact with chipped paint, especially if you live in housing built before 1950, or newspapers, magazines, dirt, old painted toys or poor quality air, it is wise to take advantage of the free testing while it is available, a spokesman for the county association said.

The symptoms of lead poisoning are not dramatic and often are mistaken for more common ailments among young children. They include headaches, drowsiness, irritability and loss of appetite. However, the effects of lead poisoning are devastating, often causing brain damage and even death, the spokesman stressed. The test given to determine whether lead poisoning is present is a simple blood sampling procedure and the results are carefully tabulated, it was explained. Where there is an indication of lead poison, a complete follow-up procedure goes into action so treatment can begin immediately.

Discovered in time, lead poisoning can be successfully treated, but first the tests must be made, parents are reminded. Questions concerning the test will be answered and arrangements can be made for transportation to a test site, if necessary, by calling Mrs. Helen DeFuntz, at 797-0596 or the Alton office of the county association at 1-259-0072.

Steel use in oil country will be discussed here

Speaker for the first program of the Granite City Steel Management Club year will be a Granite City Steel customer—Donald P. Beattie, president of both the National Pipe and Tube Co. (Houston) and Bull Moose Tube Co. (Gerald, Mo.).

Both companies are subsidiaries of National Steel Corp., of which Granite City Steel is a division.

National Pipe and Tube recently went into production of oil country tubular goods at the new plant near Houston. Steel from here is the main raw material used in that plant.

The Management Club dinner meeting is set for Sept. 23 at the Collinsville Holiday Inn.

In addition to being the first of the club year, the meeting is the first for the new club officers: President Phil Heath, 2320 St. Bernard Ave.; Vice President Jack Mitchell, 2583 Boyle Ave.; Secretary Henry Gray of Collinsville; and Treasurer Bill Harris of St. Louis County. Co-program chairman for the 1976-77 year are Bob Riordan and Dave Yates, both of St. Louis County.

Monthly meetings are normally held on the third Thursday of each month.

Thorough procedure followed in reaching airport decision

Exhaustive steps were taken by U. S. Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. to assure a fair and balanced study and decision regarding the proposed new Columbia-Waterloo, Ill., airport, he said Wednesday.

He announced his approval of the airport plan along with a number of conditions intended to avoid harm to Missouri, site of Lambert Airport.

"The basic issue before me is whether to approve an application submitted by the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority, an authority created by the Illinois legislature, for a grant of federal funds for land acquisition of an airport site in the area of Columbia-Waterloo," Coleman said.

"The grant would be made pursuant to the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970, as amended, most recently by the Airport and Airway Development Act Amendments of 1976."

"A commitment of federal funds for site acquisition would be the first in an expected series of steps toward the development of a new major air carrier airport at this location to serve the St. Louis metropolitan area."

"The seriousness of this decision is increased by the recognition that, if built, the new airport will ultimately replace Lambert-St. Louis International Airport as the major air carrier airport for the St. Louis metropolitan area."

"There is considerable local opposition to approval of this grant, particularly from Missouri representatives."

"Missourians, of course, comprise 80 per cent of the population of the St. Louis area."

"Arguments have been made that the existing Lambert-St. Louis International Airport, located in St. Louis County, Mo., can be modernized to serve air carrier airport needs of the foreseeable future, or that another site in Missouri would be preferable to Columbia-Waterloo.

"It has been my hope that agreement would be reached in the St. Louis metropolitan area on a new or upgraded airport. However, such agreement has not occurred and, consequently, I have decided I must now act on the application before me."

"The eventual need for a significant increase in commercial airport capacity to serve the St. Louis metropolitan area has been under discussion for many years."

"A number of studies in the late 1960s concluded that during the 1980s the present capacity of Lambert Airport would be inadequate to handle the airline traffic for the St. Louis area without intolerable delays, and that a new air carrier airport would be necessary."

"In 1968, the Federal Aviation Administration officially recognized the requirement for a new airport by including it in the National Airport System Plan (NASP)."

"In 1970, the Illinois legislature created the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority (SMAAA) to undertake needed airport development. Later that year, the SMAAA announced that the Columbia-Waterloo site in Illinois was the preferred location for the new airport."

"At that time, the City of St. Louis, Mo., supported this site. In January 1972, the State of Illinois applied for federal funds to begin land acquisition near Columbia-Waterloo. This application included an environmental assessment for the proposed site."

"A draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) was subsequently circulated for comment, pursuant to the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA)."

"During this period, the State of Missouri studied alternative sites located in Missouri."

"In February 1972, the State of Missouri created the Missouri-St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority (hereinafter the 'Missouri Authority') to deal with the problem further."

"In March 1972, while the Illinois project application was pending, former Secretary of Transportation John A. Vojte, pursuant to section 16 (f) of the Airport Act, advised local authorities that an additional large airport was required for the St. Louis area. He directed his regional representative to bring together the interested jurisdictions to agree upon a site. An agreement was not reached."

"On Jan. 20, 1975, former Secretary of Transportation Claude S. Brinegar issued a statement concluding that the aviation forecasts for the St. Louis area were down from earlier projections and that Lambert might therefore technically be capable of meeting the area's aviation needs into the mid-1990s."

"He suggested that the EIS submitted for the Illinois site would have to be revised to reflect the changed forecast, but because a new airport would ultimately be needed for the St. Louis area and Columbia-Waterloo is the most likely site, it would be prudent to 'land bank' the Illinois site."

"In 1974, federal funds were awarded under the FAA's Planning Grant Program to the St. Louis Airport Authority (the operator of Lambert Airport) and the Missouri Authority to conduct a master planning study of Lambert Airport to determine its potential to meet the region's future air carrier airport needs."

"Phases A and B of this study, by the Ralph M. Parsons Company-Grünen Associates, were completed in January 1975 (the so-called 'RMP Report') and concluded that Lambert could be expanded to meet the region's air carrier airport needs until at least 1995."

"The FAA has expressed serious reservations regarding this conclusion, primarily because of its reliance on future air traffic control technology advances, which may or may not occur."

"In order to develop an overall analysis of the St. Louis airport question, comparing in particular the alternatives of transferring to Columbia-Waterloo or remaining at an expanded Lambert, the Department of Transportation commissioned a study by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company which was completed in November 1975."

"The study concluded that (1) delaying construction and operation of Columbia-Waterloo and remaining at an improved Lambert would result in lower economic costs compared to earlier construction and operation at Columbia-Waterloo, and (2) the 'most likely' level of operations could be accommodated at an improved Lambert, but with increasing congestion over time."

"Because of the difficulty in making the decision on the Illinois application for site acquisition funds and because of its significant impact on the St. Louis region, I decided that it was in the public interest that elected officials and citizens representing various interest groups be given a final opportunity to make clear their positions and to present their cases to me directly."

"I did this also because, as Justice Felix Frankfurter once advised President Franklin Roosevelt, government is essentially an educational process both for the public and their elected and appointed officials."

"Therefore, I held a public hearing in St. Louis on Jan. 13, 1976."

"Representatives of state and local government, the business community, civic groups and other elected officials and interested citizens addressed a series of relevant issues set forth in the Department of Transportation Issue Paper."

"This issue paper outlined the aeronautical, economic, environmental, social, transportation and institutional considerations that would have to be evaluated in reaching a decision, and the relevant factual information as I then understood it."

"Written presentations were submitted to the public docket, which remained open until Jan. 30, 1976."

"Each side was then given until Feb. 9, 1976, to respond to the written submission of the opposing side."

"After Feb. 9, I received correspondence on this matter, which is part of the public file. The recent amendments to the Airport Act were signed into law until July 12, 1976, and appropriations therefor were not signed into law until Aug. 12, 1976."

"Today's decision is based entirely on reports and information listed in the issue paper, the Jan. 13 public hearing, my subsequent review of the transcript, written materials submitted for the record, relevant statutes in effect at the time of the decision, and the environmental impact statement."

"The aeronautical, economic, environmental, social and institutional aspects of this decision are complex and controversial."

"In addition to the dilemma of evaluating each of these aspects of the decision, determining their relative importance presents an even more difficult challenge."

"In this document, I attempt to explain my evaluation have stated before. I firmly believe

3-day Newport festival

The sixth annual Newport homecoming celebration will open at 10 a.m. Saturday with a large parade, led by the Madison High School Band, and will continue with special events all weekend.

The annual event attracts hundreds of former residents to the Madison and Venice area for the parade, ball games, picnics and a dance.

Tickets for the ball are $4 in advance from any association member and will be $4.25 at the door. Photographs will be taken at the ball for $3 per photo. Persons wishing more information on reservations for the ball or any of the activities may contact David Barrett at 431-9727.

There will be no queen contest this year, Barrett announced. Dale Crawford will direct softball tournaments and John Henry Williams is arranging baseball tournaments, both of which are open to late entries. Teams wishing to enter the men's or women's tournaments may contact the organizers or Barrett. Trophies will be awarded to winning teams.

A trophy also is to be awarded for the best entry in Saturday's parade.

The parade will be made up of bands, floats, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, equestrians, and marching and mechanized units.

The Madison and Venice fire departments will enter along with Pete Plante's antique units. Units of the Aahmes and Medinah Shriners will participate.

The parade route will be south on Selb from Fox Industrial Park to Market Street, west on Market, north on Meredocia, west on Douglas, south on Weaver, west on Jackson, and loop through West Madison to Klein Street to Lee Park. The reviewing stand will be located at Klein and Weaver streets. A picnic and games at Lee Park will follow the parade.

On Sunday at 1 p.m., the Illinois-Missouri Motorcycle Association will sponsor a stunt show at Lee Park. Featured will be Wilbur Glasper, Jasper Colney, Leon Bailey, Ronald Glasper and "Red" Glasper.

The annual homecoming ball will be held on Sunday at American Legion Post 307 at 740 Broadway, Venice, from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Pianist Jeter Thompson's Tres Bien will furnish the music.

Teenagers are excluded from the homecoming ball, and this year teens will have their own dance at the Lee Park Recreation Center from 7 p.m. until 11 p.m. Sunday.

Featured will be the David Dee Band and The Evolutions, along with the VR Superstars and Ozzy Hubbard. "Donnell" will be at the turntable.

A homecoming breakfast will be served from 9 a.m. until noon on Monday at the Lee Park Recreation Center.

Each of the three days will include softball, baseball, tennis and other games. Booths located in the park will feature novelties, games, food and refreshments.

Theme of the homecoming will be "Get your kicks in '76."

M-V Rotary evaluation

Members of the Madison-Venice Rotary Club will receive a club evaluation sheet soon, W. F. "Mick" Strine, president, said at the Wednesday noon business meeting, held in the Madison Recreation Center.

Club activities, programs and practices and the style of club meetings will be reviewed.

The Rev. Walter Walters, new pastor of the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church, who has replaced the Rev. Ellis Seals, was introduced as a guest.

Vice-President Henry Gray reported that the Rotarians hope to raise about $1,200 more this year than last year for the United Way.

It was announced that Robert H. Caldwell, Rotary district governor, will visit the club on Sept. 28. A meeting of the officers and the governor will be held at 11 a.m. on the day of his visit.

A committee of Ray Edwards, chairman and Duane Georgerf was appointed to erect a new Rotary sign.

Area improvement efforts discussed

The goal of the Granite City Rotary Club's monthly prayer breakfast is to make the Quad-City area a better place to live, work and "do what we want to do," Carl E. Mathias, chairman of the meetings for the 1976-77 year, said yesterday as the group's specific goals were discussed.

Sewer

owners scheduled to be served. Those filing the suit oppose issuance of general obligation bonds to finance the local share of the cost.

The bulk of the financing is being provided from state and federal funds, and a later grant application would have the effect of also meeting the local share.

The Chamber of Commerce board went on record last night as urging prompt Circuit Court consideration of the suit so that it can be determined whether the sewer installation can begin.

Other Quad-City area organizations have taken similar stands.

Residents wanting sewers also have discussed the possibility of intervening in the court case. Their lawyer would stress that a vast majority of those who would be affected desire sewer service.

An informal discussion brought out predictions that sanitary sewers will stimulate a major economic boom in the Tri-City Regional Port District and will spark a number of new industrial park sites and retail-commercial facilities.

Leaders from business, industry, law, police, clergy, schools and civic organizations attended.

"Our effort is to try and pinpoint projects or problems we can help with," Mathias said.

"The Quad-Cities have 70,000 to 75,000 people, ample space, transportation, water and schools—the ingredients for real development. We need to encourage industry to move here."

"Eighty per cent of the new jobs have come from our existing industries."

"There are 40 people here with different concerns and we could establish one goal and make it happen."

A tabulation of concerns listed by the gathering showed the top five to be: 1. Image of the area, 2. Sewers, traffic, governmental cooperation and crime.

A committee will study the suggestions and recommend one area of concentration for the coming year.

Mother, child hurt

Mrs. Lois Madewell, 25, of 705 Madison Ave., and her daughter, Robin, 4, were injured when their auto and the car of John Ritchie, St. Louis, collided on Nameki Road and St. Clair Avenue at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday. Mrs. Madewell was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way.

The child suffered only minor injuries and was released from St. Elizabeth Hospital after treatment. Mrs. Madewell was admitted with injuries to her neck and right shoulder.

18,650-acre airport plan

The proposed new major airport approved for construction funds at Columbia-Waterloo yesterday will cost approximately $292 million to construct and will cover 18,650 acres, according to figures released by the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority. Initially, the federal government will provide about $5 million.

The estimated cost could increase if delays postpone the construction. This is the estimate for constructing it with two major runways.

The original application had been for $454 million (if construction started in 1971) with three runways. The U.S. secretary of transportation approved the two-runway plan.

Also in the approved application is a terminal with 14 million square feet of passenger use area and 682,000 in the cargo terminal area. The original proposal was for 50 million square feet of passenger area and 2.1 million square feet of cargo space.

It is anticipated the proposed airport could handle 107 takeoffs and landings per hour while the three-runway plan would be able to handle 200 movements per hour.

The present Lambert field in St. Louis County covers 2,590 acres, can handle 55 aircraft operations per hour. It has 344,000 square feet of terminal area for passengers and 120,000 square feet of cargo area.

Mitchell AC plans 17th fall festival

Music, food, dancing and games for all ages will be featured at the 17th fall festival sponsored by the Mitchell Athletic Club, president.

The event will begin at 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10, at Greenwood Village, located between East Chain of Rocks Road and Interstate 270, with activities continuing on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 11 and 12.

Featured food specialties will include fried chicken, fried beef, fried pork, steaks and fried fish.

Joey James will provide music for dancing between 8 p.m. and midnight Friday.

A "battle of bands" sponsored by the National School of Music will take place between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday, with carnival rides at reduced prices in the afternoon.

"Blue grass" music is scheduled at 6 p.m. Saturday.

A country and western star, Nick Nixon, will present his band and show at 8 p.m. Saturday and 7 p.m. Sunday. Athletic trophy presentations will take place at 1:30 p.m. Sunday to teams participating in the Mitchell Athletic Club summer baseball and softball programs.

At 2 p.m. Sunday, the Jerry Green Dance Studio will present a program, with the National School of Music returning at 4 p.m.

Tickets for the rides may be purchased at half price in advance at the Mitchell tavern, Inn-Between, E. & I. Quick Shop and Donaldson's Cafe.

7-hour Lock 26 closing

Locks No. 26, Alton, will be closed to traffic for approximately seven hours on Friday, starting at 9 a.m. The purpose will be to determine lock wall movements by newly installed equipment.

The water elevation in the chamber must be maintained at a constant level during the readings.

"This closure is being made with short notice so that it can be accomplished before the anticipated heavy grain shipments arrive at Locks No. 26," James A. Peterson, St. Louis Engineer District Operations Chief, said.

223 applicants to succeed Rendleman narrowed to 7

Home site visits with seven candidates for president of the Southern Illinois Union following the death of President John S. Rendleman on March 4. The board appointed Andrew J. Kochman, who had been vice president and served at SIUE since 1971, to serve as acting president until a new president is selected.

Nominations at applications for the position totaled 223. The search committee began screening the candidates Monday, reducing the number to 14.

The 14 were invited to Lambert-Field in St. Louis for interviews in July and August, and the number of candidates was further reduced to seven. Subcommittees of the search committee are conducting the "on-site" visits at the candidates' places of present employment.

Thieves late Tuesday or early Wednesday chopped through the floor of an apartment at 1041 Logan St., Venice, and gained entrance into a storeroom below.

From the storeroom, they entered the grocery and knocked the lock off an east door to provide an exit.

Items taken included: two cases of bacon, 50 pounds of ribs, $10 worth of dimes, two $5 rolls of nickels, $18 in food stamps and three packages of hot dogs.

Miss Dowthitt succumbs

A native of Coles County, Ill., Miss Dowthitt resided in Kansas City, Mo., prior to moving to Madison five years ago.

She retired seven years ago from the F.W. Woolworth Co., Kansas City, where she had worked for 25 years.

Survivors include one brother, Robert Dowthitt of Jacksonville, Ill., and four sisters: Mrs. D. E. Mary Whiteside, sister of Mrs. Lydia Samuels and Charles and Samuel Wallace, dear grandmothers; Mrs. Charles Wallace, great-grandmother, mother-in-law, sister-in-law and aunt.

Whittell to run again as supervisor

Louis Whittell, supervisor of Nameki Township, announced today that he will seek reelection as supervisor next April.

Whittell said, "During my career as a public official, I have considered the wishes of the people before my own official duties and personal life. I believe that each problem should be considered individually and a method worked out to accomplish it."

Whittell said that "no individual member of government can overlook or influence the actions of other officials of government. Therefore, it becomes difficult to serve the people if other officials who are elected to serve you fail to consider your needs."

A campaign aide remarked, "Although some may disagree with his position on some issues, you always know where he stands and what he stands for: truth, service and honest representation are most important."

Whittell said he "unquestionably will not be able to support the present highway commissioner, town clerk or tax assessor because they have failed to consider the people of our township."

He said he regrets that he helped them get elected, and will be working for a complete ticket of candidates pledging to improve the township.

Cut by knife

Walter Rozycki, 49, of 2216 Madison Ave., has been released from St. Elizabeth Hospital after being admitted Friday morning with a knife wound to the left side of his chest.

He suffered a two-inch cut. Rozycki said he fell forward onto a cabinet which had a knife on it.

ADMITTED TO HOSPITAL

The Rev. Shelby Calhoun, 26, of East St. Louis, suffered a bump on the forehead when he struck a car windshield in an auto accident at about 7:20 a.m. Wednesday. He had x-rays taken at St. Elizabeth Hospital and was admitted.

WEAPON CHARGE FILED

Thomas Crowder, 23, of 641 Salver St., Venice, has been released on a $1,000 recognizance bond on a charge of unlawful use of a weapon. An officer allegedly found a 3 1/2-inch-blade knife in his possession at 11:40 p.m. Tuesday in the 100 block of Calhoun Street when the off-duty policeman intervened in a argument.

MOTORCYCLIST HURT

Kevin Humphrey, 23, of 1212 West Pontoon Road, was treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital Tuesday for left jaw, head and back pains. He had been in a traffic accident on Monday. Humphrey was treated and released.

Facing up to your mistakes

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN

Francis is a handsome man, tall, in his late thirties, mentally sharp. But life for Francis has become bitter. Talk to Francis for more than a few moments and he will give you a list of disillusioning experiences which is his method of wringing sympathy from you. Having known him for some 20 years, I know Francis' fault is that he doesn't face his own faults. We played college football together, and no matter what went wrong with a play, it was always someone else's fault, never his.

Francis' first job was detailing building plans and he needed to be exact. Because he was not used to working that way, there was some conflict between him and his employer and after a careless error, he was let go. In a year or so, he lost his second job, and as our lives crossed at this point, he was blaming his parents for being much too strict. This was his reason for rebelling against the demands of his unreasonable employer.

When drinking, Francis was less guarded and he talked about his inferiority complex. He was frightened by life, but in all the things he revealed about himself, he did not see that he could save himself a great deal of pain if he would do what he knew he should do. He needed to be trusted, but he was not trustworthy. Francis would choose the easier way, the shortcut, and when he was found out he would cover with his alibi.

Today this unhappy man still is looking for his place in life. He sees nothing but a great deal more unhappiness in his future. One marriage has gone by and his second one is in trouble. Francis is still a master at conjuring up excuses, skillfully blaming everyone and everything but himself. It has become a way of life, and he easily could be labeled a person addicted to excuses.

Knowing Francis over such a long period of time and seeing the gifts and potential he has wasted, I know I am emotionally sensitive. This is a common life disease. Francis and many like him seem never to learn from their own mistakes.

It's a difficult thing to admit that your own carelessness caused you to be fired. But it can make a difference in how you handle the next job situation and certainly your own attitude is a much more responsible approach to life.

It is those who hide behind excuses who need help. If such persons blame all the world but never themselves, mark it down that they will not grow emotionally until they learn that first lesson of life — to face their own mistakes honestly, and learn the lesson that the mistake can teach.

I keep the words of the philosopher, D. W. Webster, in my center desk drawer for my own emotional health: "Of all the acts of men, repentance is the most divine. The greatest of all faults is to be conscious of none."

Three arrest at Jack-in-The-Box

Three arrests, in two separate incidents were made at the Jack-in-The-Box restaurant, 3330 Nameoki Road, early this week.

Ivy J. Starks, 20 of St. Johns, Mo., a man, was charged with disorderly conduct. A police officer talking to Fire and Police Commissioner Elmer Miller alleged he observed a man getting out of his car with a mixed drink and using profane language.

The officer said he had the man pour the drink out and warned him to watch his language. A few minutes later upon leaving the restaurant the man allegedly became abusive and profane toward the officer and was charged.

Frank W. Holmes, 26, and Peggy K. Holmes, 25, both of 2224 Alexander Ave., were charged with disorderly conduct when they were allegedly observed getting out of their car with a ball bat, striking the auto behind them several times, and making threatening gestures toward the occupants of the auto behind them in the food line.

Frank Holmes also was charged with reckless conduct.

Rites for brother of GC resident

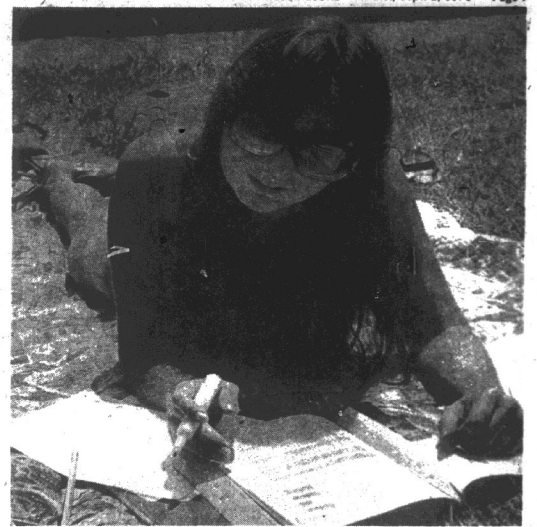

Funeral services were held Tuesday at a funeral home in Pleasant Hill, Ill., for James Mitchell, 50 of Pittsfield, Ill., a brother of Mrs. Rue Ann Long of Granite City.

He died at 6:10 p.m. Aug. 28 at the Illini Community Hospital, Pittsfield.

Other survivors include his wife, the former Wanda Wassell, and one son, two daughters, two brothers, another sister and seven grandchildren.

Burial was in Pittsfield West Cemetery.

September enjoyable month for gardeners

Area Garden Adviser

September can be a profitable and enjoyable month for the home gardener. It's the time for making final plantings, harvesting crops and preparing for next year's garden. A few highlights for the month are: Water your plantings as they need it. The "one-inch-of-water-per-week" program should be continued until natural rainfall and cool temperatures arrive. Plant some late season vegetables. With good fall growing conditions, there is time to plant and harvest snap beans (50-54 days), beets (30-38 days), leaf lettuce (45 days), radishes (22-25 days), spinach (37-45 days) and turnips (42-45 days). Unfavorable growing conditions would either delay harvest or mean that a little seed and labor have been lost. Keep the tomato plants growing. Water, nutrients and pesticides, especially those for disease control, are needed to keep healthy, fruitful tomato plants until frost. One or two sprays at 10 day intervals.

should be all that is needed if the water and soil fertility are maintained.

Harvest herbs. Cool, dry September days are ideal for drying leafy plants. Pick the leaves or stems when the dew is off the plant. Wash if the leaves are very platted. Otherwise, just tie the stems or plants in bundles of 10 to 12, and hang in an airy, warm, dry place. Cut or kill weeds in the garden. Do this before they make seeds and you will have fewer weeds to fight next year. Don't rush the "pumpkin harvest." Many pumpkins have turned orange and appear ready for picking. However, barring adverse weather conditions, the vines in your garden are a better storage place than the porch or basement. Once the vines die, cut at the stem, and store in a cool, dry place.

Tip-layer black raspberries and thornless blackberries for plant increases. The growing tip of shoots can be covered with an inch or two of soil so that new plants will be available for planting next spring.

Build up the compost pile with garden debris. All the spent plant material in the garden can be tossed into the compost pile for decomposition. Pick apples when mature. This is usually when the ground or undercolor turns yellow or creamy. It is also about the time that stems of healthy fruits separate easily from the spur. For Southwestern Illinois, this period is early September for Jonathan, mid-September for Red Delicious, and late September for Golden Delicious. Sow a green-manure crop. Rye, annual ryegrass or oats are good crops to sow on vacant ground to give soil protection, smother weeds, and increase the organic matter.

Income tax workshops

A limited number of persons can still be accepted for enrollment at workshops for beginning income tax preparers to be conducted by the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, according to Ron Cornwell, Madison County extension adviser. Deadline for enrolling is Sept. 10.

The workshops are designed for persons with little or no experience in preparing income tax returns for others and who wish to become more competent. An enrollment fee of $20 covers the cost of teaching materials and student workbooks.

University of Illinois specialists will teach the workshops via the Cooperative Extension Service's TeleNet System. This is a telephone network with two-way communication that enables students at each of the stations to hear and talk with the workshop instructors.

The workshop for interested Madison County residents will be held Oct. 15, 20 and 22 at the St. Clair County Extension office in Belleville.

Additional information and enrollment forms may be obtained at the Madison County Extension office, 900 Hillsboro Ave., Edwardsville, or by calling Cornwell at 636-7280.

Set goals aid adult learners

The reason adult learners do so well when they decide to go to college is that they put their goals where they can get to them, according to Bob Ussery, staff sergeant in the U.S. Air Force and stationed at Scott Air Force Base.

Ussery has a bachelor of science degree from McKendree College and is working on his master's degree at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. "I've enjoyed the educational opportunities offered by the military. I'm just sorry more people don't take advantage of them," Ussery said.

Although he received his degree from nearby McKendree, Ussery has taken courses off-and-on at different colleges near bases where he has been stationed all over the country. In the beginning, he admits, he was "just piddling along," taking a course here and a course there.

Then he became serious about obtaining a degree. "Once I made up my mind to get it, it only took me a year," Ussery said. He isn't sure why it took him so long to make up his mind.

"Maybe I just matured. Maybe I just stopped fooling around and started dealing with life," Ussery said. He isn't the only one in his family interested in higher education. His wife is presently enrolled as a freshman at Bellevue Area College.

A veteran of 22 years of military service, the native Long Islander from New York State was one of more than 100 military personnel and their dependents, base civil service workers, and area civilians attending general advisement and counseling day at the base in August. Counseling and advisement was provided by SUE.

Representatives from the disciplines of counselor education, business, social sciences, science and technology, government and public affairs, nursing and elementary education visited the Scott Resident Center to provide prospective students with information on course offerings at SUE. General Studies advisors were also there.

Air Force personnel were seeking counseling for a number of reasons. Some of them were already working toward degrees and were checking to see what SUE had to offer them. Others were considering military advancement and needed to upgrade their educational backgrounds. Still others were nearing retirement and wished to prepare themselves for a civilian career.

In six more years, Lawrence Greenwood, a staff sergeant from San Antonio, Tex., will be up for retirement. Although he has served in Vietnam and seen much of the world since he has been in the Air Force, he has never been able to take advantage of the military educational benefits. Greenwood feels he could benefit from the educational program in two ways—military advancement now and retirement job insurance later.

"You can't sit back and wait for retirement and then say, 'I wish I had done it six years ago,'" Greenwood said. Airman Daisy Pirtle, East St. Louis, was at the center gaining information on the university's nursing program. Her educational background is elementary education. But, as she puts it, "That field is so crowded, I decided to go into nursing." Her husband, Rudell, is also a student at SUE.

Plumbing store to open here Saturday

The Kelly Plumbing Co., 2258-60 State St., is in the first phase of remodeling at its present location to enlarge the quarters. The project will provide a new retail sales store for a complete line of plumbing fixtures, repair and replacement parts. It was announced by Kelly Hogan, owner of the company. Opening day for the retail store is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 3. The store will feature a display of American Standard fixtures, Delta faucets and other major brands.

Other items on exhibit will be shallow and deep well pumps, sump pumps, ice maker kits, stove and dryer flexible gas connectors, personal showers and shower heads by Water Pik. The second phase of the renovation will provide special showrooms for various bathroom fixtures and vanities, kitchen cabinets, stainless steel and colored cast iron sinks, garbage disposals and kitchen aid dishwashers. The showrooms are set for public viewing and sales on Friday, Oct. 1.

'Moonstone' drama

Diamonds aren't always a girl's best friend, as Vivien Heilbron quickly proves when she stars as Rachel Verinder in the British Broadcasting Corp. production of "The Moonstone." "Masterpiece Theater's" five-part dramatization of Wilkie Collins' 19th century detective thriller, "The Moonstone," begins Friday, Sept. 5, at 8 p.m. on Channel 9. Set in England, "The Moonstone" is the suspense-filled story of a fabulous diamond looted from a temple in India and the misfortunes it brings to those associated with it—especially the young and beautiful heroine, Rachel Verinder.

Rachel wears the Moonstone for the first time at her birthday celebration, but is warned by a guest that it resembles a diamond stolen from a Hindu statue 50 years earlier and could spell trouble for the owner. The next morning the Moonstone is missing, and the famous detective Sergeant Cuff (John Welsh) is called in to solve the crime. Rachel's two cousins and rivals for her hand, Franklin Blake (Robin Ellis) and Godfrey Ablewhite (Martin Jarvis), are prime suspects in the robbery. But in good mystery story style, the real villain remains in question until the end.

Written more than a century ago, "The Moonstone" was the first full-length detective novel (Poe wrote only short stories) and remains one of the top-rated mystery stories written in the English language. Collins, who lived from 1825 to 1889, also authored "The Woman in White," "The New Magdalen," "The Hanted Hotel" and "Heart and Science."

Good foot care important

By MARION WELLS

If you want to climb the ladder of success, good foot care might help.

"Many are the salespeople, the checkout clerks, the household workers, the mechanics — and the executives — who would be more successful in their person-to-person relationships were they not battling against the constant awareness of foot pain."

This comment comes from foot specialist Elizabeth Roberts, D.P.M., a fellow of the Academy of Podiatric Medicine and author of a book called "On Your Feet" (Routledge Press).

Faulty foot function also can cause, or contribute to, headaches, lower back pain, leg cramps, fatigue and poor circulation.

It's much more tiring to stand than walk, Dr. Roberts says. If you already stand and walk improperly, constant standing will obviously aggravate the condition, leading possibly to extreme fatigue, lower back discomfort, and leg and foot pains.

Standing for long intervals may prove less tiring if you set your feet so they are comfortably apart and pointed straight ahead, with your weight divided between them.

Promote circulation by shifting positions frequently when you stand or sit for long stretches. Pump your leg muscles at frequent intervals by rocking back and forth on your heels and toes several times. Standing with knees locked or sitting with knees crossed may interfere with circulation.

For comfort at work and around the house, foot specialists suggest shoes with low, broad heels and pliable uppers (unless they're safety shoes). Effective laces or fastenings may help keep your feet from sliding forward in the shoe, thus cutting down harmful friction and pressure.

Do the insoles provide proper cushioning? Are the soles thick enough to absorb the impact of walking? Avoid walking around in shoes with worn-down heels. This throws your gait off and may contribute to instability, leg pain and fatigue.

Proper foot ventilation is important, especially if you work in a warm, moist environment (laundry, beauty parlor, greenhouse, bakery, etc.). Excess perspiration favors fungus or bacterial infections and other skin problems. Buy shoes of porous materials, such as leather and suitable fabrics. Perforated shoes may be available, or your shoemaker can drill tiny holes in your present pair.

If your feet perspire easily, try to change shoes and socks during the day, especially if you're on your feet for long periods. Foot powder inside shoes or socks or both also may help.

Consider foot ventilation when choosing stocking or sock wear. Cotton is a material that works particularly well.

Severe or persisting foot problems deserve professional diagnosis and care.

Jobs cited as issue

Election of Democrats at state and national levels is essential to bring back full employment. Michael J. Howlett, Democratic nominee for governor, said during the weekend.

"In recent weeks, I have gone to meetings, to plant gates and down mine shafts to talk to working people," said Howlett. "They want a Democratic President, Democratic state officers, a Democratic Congress and a Democratic General Assembly."

"The Republican party has just adopted platform planks to make it easier for corporations, easier for those who are well-off, and harder for the working poor and unemployed."

"Under the Democratic administrations of Kennedy and Johnson, unemployment dropped from 6.7 per cent in 1961 to 3.8 per cent in 1966. Inflation was held to two per cent a year and purchasing power went up for all of us."

"When the Republicans took office, economic growth and prosperity hit a wall. Unemployment increased to nine per cent and, for the first time, we learned what 'double digit inflation' means."

"True unemployment is now 10 million people. The Republican party has substituted welfare for work."

"For each million Americans out of work, we all pay to billion more in unemployment compensation, $2 billion in welfare and Medicaid costs and lose $14 billion in tax revenues."

"The greatest country on earth cannot afford to have millions out of work while we have so much to do."

"There are homes to be built, cities and towns to be rebuilt, new energy sources to be developed."

"There are railroads to be repaired and constructed. Safe railroad transportation is essential to the economy of the United States."

"This is especially true in Illinois the railroad center of the nation, served by more railroads than any other state."

"While supporting legislation to stimulate employment, Howlett said he is preparing an economic development program for Illinois to expand the economy, put workers back to work and get the state moving again."

"The working man has always carried his share of government costs," said

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD Thurs., Sept. 2, 1976 Page 11

Adult season passes offered

Granite City High School North has announced that the Board of Education has provided an adult season pass for all home football, basketball and wrestling events.

Normally, adult admittance to athletic events is $1.50 per adult.

All of the home games or meets will cost $1 per event if a season pass is purchased. During the 1976-77 season, North High will have five home football games, eight home basketball games and six home wrestling meets.

Adults are to report to the main office of North starting Tuesday, Sept. 7, if they desire to purchase the $5 season pass. North's first home grid game is with Collinsville on Sept. 17.

Soccer Cougars to take on alumni from pro team ranks

Villa as a freshman last year was the Cougars' second leading scorer behind senior Tim Twellman.

Ten former Cougar soccer greats are definitely on record to be back for the alumni game. All 10 have played professionally since graduation. Six are still members of pro soccer teams.

Soccer fans who watched the national professional championship game between Minnesota and Toronto Saturday saw ex-SIUUE star Tommy Howe in action for the Kicks.

Others still playing in the pros are: Chris Carena, San Antonio; John Strelau and Benben, Dallas; and Tom Galati, Philadelphia.

Another former Cougar great, Steve Cacciatore, is with the Los Angeles Skyhawks of the American Soccer League.

Galati may not be able to play in the alumni game because he's been chosen to play with the United States national team.

Four other former SIUE standout kickers with pro experience probably will see action. They are: John Carena, St. Louis Stars; goalie Chester Kowalewski, Denver; Kevin Howe, Denver; and Bobby Kesson, Dallas.

Sure to see action for the SIUE varsity against the alumni are back: Gene Mishalow, Greg Makowski, number of victories in college soccer, the 200 plateau, with 15 victories.

If he and his Cougar kickers win 15, however, it'll have to be one of their best seasons ever. On this year's schedule are such foes as Clemson, the Air Force Academy, the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Quincy College, St. Louis University, and Rockhurst College.

Just a shade behind those powerhouses are Benedictine College of Kansas, the U. of Illinois-Chicago Circle, U. of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Blackburn College and always tough Western, Eastern and Northern Illinois universities.

There's not a single breather in the 101, the coach summarized.

On Saturday of that week, Sept. 18, the Cougars will inaugurate their regular home season against the tough Akron University Zips.

With a little bit of luck, Guelker could reach a magic

400 attend Venice baseball banquet and honor Dale Crawford

The Venice Little League held its third annual baseball banquet Sunday with 400 in attendance at the Venice Recreation Center.

Trophies were presented to the 17 teams participating in the program.

C. Dale Crawford received the "manager of the year" award. Crawford has been instrumental in developing athletic programs for Venice youths over the past several years.

John Henry Williams, speaking in behalf of Mayor William M. Ebersold, who was ill, gave a special tribute to the sponsors of the teams and to the Venice Park Board, Venice City Council and Mayor Ebersold for their support of the youth baseball program.

Jones captures cycle finale

Alabama's Lance Jones captured both ends of a motorcycle racing doubleheader Tuesday evening on the quarter-mile oval at Tri-City Speedway, winning first a regularly scheduled American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned feature race, and then taking top honors in a season-ending main event in which only the top ten riders in point standings competed.

Jones, 17, who won five straight feature races here before being sidelined for two weeks by illness, lost a bid for a first-ever track title here to Texan Guy McClure last week.

Jones trailed McClure by only five points, 75-70.

In Tuesday's season finale, Jones first won his heat race and semi-main event before leading Terry Poovey and Robert Beary across the finish line in the 10-lap main event.

The same trio then placed in identical order in the special season championship 10-lap race.

Joining Jones as heat race winners were Poovey, Beary and Jeff Mundlock. The four riders also captured their semi-main event races.

Women's soccer league meeting

The Granite City Park District will hold an organizational meeting for its women's soccer league at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 7, at the office in Wilson Park.

Entry fee is $55 per team and non-residents will be required to pay a non-resident fee of $7.50 per person.

Games will be played in Wilson Park on Saturdays and Sundays, starting Sept. 25.

Players must be 16 years of age or older.

Teams interested in participating are to have a representative at Tuesday's meeting.

Last year, there were five teams in the women's soccer league.

Mrs. Brokaw hosts meeting

Mrs. Ellen Brokaw, president of Theta Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, entertained chapter members this week in her home in Collinsville to officially open the meetings for the year with a "Beginning Day" observance. During the session yearbooks were assembled for each member and plans for the year were discussed. Secret sister names were revealed and new members were selected for the 1976-77 year. Those attending were Linda Yates, Sandy Demolin, Judy Reidelberger, Joyce Tracy, Jane Yates, Debbie Parmlay, Jane Jackstadt, Martha Gianson, Sharon Taylor, Mary Morgan, Barbara Milach, Linda Givens and Cindy Blumenthal.

Moving ammunition plant called waste

The St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association contended Wednesday that closing the St. Louis Army Ammunition Plant and building a new plant at Texarkana, Tex., would waste federal tax money. The proposed move would be to an area which has insufficient workers to man a plant working at full capacity, and the power company there would be hard pressed to provide necessary electricity, it was alleged. A 52-page report, sent to the Army and Congressmen, concludes that modernization of the presently deactivated plant at 4800 Goodfellow Blvd., instead of construction of a new plant in Texarkana, would save taxpayers $18 million over a 25-year period.

The report includes a cost-benefit analysis and a discussion of qualitative considerations in the Army's plan. At stake are about 2,000 potential jobs. Harry T. Morley Jr., executive vice president of the RCGA, said, "Proponents of the Texas plant have argued that it would produce savings through its proximity to a shell-loading facility already in Texarkana, and through saving in labor and electricity costs. Our findings do not bear that out."

The report questions whether the Texarkana area could provide the manpower needed to operate the proposed plant, particularly on a crisis-mobilization basis. The entire three-county Texarkana region had barely enough available unemployed to provide one worker (not considering skills) for each job created, it is asserted. The St. Louis area's unemployed work force, which includes more people than the entire work force in Texarkana, could provide 22 potential workers for each job, the report adds. A Texarkana location would result in "wasteful consumption of huge quantities of natural gas by the local electric utility," the Texas utility is fueled exclusively by natural gas, "an increasingly scarce national energy resource," the report says.

In full production, the plant would absorb more than 17 percent of the Texarkana utility's reserve power, reducing its reserve well below what the power industry considers safe. Union Electric would burn no natural gas in furnishing power to a modernized St. Louis plant, and its facilities could easily absorb the increased load caused by the plant's operation, the RCGA relates. Present electricity rates and estimates of future rates showed power costs in St. Louis would be $7 million less than in Texarkana over 25 years. The Army requested $110.4 million for fiscal 1976 to build a new plant in Texas. After the General Accounting Office questioned the need for a new plant, the House Appropriations Committee rejected the request for construction funds, but a conference committee approved the item while calling for a new study of the proposal by the Army. The St. Louis plant was last in operation from 1965 to 1968, with a full production work force of about 2,000, and an annual payroll of about $17 million. It has stood idle since, while being maintained for reactivation if necessary.

Fall fair for senior citizens next week; plan 'dating game'

With the calendar entering September again, it is time for the 1976 Fall Senior Citizens Fair at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The Community Involvement Project (CIP) in the Office of Student Activities will present the fair Friday, Sept. 10, beginning at 9 a.m. in the University Center (UC).

The opening reception will be in the UC Goshen Lounge, where coffee and tea will be served while the Old Guys Jazz Band entertains. Senior citizens will be welcomed by William J. Tudor, SIUE professor emeritus, at the general assembly beginning at 10 a.m. in Meridian Ballroom. The keynote address will be given by Victor Hruska, deputy director of the Washington office of the Program for Older Americans.

Additional information will be available in the afternoon when tables will be set up in the Goshen Lounge area. Senior citizens may ask questions about any social service. The agencies that will be represented include the Social Security Administration, Senior Community Service Employment Project and Illinois Action Program for Older Americans. Entertainment for the day will be provided by a Granite City senior citizen kitchen band, the Merry-makers, the Suzuki String Preparatory Program, a yoga demonstration and a Mississippi River Festival documentary film. After lunch, there will be ballroom dancing in Meridian Ballroom, with music by the Frank Cherry Orchestra. The special entertainment for the day, which will begin at 1:30 p.m. in Meridian Ballroom, will be a "dating game" for senior citizens. The idea, taken from a defunct television series, will be hosted by Kathy McDonald. One male contestant and one female contestant will be asking three contestants of the opposite sex, questions they have prepared. One of the contestants in each game will be selected as the first choice to go on a date with the question-asking contestant. The two winning couples will be sent, courtesy of the Community Involvement Project, on "extra-special" dates which will be announced at the conclusion of the "dating game," according to Paul Roesti, chairman of the fair. The deadline for receiving applications for the game is midnight Friday, Sept. 3. For an application Quad-Cityans may write to: Paul Roesti, Fair Chairman, 1976 Senior Citizens Fair, Student Activities Office, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Any club wishing to exhibit crafts and handicrafts is encouraged to do so, according to Roesti. Exhibits should be scheduled with him, or if additional information is needed, groups may contact Roesti at 692-2686 or at the above address.

Members of Eta Chapter of Phi Tau Omega Sorority were entertained at a cook-out given last week in the home of Mrs. Dorothy Brewster in Collinsville. Hostesses for the affair were Lorraine Butler, Kate Weddell, Hilda Schroeder and Mrs. Brewster. After the social hour prizes were awarded to Mary Evelyn Yench, Jo Ervay, Evelyn Todd and Millie Greshouse. Others attending were Ann Tatum, Betty Krug, Georgiana Van Buskirk, Gladys Waggoner, Dolores Sheridan and Dorothy Costello. The group will meet again on Sept. 1.

21 schools in cross-country invitational here Saturday

Coch Pete Robinson of GCHS North believes at least four of the 21 schools entered in Saturday's 10 a.m. invitational cross-country meet on the Steelers 2.85-mile course behind North High have the talent to dethrone defending the meet's defending champion, Lebanon.

Expected to provide fierce competition for Lebanon's Greyhounds, who are returning all last year's harriers except for since-graduated Don Burns, are Alton, Belleville West, Centralia and Peoria Central. "Alton," says Robinson, "is a contender, based on past performances. Belleville West may not have outstanding individual runners but as a team the school is strong."

Centralia fielded nearly all sophomores last season and they are returning as experienced juniors this week. "Peoria Central has back this season all of last year's runners who placed at the state meet," the coach adds.

Robinson cautioned that Lebanon is not to be taken lightly; the Greyhounds placed fifth in state Class A competition last year.

Other schools entered for Saturday's meet here are Belleville East, Cahokia, Collinsville, East St. Louis Senior, GCHS North, GCHS South, Edwardsville, Jacksonville, Highland High, St. Paul of Highland, Mascoutah, O'Fallon, Wood River, Triad, Springfield

Southeast and East St. Louis Lincoln.

Each school will enter seven runners in two categories of competition — varsity and sophomore — and the top five finishers from each school will earn points.

Robinson said the race for individual honors will be down to about five harriers — defending meet winner Greg Hogg of Lebanon, Steve Ellington of Mascoutah, Randy Adler of Alton, Mike Baker of GCHS North and Mark Cappelle of St. Paul.

"This meet should give everyone concerned a good indication of which schools may dominate the Southern Illinois cross-country scene this year," Robinson concluded.

Labor Day softball tourney in progress

Competition in a 19-team men's softball double-elimination tournament at both Worthen Park and West Granite Park continues today in the annual Granite City Park District Labor Day meet.

Six contests opened the tournament yesterday. The results were:

Belleville Tavern 5, Granite City Cleaners 1 (WP Ray Jones; triple by Jerry Hensley); Razor's Edge 12, Dempsey-Adams Auto Body 7 (WP John Rellick; HR's Rick Thompson, Ken Bolten); Rick's Pub 4, Roderick Catering 1 (WP Don Kuehnle; HR Sonny Puhel); Midtown Pharmacy 22, Pieper Funeral Home 0 (WP Charlie Palus; triple by Steve Schardin); Midtown Pharmacy 22, Pete and Mary's 11 (WP Ray Haddix; double by Don Haddix).

Mexican Honorary Commission 14, Graham's 4 (WP Larry Wallace).

Parings tonight at Worthen Park are Community Heights vs. Roderick's at seven o'clock, McDonald's vs. Croatian Home at eight and Congregation vs. Rick's Pub at nine.

At West Granite Park tonight it will be Raiders vs. Midtown Pharmacy at seven o'clock, Tri-City American Legion Post 113 vs. Mexican Honorary Commission at eight and Granite City Cleaners vs. Razor's Edge at nine.

Contests at both parks will include games at 7, 8 and 9 p.m. both tomorrow and Saturday.

On Sunday, contests are slated at Worthen Park at 1, 2, 4, 7, 8 and 9 p.m.

Monday with a 6 p.m. game followed by a championship game at 6 p.m. at Worthen Park.

Baker first across harrier finish line

Alton High School harriers had a low of 161 points Tuesday to capture their own invitational cross-country meet on the school's three-mile hilly course.

Individual honor was taken by GCHS North's Mike Baker, who paced the field to the finish line in 15 minutes, seven seconds, seven-tenths.

Belleville West was second with 194 points, GCHS North third with 245 and GCHS South fourth with 389. Edwardsville competed but did not finish the race.

Placing behind Baker for North were Greg Stout (16:14), Don Lucy 10th, Dave Ebrecht 14th, Mike Johns 25th, Dave Peters 39th, Ed Futch 40th, Royce Meyenburg 42nd and Dan Weble 44th.

South's Glen Ahlers led his teammates with a 14th-place finish. Ken Meagher was 32nd, Dave Taylor 24th, Dave Blackwell 26th, James Durnit 31st, Dave Houston 32nd, Scott Ahlers 50th, Mike DeGonia 51st, Curt Collins 56th and Dan Giese 57th.

3 women's teams advance

Three teams advanced from opening-round competition yesterday in the Granite City Park District's annual women's Labor Day double-elimination tournament at Wilson Park's diamond eight.

A contest there at seven this evening will conclude the first-round action when the Advertisers play Bill's Auto Body.

Other games are scheduled for 8 and 9 tonight, 7, 8 and 9 p.m. tomorrow and 7, 8 and 9 p.m. Sunday. A contest at 5 p.m. Sunday prior to a 6 p.m. championship game also is slated.

Victorious yesterday were: Fijan-Maeras Agency 31, Peters Construction 29 (WP Linda Wilkinson; HR Pam Hendrickson); Kentucky Fried Chicken 13, Granite Chrysler-Plymouth 5 (WP Myra Schofield; HR Judy Wiggins); Petrillo Produce 6, Sammy's Commanches 2 (WP Diane Daugherty; triples by Diane Becker, Robin Hayden).

Season champion Mercer to play for playoff series title

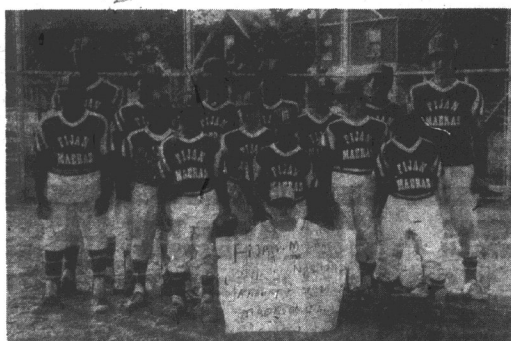

The 1976 Illinois Inter-City Baseball League playoff championship is to be decided starting at 1 p.m. Sunday with a twinbill at Wilson Park between the defending league title East Alton Vans and this season's regular-season champion, Mercer Mortuary.

Mercer's Stan Oetober and the Vans' Stan Hawkins will battle it out on the mound in the opening contest. John Scott of Jerome Demit will start the second game for Mercer.

The two title contenders have met in seven contests during the regular season, the Vans coming out on top four to three.

In the event Vans and Mercer split Sunday, a third game will be played in East Alton at 2 p.m. Monday, Labor Day.

Warriors open with 9-0 soccer victory

Coach Gene Baker's soccer Warriors opened the 1976 Quad-City area soccer season with a "bang" yesterday, taking 53 shots on goal against Waterloo High and connecting with the net nine times, blanking the visitors 9-0 at the GCIS South field.

South goalkeeper Barry Briggs had to stop only one Waterloo shot from entering the net, and the visitors were only allowed to cross midfield twice in the contest.

Warrior David Goldschmidt gave South a 1-0 lead unassisted when the game was only 33 seconds old.

He scored again in the first quarter of play with 1:57 remaining.

David Goldschmidt started the second quarter with a goal assisted by Rick Fernandez, followed in that period by goals off the feet of Greg Fiegel and then Fernandez twice.

Following a halftime break in the action and South ahead 6-0, Waterloo's defense tightened, allowing the Warriors only one successful scoring effort in the third period. Mark Goldschmidt scored, assisted by Joe Theis with 13:06 left.

South provided the final score in the fourth quarter when David Goldschmidt scored aided by Ken Prazma with 16:24 left to play and again when Mark Goldschmidt scored unassisted less than three minutes later.

Waterloo suffered a double loss yesterday, bowing 7-0 to South's jayvee squad, Fred Schuler scored four goals, John Prazma two and Frank Schwozko one.

GC Park District has job openings

The Granite City Park District will accept applications for fall-winter employment starting Tuesday, Sept. 7, at the Wilson Park office. Application forms also may be obtained there weekdays between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Jobs available this fall include skate guards and attendants, skating instructors and concession stand personnel at the ice rink.

Instructors also are needed for the park district's wrestling, gymnastics, basketball and roller skating programs and other persons are needed to serve as recreational leaders.

The ice rink will open in October and recreational programs will get under way about the same time, Harold Brown, superintendent of parks and recreation, said.

TRANSMISSIONS TAKEN

One model 411 transmission and one Volkswagen transmission, with a combined value of $300, were taken from a storage basement at 1918 Edwardsville Road, Madison, between 5 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Sunday, it was determined Monday.

Wallace hopes to make history at speedway

Mike Wallace, 17, of Arnold, Mo., will attempt Saturday to become the first sportsman stock car driver in Gateway Auto Racing Association's four-year history at Tri-City Speedway to capture mid-season and season championship races two years in a row.

The Fox High School senior piloted his racer to victory last year in both 50-lap events enroute to the track point title. This season, he held a sizeable lead in the point standings.

A week later, Wallace was stripped of his accumulated points when his race car was found to differ from association rules, yielding the point lead to St. Louisian Kris Krohn.

Following preliminary racing events at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, 24 cars will line up two abreast on the front straightaway in preparation for the 50-lap Miller Cup Classic, including 10 Quad-City area cars and drivers.

Two other local drivers will wait in the pits as possible alternates, in the event any of the 24 assigned to compete fail to make the field.

Other than the championship race money and contingency awards, the battle looms between two front row drivers as to who will claim the 1976 track point title. A feature race victor earns 200 points.

Sitting side-by-side in the first row to await the drop of the green starting flag will be current pointleader Kris Krohn, who has 2,710 points, and Granite Cityan Dean Aerne, 2,515.

Rounding out the 24-car field starting positions (with points given) will be:

Row two—Granite Cityan Nilton 2,080, Bill Reed 1,850; three—Granite Cityan Les Gibson 1,790 and Jack Yates 1,590.

Four—Tim Allen 1,500, John Wolfmeier 1,480; five—Granite Cityan Larry Yates 1,365, Kyle Krohn 1,225.

Six—Greg Dillender 1,170, Jerry Zehnle 1,160; seven—John Ritchie 810, Granite Cityan Steve Kraus 715.

Eight—Granite Cityan Don Alfaro 645, Don Gray Jr. 580; nine—Mike Wallace 510, Dan McCall 465.

Ten—Leroy Davis 465, Granite Cityan Steve Brasfield 425; eleven—Granite Cityan Ron Perkins 390 and John Kudelka 345; and twelve—Harold Breyans 310 and Ken Lee 310.

Serving as alternates are Granite Cityan Greg McCall 285 and Gary Barker 255.

The championship event will be part of a program which also will include a complete late model stock car racing card.

Call airport decision 'fair and beneficial'

Following is a statement by Assistant Governor Neil F. Hartigan and the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority, commenting on Transportation Secretary William Coleman's decision Wednesday regarding the Authority's application to build the new St. Louis International Airport at Columbia-Waterloo.

Secretary Coleman has made a decision that recognizes the long-term interests of all the people of the St. Louis region, as well as the requirements of the nation's air transportation system.

"After giving the airport question careful individual attention, he personally conducted a hearing in St. Louis to listen to all viewpoints.

"He then further immersed himself in the entire case. The procedures he followed could have been more thorough or more fair."

"As the new airport is developed and the people and the economy of the entire St. Louis area feel the enormous benefits, St. Louisans will come to regard the secretary's courageous decision as one of the most important positive steps in the region's entire history."

Big cars on way out?

By BOB HULL

If you don't think the days of the big car are numbered, an analysis of the latest production figures from the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association should remove all doubts.

Mind you — this is happening while big cars are still being turned out full steam. Car buyers are making the decision themselves. Come this fall they'll have no choice because this is the last year for most of the large cars. But already the handwriting is on the wall — buyers themselves are turning their backs on the gas guzzlers. On to the proof.

Of the top 10 cars in terms of production for calendar year 1976, only two are classified as big cars — Chevrolet and Buick. If you narrow the list to the top five you won't find a single big car on it. Chevrolet ranks sixth and Buick eighth.

What's the hottest car on the market right now? The Cutlass, the intermediate built by Oldsmobile. With the week ending July 17, 306,489 of them had been built this year. But while Cutlass held the top spot it was being hotly pursued by two relative newcomers, Ford's Granada and Plymouth's Volare. Granada's production for the same time period was 260,886, while Volare's was 238,571.

This was one time Chrysler Corp. really hit it on the nose in judging what the market wants. Not only was its Volare number three in production, but Volare's brother, the Dodge Aspen, was ninth with a production figure of 179,802. These two models made up a total of 418,373 cars out of Chrysler's overall production figure of 728,956 vehicles.

What about the rest of the Big Ten? Number four honors went to Chevrolet's Nova (207,234), number five to Chevrolet's Monte Carlo (202,502), number seven to Buick's Century (181,179) and number 10 to Chevrolet's Chevelle (178,827). Production figures for the big Chevrolet and Buick were 198,740 and 180,558, respectively.

There's no question that the Chevrolet nameplate continues to dominate car sales regardless of the size of the vehicles. Total up production for the big Chevy, the Nova, the Monte Carlo and the Chevelle and you come up with a dazzling 787,733, nearly 40 per cent of General Motors overall output.

A nostalgic look at antique car owner manuals can be fascinating reading. These are some of the instructions from the manual for the curved-dash Oldsmobile of 1902:

"Never fill the gasoline reservoir by lamplight."

"Keep this book in the tool box. A new copy will not be furnished unless a satisfactory explanation is given."

"Don't drive 100 miles the first day. You wouldn't drive a green horse 10 miles till you were acquainted with him."

Do you know more about a gasoline motor than you do a horse?"

A preview of what tomorrow's taxis may look like is available at the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The front-wheel drive van-style vehicle built by Alfa Romeo offers exceptional visibility for driver and passengers and easy accessibility.

A wide rubber belt encircling the lower body safeguards the car from damage caused by minor collisions and reduces maintenance costs.

The passenger compartment accommodates three people in a rear forward-facing seat. Two more can sit on folding seats facing the rear. The seats are anatomically designed and when the vehicle is at a standstill, they are relatively firm. In motion they become more comfortable as their flexibility is more effective with speed. A sliding door on the curb side leaves the door opening free even in the most confined parking situations. A retractable ramp under the floor can be pulled out to provide easy entry and exit for baby carriages and wheelchairs.

The Federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) has named three manufacturers to design a four-passenger electric car for urban driving. Designs are due about the end of the year with one test vehicle to be built within 30 months. ERDA is looking for a car with a top speed of 50 mph and a maximum range of 75 miles between battery charges.

Delray Lodge opens season

"Back to School" was the theme of the monthly meeting of Delray Rebekah Lodge 796 held last week at the Odd Fellows Hall in Madison.

All the members dressed in a school day attire for the business session and social evening.

Noble Grand Zelma Finch presided and announced the annual dinner by the Madison members will be held at the hall on Sept. 24. She added a wedding reception will be held this Sunday to honor Mr. and Mrs. Harvey House at the VFW Hall. Mrs. Fern House is a member of the lodge.

Linda Butts directed the games and awarded prizes to the winners and Lydia Henderson was in charge of the refreshments.

Others attending were Clara Mize, Virginia Campbell, Emily David and Clara Dipple of St. Clair Lodge, Agnes Meng of Granite City and Lucille Veach, Opal Voss, Marie Ziegler, Ruth Hannebrink, Edith Carpenter, Altha Lassen, Helen Barbeau, Hazel Wheeler, Elsie Vance, Pearl Wood, Loretta Robinson, Daisy Burnett, Thelma Stockton, Leo Mae Salmon, Verna Willman, Betty Applegate, Virginia Burris, and Marjorie Lewis.

Star Recorder night observed

Women of the Moose observed Star Recorder night at a meeting conducted last week at the Moose Hall by Senior Regent Vernie Von Nida.

During the meeting a ritual practice was held and Rosella Mead was installed as sentinel by Marian Lipscomb. A new member was accepted and will be initiated at a later session.

Liz Schrader announced anyone interested in joining the chapter Kitchen Band is to attend a meeting at the lodge on Monday, Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m.

The secretaries reported submitted by Edna Miller and letters from sunshine children at Moose Heart were read during the meeting.

Prizes were awarded during the social hour to Irene Kozma, Elsie Quinlan and Sara Gusewell. Refreshments were served to 36 members.

Richard Nashs mark 25th year

Mr. and Mrs. Richard (Betty) Nash, 316 Highway 203, Madison, were honored on their 25th wedding anniversary at a barbecue dinner given by their family at Wilson Park.

A three-tier wedding cake was served after the meal. Many gifts were presented to the honorees.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Nash's sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Curt (Joyce) Cullum of Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Larry (Zella) Arnel of Washington Park, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph (Barbara) Whitehead of Granite City and Mr. and Mrs. William (Dorothy) Elmore of Waynesville, Mo.

Also at the barbecue were the couple's four grandchildren, their son, Paul Nash of Madison, and Mrs. Joyce Howard of Madison, Mrs. Nash's mother.

Mrs. Alice Briner and daughter, Wendy, have returned to their home in Camden, Ark. They were visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith of Lake Drive.

Revival services closed Sunday at the Cedar View General Baptist Church on Ruth Drive Sunday evening. Guest speakers were the Rev. Frank Rogers, the Rev. Donald Clark of Mount Zion Church, the Rev. Jerry Hart of the Gray Ridge Church, Sikeston, Mo., and the Rev. Rudolph Hickerson, pastor of the local church.

MISSIONARY GROUP HOLDS INSTALLATION
The Cedar View General Baptist Church held an installation service for the Women's Missionary Society. The pastor, the Rev. Rudolph Hickerson, presided as officers for the new year were presented.

They are: president, Mrs. Alma Koller; vice president, Mrs. Jennie Hickerson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Paul Dickerson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Arita Reynolds; prayer chairman, Mrs. Loea Polley; love gift inspiration chairman, Mrs. Judy Gaines; spiritual life chairman, Mrs. Judy Gaines; and youth sponsors, Guild Girls Chris Williams, Herald Virginia Vollman and Jewels Debbie Thompson.

The theme used was "Letting your light shine." As each officer was presented, she turned on a light in a darkened room.

Mrs. Laura B. Benson had as weekend guests Mr. and Mrs. Wagner and son of Louisville, Ky.

TUCKER REUNION
The Tucker cousins' annual reunion was held Sunday at Fort Chartres State Park. The theme used was "let us celebrate our country's birthday."

The table was centered with a large cake made as a flag, baked by Mrs. Barbara Glowacki of Granite City.

Various picnic games were played and prizes were given to Thomas Martin, Tina Starkey, Willard Tucker and Paul Johnson.

Among the 125 in this area were Mrs. Max Dalton and daughter, Beverly, of Sterling Heights, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Tucker and infant daughter, Chester and Norman White of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fox.

Mrs. Joe Fox and daughter, Janet, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hudson and son, John Mark, Jerry Nickels, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Glowacki, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dye of Granite City.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Tucker and Mrs. Virginia Trebling of Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Don Byrd and family of Bunker Hill, Mrs. Mildred Dorch of Carlville, Mrs. Lucille Miller of Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Johnson and family of Sparta, Marcia, Quint, Susan and Lynnette Starkey of Marquand, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Wylie Tucker and Kathy of Des Arc, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. Bert Tucker and family of Marquand, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tucker of Webster Groves, Genar Tucker of Memphis, Tenn.

HOME FROM IOWA
Mrs. Mamie Elmore of Douglas Place has returned home from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where she spent the summer visiting Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boyle. The Boyles accompanied her home for a visit.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM CARR whose wedding was solemnized at Grace Baptist Church. Formerly Miss Kathy Wilson, the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilson, 15 Victoria Drive.

Miss Kathy Wilson wed in evening ceremony

Grace Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding on July 31 of Miss Kathy Wilson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilson, 15 Victoria Drive and William Carr, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carr, 2146 Bern Ave.

Prior to the ceremony Linda Bennett sang, "Follow Me," "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The Rev. Vernon Covington officiated at the double ring service at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Wilson, wore a full length white reembodying organza gown featuring a molded bodice with a square neckline, bordered with a gathered ruffle and short puff sleeves with a wide lace cuff.

A panel of tiered lace ruffles accented the front of the princess style dress and edged the skirt and attached chapel train.

A Chantilly lace picture hat with a veil of illusion attached was worn by the bride. She carried a bouquet of daisies, yellow roses and blue baby's breath.

The attendants, Miss Linda Bennett, Mrs. Debbie Vincent, a sister of the bride, Miss Sue Elmore, Miss Cindy Wilson, another sister of the bride, Miss Marilyn Reynolds, Miss Angie Moore and junior bridesmaids Miss Paty Whitehead and Miss Tammy Hays were gowned alike.

Their floor length gowns were fashioned of blue nylon organza with high necklines, sheer yokes, short sleeves and ruffled skirts enhanced with white lace. Each held arrangements of blue and white carnations, baby's breath and white daisies. The flower girl, Jenny Hays, also wore a blue frock and carried a basket of blue and white blossoms.

Gary Kercher served as the ringbearer.

Ray Fyalaka attended the groom as best man. Groomsmen and ushers included Roger Lane, Keith Lucas, Mike Hooper, Tony Hollaway, Bill Dickerson, Skip Whitehead and Scott Hahn.

A reception was given after the wedding at the Long Lake Fireman's Hall.

The newly married couple are now residing at 3801 Lake Drive.

Nameoki church plan programs

The Nameoki United Presbyterian Church, 1700 Pontoon Road, will begin a new series of sermons on the topic, "You Can Overcome" with an extended subject each Sunday beginning with "Discouragement" on Sunday, according to the Rev. Don Pierson, pastor.

"Loneliness," "Your Fear" and "Trouble" will be discussed on Sept. 12, 19, and 26 and on Oct. 3 the congregation will participate in world wide communion and study "Your Past."

The pastor also announced a program on christian education in a small church is planned for 2:08 p.m. on Sept. 19 at the Zion Presbyterian Church, Fosterburg. Those attending are to bring a sack lunch and topics to be discussed will include, lesson planning, creative activities, adult christian education, parents, religious educators, church education administration and youth leaders.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN ROZYCKI whose wedding took place at St. Elizabeth Catholic Church. The bride is the former Jane Marie Gabriel, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robert Gabriel, 3656 Terrace Lane.

Jane M. Gabriel weds John Michael Rozycki

Miss Jane Marie Gabriel, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robert Gabriel, 3656 Terrace Lane and John Michael Rozycki, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rozycki, 1701 Elizabeth St., Madison, were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony on Aug. 14, at St. Elizabeth Catholic Church.

Brass urns of yellow gladioli, white daisies, baby's breath and greenery adorned the altar flanked by brass candelabra holding burning tapers to provide the setting for the double ring ceremony at 2 p.m. performed by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Lawrence Mattingly.

Escorted by her father down the white carpeted aisle, decorated with triple light candelabra entwined with smilax and tall yellow tapers, the bride wore a full length gown of white silk organza.

The fitted bodice of Venise lace featured a duchess neckline, Empire waistline and long bishop sleeves accented with lace motifs and caught at the wrists with a gathered ruffle.

Lace appliques enhanced the A-line skirt which was encircled with an Embroidered flounce at the hemline and formed the chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of white silk illusion was bordered with a band of matching lace and secured to a Juliet headpiece of lace and seed pearls.

She carried a cascade of yellow roses, stephanotis, white carnations, intermingled with baby's breath and foliage.

Mrs. Mary Baker and Mrs. Barbara Schmitz sang, "Sunrise, Sunset," "The Wedding Song," "Ave Maria," "The Lord's Prayer," "Love Is" and "Follow Me," accompanied by Alan Bogovich at the organ.

Miss Mina Tarpoff served as maid of honor with bridesmaids Miss Karen Gabriel, a sister of the bride, and Miss Victoria Mertz.

They chose voile floor length gowns designed with shirred yellow and white striped fabric bodices and A-line skirts in solid yellow, complemented with yellow capes.

Each wore a natural straw hat enhanced with fresh daisies and baby's breath and they held colonial bouquets of yellow roses, white daisies, baby's breath and variegated foliage.

Angela Rozycki, junior bridesmaid and Lisa Kult the flower girl, niece of the groom, were dressed in frocks identical to the bridesmaids. They wore headpieces of daisies and baby's breath and carried small bouquets.

Robert Nichols attended the groom as best man. Wayne Martin, a cousin of the groom and Francis Rozycki, the groom's brother, served as groomsmen.

Darren Jankowski, a nephew of the groom, was the ringbearer.

Escorting the guests to their seats were Duwayne Dickerson and Earl Schullinger.

Mrs. Gabriel, mother of the bride, selected a maize ribboned knit Empire gown fashioned with a high neckline and worn with a long sleeved jacket trimmed with pearls. She wore a corsage of yellow roses and baby's breath.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Rozycki, was attired in a full length sleeveless gown of apricot chiffon over taffeta created with a V-neckline and cape-sleeve effect. Her corsage was of white roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Beth Fiedler, a sister of the bride, presided over the guest book at a reception held at the Croatian Home in Madison. The rehearsal dinner was held in the home of the groom's parents.

Both young people graduated from Granite City High School. The bride also graduated from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and is employed at the Family Thoughtfulness Center.

The groom is a graduate of Rankin Technical Institute and is working for Missouri Pacific Railroad, St. Louis.

They are residing in Granite City.

Apostolic Church hosts wiener roast

A wiener roast was held Thursday evening at the Apostolic Church, 224 State St., Madison, for the church members and guests.

Plans for forthcoming fund games were played followed by a song fest held in the church auditorium.

Plans for forthcoming evening were announced by Nettie Fulkerson, youth leader, and the dismissal prayer was offered by the Rev. Grace Sparks, pastor.

Area commander visits Amvets 51

Amvets Division 5 commander Jim King of Mount Vernon was a guest last week at the August meeting of Amvets Post 51, held in the clubhouse at 5100 Lakeside Drive.

Also a special guest was Kenneth Hall, vice commander of Divisions 3, 4 and 5.

King discussed improving membership, rostering and updating recruitment procedures. He reported an award will be offered by Division 5 to any post attaining or surpassing 85 percent membership renewal for the 1977 term.

He also invited all members of Post 51 to attend the annual picnic of Mount Vernon Post 4 on Saturday.

Leo Clements, Post 51 commander, presided and announced Amvets Day will be celebrated Sept. 11 at the Post 51 clubhouse. A work party of volunteers was formed to prepare the club grounds for the event.

The commander reported a permanent bartender has been hired to serve Amvets members and their guests on Friday and Saturday evenings. Volunteer bartenders will continue to operate the clubroom on Sundays, he advised.

In other business, Clements was authorized to purchase a new freezer for the post home. Rex Manning was awarded a prize and refreshments were served by the Amvets Auxiliary to 12 members. Mrs. Charlene Sanders was in charge of the serving committee.

Xi Epsilon Chi opens season

Xi Epsilon Chi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, met Monday night in the home of Mrs. Carol Cathey, 4113 Maryville Road, to discuss and plan projects and programs for the forthcoming year.

Chapter president Mrs. Cathey presided at the session and introduced Lea Gesell, field division chairman for Beta Sigma International in Kansas City, Mo.

She spoke on holding a rush party for several ritual of jewel chapters in this area and also a pledge ritual ceremony at the Collinsville Holiday Inn. Tentative dates were discussed for September with a final date to be announced later.

Others present included Joan Pritchard, Donna Lane, Phyllis Kubelka, Barbara Jones, Marilyn Lumpkins, Kathy Farnback and Barbara Hente.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT NEEL. They were married in an early evening ceremony at the Community Heights Assembly of God Church. Formerly Miss Nanette Waddell, the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Rod Waddell, 11 Victoria Drive.

Nanette Waddell and Robert Neel are wed

Miss Nanette Waddell, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Rod Waddell, 11 Victoria Drive and Robert W. S. Neel, a son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Neel of Naperville, exchanged wedding vows at 5 o'clock in the evening of Aug. 21 at the Community Heights Assembly of God Church.

The Rev. Jeffrey Smith performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with bouquets of lilac flowers intermingled with greenery.

Organist Mark Cox accompanied Roy Boyer as he sang, "I Honestly Love You" and "Walk Thru This World With Me."

Kathy Boyce attended the guest book at a reception held immediately following the service at the Travelodge.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a long white satin gown featuring a high stand up collar and Empire waistline accented with nylon lace on the bodice, cuffs of the long sheer sleeves and at the hemline of the full skirt.

She wore a mantilla veil bordered in Chantilly lace and she held a bouquet of lilac and white carnations.

Formal length beige gowns enhanced with an antique lace trim were worn by the attendants. They carried bouquets similar to the bridal bouquet.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Sue Skelink. Patricia Waddell, a sister of the bride, Miss Leslie Large and Miss Debbie Redding were bridesmaids.

Attending the groom as best man was Randy Waddell, a brother of the bride. Mike Waddell, another brother of the bride, Rick Taylor, Lou and Alan Neel, brothers of the groom and Steve Gardner completed the corps of groomsmen and ushers.

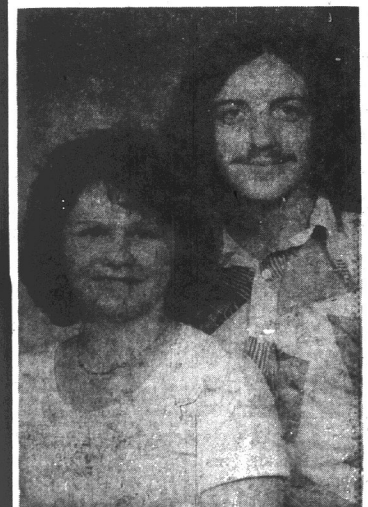

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Waddell selected an aqua and beige floral print polyester gown. The groom's mother, Mrs. Neel was attired in a long blue print dress with long sleeves. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

Mr. and Mrs. Waddell hosted the rehearsal dinner in their home.

The newly married couple are now residing in Lockport, Ill. following a wedding trip to Chicago.

The bride is a graduate of Granite City High School North and her husband is a Romeoville (Ill.) High School graduate. He is employed by Illico Corp. of Chicago.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. James L. Nichols, Lockport, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Waddell, Mr. and Mrs. James Dover, Mrs. Leona Morse, all of Poplar Bluff, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Brody, Mountain Home, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Mike Ozick, Sandy Jones, Mrs. Bernice Bryce and daughter Marilyn, all of Bolingbrook, Ill., Dave Green, Romeoville, Ill., Will P. Clerk, Chicago, Isabelle Dickson, Tulsa, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Richardson, Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Archer of Union, Mo.

ENGAGED. Miss Mary Walker and Jeffrey M. Rose whose engagement is being announced by her parents, Mrs. Alberta Haynes, 2110a Delmar Ave. and Francis Walker of Malden, Mo. Wedding plans are indefinite at the present time.

Rose-Walker betrothal told

The engagement of Miss Mary Walker and Jeffrey M. Rose is being announced by her parents, Mrs. Alberta Haynes, 2110a Delmar Ave. and Francis Walker of Malden, Mo.

Parents of the groom are Mrs. Doris Rose, 3127 Delmar Ave. and Marvin Rose, of Fairview Heights.

Miss Walker is a graduate of Granite City High School South and is employed at the Reserve Office Force.

Her fiancé is an Edwardsville High School graduate and will attend Bailey Technical Institute beginning with the September term.

Wedding plans are indefinite at the present time.

Scheller-Durer wedding at St. Mark's Church

In a ceremony at St. Mark's Catholic Church in Venice, Miss Linda Durer and Bruce Scheller exchanged their marriage vows on July 31, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Father John O'Connell, was the celebrant of the mass and performed the double ring ceremony. The altar was enhanced by floral sprays of yellow and white Killon daisies. White satin bows marked the aisle chairs.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Durer, Jr. of Glen Carbon, formerly of Venice. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill J. Scheller of St. Louis.

Music was furnished by Lynn Swanson, Elaine Swanson, Dave Nolan, and Patrick Foley, guitarists.

Selections included "Time in a Bottle", "If", "Sunrise, Sunset", "For Baby", "Annie's Song", "And I Love Her", "The Wedding Song", "Morning Has Broken", and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride chose a gown of white organza and Venice lace. The scoop neckline bodice and short sleeves were accented with French imported Venice lace. From a fitted waist, a full skirt fell gracefully to the floor with accents of the same lace throughout the skirt and attached train. She wore a white illusion veil with matching lace. Her colonial style bouquet included white roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

Miss Maria Brawley was maid of honor. The bridesmaids, Faith Durer, sister of the bride, and Jane Kratochvil, cousin of the groom, were flower girls. They were dressed alike in sleeveless mint green and white printed dresses featuring a square neckline. The bridesmaids and junior bridesmaid carried white and yellow daisies with baby's breath. The flower girls carried wicker baskets filled with the same flowers.

The groom selected Bill Kelling as his best man. Serving as groomsmen were Dan Meyer, Gary Bathon, Brian Hoff, John Martin, and Keith Greising. Fred Durer, the bride's brother, served as junior groomsman. Seating the guests were Rob Smallwood, the groom's brother-in-law, and Rich Royce, the bride's cousin. Mothers of the bride and groom wore white roses and stephanotis corsages. Mrs. Durer chose a sleeveless light pink polyester gown with a long sleeve jacket. Mrs. Scheller chose a sleeveless apricot polyester dress with a matching floral long sleeve jacket.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at their home, and a reception was held at St. Jude's Hall in Spanish Lake, Mo.

Sandy Zarlingo, the bride's cousin, presided over the guest book. The former Miss Durer is a 1972 Venice High School graduate and received her bachelor's degree in business administration in 1975 from Southeast Missouri University in Cape Girardeau. She is employed as an executive secretary with the St. Louis Area Council, Boy Scouts of America. The bridegroom was graduated in 1971 from Lutheran High School North and from Southeast Missouri University with a bachelor's degree in computer science. He is employed as a systems analyst at McDonnell Douglas Corp. in St. Louis. After a honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands, the couple is residing in St. Louis.

Barber Shop contest set

The Collinsville Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America Inc., will host the Area Barbershopper contest at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 11, at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 1267 N. 37th St., Belleville, according to Robert Tipton, chapter officer.

Participating choruses will be from Collinsville, St. Charles, Belleville, St. Louis, Florissant, St. Louis Suburban and Flat River, Mo. Quartets who will take part in the event are "The Improbables," "Tonal Com-mittment," "Inter-State Music Co.," "Tri-Towners," "Implied Harmony," "Gas Light Squires," "Bi-Staters," and "Blondaires."

Tickets costing $2.50 per person are available from all chapter members including Waterloo and Alton, Tipton added. An afterglow will be held following the contest at Augustine's Restaurant, 1200 Centerville Ave., Belleville. Those planning on attending will be admitted for $2 with a show stub and $2.50 for those without a show stub. Tipton reports.

Y Seniors change birthday event

The Rev. Eugene Cope was guest speaker at the Tri-City Area YMCA Senior Citizens' potluck dinner meeting last week at the YMCA. He was introduced by Mrs. Lucille Pierce.

Games were played and, in short business session, the group elected to hold its birthday celebration party at the second business meeting of each month. Persons having birthdays in September were reminded to bring a cake on the new date.

It was announced that different items, hand made by the YMCA seniors, are again displayed in the "Y" lobby and may be purchased.

Among those having the noon dinner were Mae Findley,

Altar Society plans bazaar

The annual Christmas Bazaar set for Nov. 6 and 7, was the main topic of discussion at a meeting Monday of St. Elizabeth Altar Society held in the school cafeteria.

Mrs. Mary Blankenship, president, presided at the session attended by 50 members. She announced a Day of Recollection is being planned for the women of the parish this fall and a final date will be announced at the next meeting.

Mrs. Jean Ehlert introduced Mrs. Ellen Ehlert, chairman of the Church Women United Layette Committee, who accepted many useful baby items donated by the members of the society.

The Madonna gift and membership prize was won by Mrs. Pat Niles and Mrs. Frances Bury.

A luncheon featuring a variety of gelatin salads and cookies was served by the mothers of the seventh grade students from tables decorated in a baby shower theme.

Mrs. Vivian Byers directed the games after the meeting. Mrs. Blankenship reported the Sept. 28 meeting will be hosted by the second and fourth grade mothers with Barbara Collins and Joan Auchenbach as co-chairmen, and will also be the annual nun's pantry shower.

North Band Parents plans first meeting

The Granite City High School North Band Parents will hold its first meeting for the 1976-77 school year at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 7, in the school library. It was announced today by Harold Stoker, president and Robert Todoroff, band director.

Stoker reports the meeting agenda will include plans to be discussed for the band to play at school functions and its annual holiday concerts, as well as activities of the newly formed Rifle and Flag Squads.

A review of the programs offered at summer camps in Tennessee and Indiana, which was attended by several band students, will be presented at the meeting, the president added.

Additives not always villain

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY, Registered Dietitian

Additives have been used with foods to preserve their freshness and prolong their use since it was discovered, centuries ago, that salt added to fresh meat increased both keeping qualities and flavor. We have come a long way since those early days and food additives are used widely and for many reasons. Although they are categorically maligned by "natural" food practitioners, not all additives are bad. One advantage they provide is to enable us to eat a wide variety of foods that can provide a highly nutritious diet when the fresh foods are out of season or prohibitively expensive. Without additives to protect and enhance, cookies would crumble, fats and oils would become rancid, cheeses would separate, fruits and vegetables would rot and meat would spoil. The vast array of foods readily available at our beautiful supermarkets is kept fresh and edible through the use of food additives. Are there risks in this utopian development? Apparently so and many additives are now under government investigation. Food additives are defined as "substances, or mixtures of substances other than a basic foodstuff which are present in a food as a result of any aspect of production processing, storage or packaging." Intentional or direct additives are those that have become part of the food product. These include pesticide residues or substances like PVC (polyvinyl chloride) that can go into the food from the package or wrapping. "GRAS" is an acronym for generally recognized as safe, and covers substances that are not legally considered as additives and need not have Food and Drug Administration clearance. Sodium chloride (salt) is one of these. Nitrates and nitrites are natural compounds found in vegetables and drinking water. Nitrates are being phased out as a food additive, but nitrites remain. They are used to cure ham, bacon, frankfurters and luncheon meats to inhibit development of botulism toxins. They impart a typical pink color. The problem is that nitrites, combined with amines to form nitroamines, can cause cancer in animals. Its effect on humans is unknown. Certain antibiotics used to increase the weight of food-producing animals have produced antibiotic residues that may produce allergic reactions, or worse, contribute to the development of antibiotic-resistant bacteria. The FDA limits the use of antibiotics in animals and requires that they be provided value or prescribed by a veterinarian. Food additives, used properly after thorough investigation, extend nutritive values, shelf life, and make available greater quantities of food supplies. It is senseless to label all preservatives and additives as bad and develop neurotic fears that could prevent improving foods and increasing nutrition. Dear Shirley, Do herbs and spices add calories? Mrs. J. W. Dear Mrs. J. W., No, they do not add calories, only flavor.

Dear Shirley, Which is better for you, butter or margarine? Mr. A. N. P. Dear Mr. A. N. P., The calories are the same. I suggest corn oil or safflower oil margarine, because they are higher in polyunsaturated fatty acids, and lower in cholesterol.

Use colorful scraps to 'skirt' flowerpots

By BETTY W. KINSER

Tips on leftovers: Use scraps of gingham, ribbon and ruffling to make little skirts for your flowerpots. Or cut patchwork pieces from fabric and glue to pot. Coat with sealer to prevent soiling. Of course, if you have my luck with plants, you don't need any pots. I can look at an artificial flower and have it will right before my eyes.

If you need to know the percentage of stretch in a particular knit, Audrey Hilderbrand has a tip for you: "Fold back the cut edge of the knit. Measure 10 inches of this fold on a yardstick. Hold the fold with one hand; stretch the fold with the other. If it stretches to 12 inches, it has 25 per cent stretch. If it stretches to 15 inches it has 50 per cent. If it has more than 50 per cent stretch, it will require a specialized pattern and fitting."

Great invention, the metal skirt hooks. No longer do we have to make a buttonhole on the waistband, or sew on unpleasant hook-eyes, or hope for the best with a large snap. Now, we have efficient little metal hook-loops that sew on in a jiffy and stay put forever. Unless you buy the type that has very sharp edges on the little holes where the threads go, it takes only a few minutes of fastening and unfastening to cut the threads. Resewing and resewing does not help (unless you use baling wire).

So, watch what you buy and stay away from the ones that have the sharp edges.

Picnic time means time to figure out how to keep the tablecloth on the picnic table in a high wind. Here is an idea that is not only easy to put together, but will work on any table.

Fold an inexpensive cloth napkin in half to make a triangle. Stitch one triangle into each corner of the tablecloth, forming a pocket. Place the cloth on the table, then put a rock in each pocket. Be sure the rocks are equal in weight or your tablecloth will slide off the end!

Here's a nifty trick for those knit sleeves. When making the ease stitching, make only one row, placing it slightly inside the seamline (not quite to one-half inch, but not on the five-eighths inch). Start at the side seam and stitch in a regular construction stitch to the notch. Change your stitch length to a basting stitch. Baste to the opposite notch. Change your stitch to a regular stitch and continue stitching to the other side seam. This method will require very little "pulling" of the ease stitching, but if some is needed, pull from the shoulder line, working the ease in both directions. Distribute ease all around sleeve, not just from notch to top. The regular stitching from notch to side seam not only helps ease in fullness, but gives added strength at this point of strain.

Local artist exhibits work

A local artist, Barbara Premier Thoeke, is currently being honored with art exhibits at two major regional art displays.

A bowl creation by Mrs. Thoeke is among 34 pieces now being shown at the Craft Alliance Gallery, St. Louis in a show entitled "East of Caly."

The competition was open to artists and potters working within a 100-mile radius of St. Louis, chosen on a functional and sculptural basis.

Other art items of the local artist will also be included in a regional potters' exhibit at the Earthwares Gallery in Clayton, during September which will feature 16 other artists.

Mrs. Thoeke lives and has her studio in Mitchell and works primarily in functional stoneware.

Dinner honors John H. Stanek

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stanek, 2801 Jordan Ave., celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary last week at a small dinner given in their honor at Charlie's Restaurant.

The couple was married Aug. 24, 1931, at St. Patrick's Church in Decatur.

Among those present were the honoree's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Havron and children, Kim and Denise.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Stanek, Mrs. Meta Rice, Mrs. Nora Callis and the Rev. Gerald Griffin, pastor of St. Aloysius Church in Lit-chfield.

Tharp-Smith engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Norman P. Smith of Rantoul, Ill., are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Miss Susan Rae Smith to Albert Vernon Tharp.

The couple have selected Sept. 18 for their wedding which will be solemnized at the First United Presbyterian Church in Urbana.

Miss Smith is a 1971 graduate of Rantoul High School and attended the University of Alabama and Parkland College. She is employed as a travel consultant at Carter's Travel Service in Urbana.

The prospective groom, a son of Mrs. Austin Witter of Granite City and the late Vernon C. Tharp, is a 1973 graduate of Granite City High School. He attended Eastern Illinois University and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and received his bachelor of arts in economics from the University of Illinois. He also received his masters in business administration in 1976 from the University of Illinois, and is an internal auditor with International Harvester based out of Chicago.

TO MARRY, Miss Susan Rae Smith and Albert Vernon Tharp whose engagement and plans for a Sept. 18 wedding are being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman P. Smith of Rantoul, Ill.

YOUR MONEY

How to send cash abroad

By JUDITH G. RHOADES

Q. Our 19-year-old son will be traveling abroad soon. He is the first one in our family who has ever traveled anywhere. Suppose he needs extra money. How can we send it so we know it will arrive? — Golden, Colo.

A. There are four agencies which are in the business of transferring money. Individuals may send money through the U.S. Post Office, Western Union, The American Express Co. or a bank. The two one can use overseas with the most ease are American Express or a bank. American Express states that it has the capacity to complete a money transfer within 24 hours. Your son would have to go to the American Express office to receive the money which will be given to him in traveler's checks. American Express cannot transfer cash. Obviously, you will have to check with American Express to see if they have an office in the city your son is visiting. All banks provide domestic and overseas services. Your bank may transfer money by means of a phone call. It might be necessary for you to fill out a short form stating when the money is to be sent and to whom. Your bank may also be able to arrange for your son to cash personal checks at various banks throughout his itinerary. This is done by issuing a letter of introduction. The letter is written on bank stationery and is signed by an officer. Though such a letter is not binding upon another bank and does not recommend a credit limit, most bankers will allow letter holders to cash personal checks not exceeding $300. It might be possible to also arrange with your bank to send your son money in the form of remittances addressed to banks or travel agencies along his route. Whichever method you decide to use to send money will depend, of course, on your particular situation.

NEW OFFICERS of Granite City Steel Women's Association plan programs and the schedule of meetings for the association's new year. Standing is Treasurer Ruby Streblor. Seated left to right are President Jane Lebarger, Vice President Wanda MacDonald, Recording Secretary Doris Fox and Corresponding Secretary Jo Ann Bauer. The group meets monthly, September through June.

GC Steel women to begin new year

A new slate of officers has been elected by the Granite City Steel Women's Association to take office at the first 1976-77 meeting on Sept. 14.

The association includes about 120 members who meet on the second Tuesday of each month, September through June.

Jane Lebarger, 1920 Primrose Ave., is the group's new president.

Other new officers are: Wanda MacDonald, 3153 Aubrey Ave., vice president; Ruby Streblor, 2474 Iowa St., treasurer; Doris Fox, 2577 Lynch Ave., recording secretary; and Jo Ann Bauer, Glen Graben, corresponding secretary.

President Lebarger reports that program planning has been under way for several weeks. Mrs. MacDonald is also program director. Plans have been outlined for the entire year, and commitments have been obtained from many of those who are being asked to appear. The September meeting will feature Bernice Meyer, Highland. She will present "The History of Dolls."

SIGHTLESS SUNDAY

AT NATIONAL SHRINE

Sightless Sunday at the National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows has been set for Sunday, Fr. Boniface L. Wittenrich, executive director of Radio Information Service, will be the main celebrant at the 10 a.m. Mass and will deliver the homily at the 11:30 Mass. Both liturgies will be celebrated at the Shrine's outdoor amphitheater.

Sightless Sunday is an annual event in which the blind and the handicapped are invited to share in the morning liturgy. Scripture readings will be taken from Braille texts and will be read by members of the community.

Research proposals awaited

The National Science Foundation has published new guidelines for the Undergraduate Research Participation Program.

John Rodman, director of the Office of Research and Projects at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, says the program is designed to provide support to colleges and universities to enable them to bring into their research activities appropriately qualified and talented undergraduate students.

The objective is to provide experience through participation in research that would enable undergraduate students to learn what the research process is like, Rodman said.

There are two types of projects: research participation in academic institutions where undergraduates work directly with faculty members in ongoing research projects at the grantee institution, and industrial research participation where opportunities are provided for undergraduates to become acquainted with research attitudes in an industrial laboratory.

Undergraduate research programs in an industrial environment must be arranged and managed by a science faculty member from a baccalaureate-granting institution.

The deadline for receipt of new proposals is Sept. 10. Additional information concerning these programs and other programs supported by SIUE may be obtained by contacting the Office of Research and Projects as the local university. The office is located in the John S. Rodman building at SIUE.

Lindberg sees role as a 'financial policeman'

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer
Illinois State Comptroller George W. Lindberg, the Republican candidate for re-election, describes himself as a "financial policeman of the state" and defends his quest for added functions in his office, including the ability to pre-audit all state vouchers before payment.

"I believe a person should not depend on those whose ax is getting gored for one's actions, such as Mayor Daley of Chicago in the case of my recent decision regarding releasing state funds to Cook County," Lindberg stated.

Lindberg, a former state legislator from Crystal Lake, is the state's first comptroller, the budget surveillance office set up by Illinois' 1970 constitution.

During an interview at the Press-Record, the incumbent received a report from an aide that Michael J. Bakalis, his Democratic opponent, had declined to accept a challenge to debate. The challenge had been issued by Lindberg last week.

"I don't think he wants to take the risk of a face-to-face debate, as he knows little about state finances," Lindberg said after learning of the reported refusal.

"Bakalis says things irrelevant to this office, and I would like to pull him into my arena," the incumbent admitted.

"As superintendent of OSPI (Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction), he took no interest in fiscal problems and the financial management of OSPI."

"Problems there weren't solved until he left the office and a new appointment was made," he contended.

Although the incumbent, Lindberg referred to himself as the "underdog" in his re-election bid.

"Every Republican starts out losing an election because of the Democratic administration in Illinois. But it just makes me try harder, being Number 2," he added.

Going back to his opponent's background, Lindberg commented, "Mike sought the OSPI office when it became appointive and the Illinois Association of School Administrators refused to endorse him by a vote of 199 to 24 in October 1974. That should say something."

Lindberg said his charges against Bakalis' management of OSPI financial affairs were based on audit reports he has gathered from data provided by the Office of Auditor General.

A comparative analysis of Bakalis' administration of OSPI and Lindberg's administration of the comptroller's office was furnished the Press-Record.

"Bakalis talks in generalities and is inaccurate," Lindberg charged. "He says that if elected he will eliminate 49 funds which he identifies as useless and unnecessary."

"Obviously, he doesn't realize we have already eliminated 72 funds and that is all we can eliminate without legislative action," Lindberg said.

"Bakalis says he would eliminate 400 patronage jobs in the comptroller's office. I wonder if he is including the 90 appointed by Michael Howlett. At least 25 per cent (employees) are covered by the Personnel Code."

"Of my refusal to release the $18 million last week to Cook County schools, which of course includes Chicago. Bakalis called it a 'crass political play' by me."

"I asked how he would have handled the issue and he replied that he would never have raised it at all."

"Of course, Bakalis was hand-picked by Daley, and Chicago is involved and must pay."

"The funds must be paid in one year instead of three, which is giving Mayor Daley a problem," Lindberg said.

Commenting about his 15-point program contained in a proposal to the Illinois General Assembly, June, Lindberg said it was prepared to "get the state through the fiscal crisis this year and next without a tax increase to Illinois taxpayers."

"This proposal to avoid new taxes through fiscal year 1978 and beyond has received the unrestrained endorsement of Governor Walker, Secretary of State Howlett, Jim Thompson (GOP gubernatorial candidate) and many legislators," Lindberg said.

"In the 3 1/2 years since we have come into this office, literally nothing financial moves without it coming through this office," the comptroller said.

"Most of the time, before an agency cuts a voucher, if there is any question involved it (the agency) will call and check with us first. In this way, I consider myself the financial policeman of the state."

"As late as November 1975," the incumbent continued, "Bakalis stated in an interview published in Suburban Weekly that there were two offices in the state which he never would seek—one was attorney general, because he is not a lawyer, and the other was state comptroller."

"Yet, one week later he announced for comptroller, after he was hand-picked by Mayor Daley."

"This far in the campaign, he has been skirting the critical issue of controlling state spending in favor of any trumped-up voter appeal issue he can grasp—no matter how unrelated and irrelevant it is to the comptroller's race," Lindberg contended.

"On those rare occasions when he does address himself to the issues, he is usually either inaccurate or unconstitutional."

"I personally find this gimmicky to be insulting to the voters and indicative of his irresponsible and political approach to the comptroller's office."

"The fact is," Lindberg charged, "Bakalis has never indicated any interest or ability at financial management."

Financial management is the essence of the comptroller's function.

"The comptroller must pay out and account for $60 million from the state treasury every working day."

"Bakalis' OSPI office was criticized for not being able to keep attendance and vacation records properly."

Lindberg defended his quest to pre-audit all state vouchers

before payment, noting that although passed by the legislature a year ago, the bill was vetoed by the governor.

The legislation was blocked this spring by Chicago Democrats and others claiming the possibility of "abuses," he added.

"The main issue before the Illinois voters is balancing the state budget. And, because of the fiscal ability this requires, I will continue to speak out against 'Bakalis' record as superintendent of his failure to be appointed as superintendent by the people who know him best, and his being the hand-picked candidate of Mayor Daley," Lindberg said.

When Lindberg took office in January 1973, the state was without a centralized financial system.

Briefly, he said, there were no vendor files; no effective pre-audits of state bills; no standardized accounting guidelines; and no comprehensive fiscal records.

Illinois became the first state in the union to have a uniform accounting system when Lindberg implemented the Comptroller's Uniform Statewide Accounting System (CUSAS) in 1974.

Lindberg's system, which he said virtually paid for itself in one year, is reported to save taxpayers $1 million annually.

The system was hailed by other states as the most modern in the country and fiscal experts from Missouri and Nebraska came to Illinois to study its innovations, he said; project material on development of CUSAS was requested from Massachusetts, Florida and New York.

Lindberg opened up legislative and government spending records to the public and, for the first time, Illinois citizens were free to examine government expenditures in detail, among other programs initiated under the incumbent comptroller, he related.

A native of Crystal Lake, the candidate is the son of Dr. and Mrs. A. V. Lindberg.

He resides in Crystal Lake with his wife, the former Linda Merlo, and daughters, Karen and Kirsten.

Lindberg received both his bachelor of science degree (1964) and his law degree (1967) from Northwestern University at Evanston.

In 1955, Lindberg joined John E. Reid and Associates, a nationally recognized Chicago-based firm specializing in polygraph (lie detector) examinations.

He became vice president and legal counsel at Reid's and conducted more than 3,000 investigations involving financial fraud.

Known as an expert in detecting financial fraud, Lindberg was called upon to testify before numerous legislative bodies and lectured on the subject at universities throughout the United States and abroad.

From 1964 to 1972, Lindberg was engaged in the general practice of law in Crystal Lake. He was first elected to the General Assembly in 1966 from the 32nd District (southern Lake and southeastern McHenry Counties).

He was twice re-elected to the Illinois House before accepting the Republican Party's nomination for comptroller in 1972.

During his tenure in the legislature, Lindberg gained statewide attention for his efforts in the area of ethics legislation and was called the chief architect of the 1972 Government Ethics Act, requiring the disclosure of economic interests by candidates and public officials.

In his six years as a legislator, he sponsored or cosponsored over 100 legislative bills.

Lindberg's non-political recruitment of comptroller office personnel gave Illinois finance its first professional team of lawyers, economists, accountants and data analysts, his backers say.

He is credited with implementing the state's first comprehensive audit to prevent illegal use of taxpayers' money, with each submitted bill receiving a minimum of 33 inspections before payment is made.

HOME BURGLARY
Items totaling $250 were taken from the home of Calvin W. Elmore, 2617 Mockingbird Lane, between 6 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. Monday after a window screen was cut to gain entry. Taken were a television set, a camera and assorted tools.

ELLSBERG VERDICTS
John Ehrlichmann and three co-defendants were found guilty of conspiracy charges July 12, 1974, stemming from the so called Ellsberg break-in.

Delay airport issue no longer—Coleman

Further delay on a metropolitan area airport decision was opposed yesterday by U.S. Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr., who said both Lambert Airport in St. Louis and the Waterloo, Ill., airport proposal would be harmed by inaction.

Coleman asserted, "It has been argued that there is no need to make a decision approving the grant for land acquisition at this time."

"The argument is made that Lambert can handle estimated aviation demand through the early 1990s, that airport development takes approximately 10 years, and that this therefore allows several years in which to reach firmer conclusions regarding such matters as future aviation demand and technological developments before a final decision is made."

"I believe, however, that such deferral, after the many years of study and analysis which have gone into this question, would not be worth any possible additional degrees of certainty which could be gained, and it would create needless additional uncertainties regarding the future availability of the Columbia-Waterloo site and the surrounding land development."

"Moreover, it would place Lambert in a financial 'limbo,' unable to obtain financing during the period until a final decision, because of its uncertain future."

"In summary, there is general agreement that aviation capacity in the St. Louis region will need to be expanded if future demand is to be met."

"After careful evaluation, I have concluded that Lambert, even if improved, will not provide sufficient capacity."

"With respect to a new site, Columbia-Waterloo provides a superior location, and I have found no valid support for the contention that an equal or better site exists elsewhere."

"Shifting air carrier operations to Columbia-Waterloo would also provide significant environmental advantages, particularly with respect to noise."

"While I am troubled by the opposition of Missourians to the proposed new airport at Columbia-Waterloo, I have given their views and opposition the most careful consideration, and my decision includes specific conditions to deal with the concerns which they have expressed, particularly regarding possible adverse employment and business effects in Missouri of the shift in air carrier operations to Columbia-Waterloo."

"I cannot disapprove a grant for a new airport simply because it is located outside the central city of the metropolitan region or outside of the political boundaries of the city or state where the present airport is located."

"I note that of the nation's 20 busiest air carrier airports, eight are located outside the central city of the metropolitan area served, and two are partially located in such cities."

"Of the other ten, six (including Lambert) are located outside the central city but in the same state, while four are located in different states."

"The two airports serving Washington, D.C., both located in Virginia, the new airport serving Cincinnati, Ohio (located in Kentucky), and one of the three airports serving New York City (located in New Jersey)."

Dr. Sletten joins staff at hospital

Ivan Wayne Sletten, M.D., has joined the St. Elizabeth Hospital medical staff, specializing in psychiatry.

Dr. Sletten was born in Chetek, Wis. He received a bachelor's degree of science degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1961 and earned his medical degree there in 1964.

Dr. Sletten interned at Minneapolis General Hospital in 1964.

He served residencies at the University of Minnesota Hospital and at Minneapolis General Hospital. From 1968 to 1969, Dr. Sletten served as a resident in the U.S. Army Medical Corps. He was chief of medical hygiene consultation service.

Dr. Sletten has held teaching appointments at the University of Minnesota Medical School and at St. Louis University. Since 1965, he has held a teaching appointment at the University of Missouri.

For the past several years, he has been director of the Missouri Institute of Psychiatry, St. Louis, a part of the University of Missouri Medical School Department of Psychiatry.

Dr. Sletten is certified by the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology and is a fellow of the American Psychiatric Association. He is past president of the Eastern Missouri Psychiatric Society and of the Missouri Psychiatric Association.

He has had numerous articles relating to psychiatry published. Among the most recent publications are "The future of computers and actuarial methods in mental health practice," "Childhood problems and adult behavior" and "The Missouri standard system of psychiatry: goals, progress and problems."

He has done research on the prediction of suicide and he has done extensive research in the area of psychotropic medications.

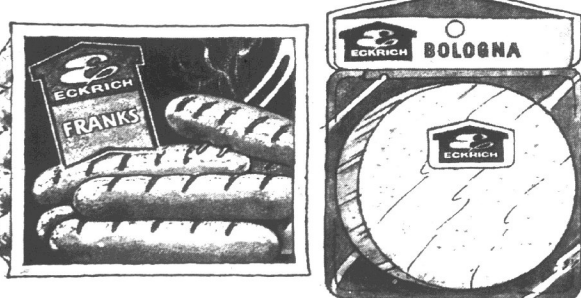

In 1968, Dr. Sletten received a citation from the commanding general at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., for services as chief of mental hygiene consultation service. In 1974, he was listed as a member of Who's Who in Missouri and the Midwest. In 1975, he was listed in Who's Who in Missouri Education.

Also in 1975, Dr. Sletten was named as a member of Community Leaders and Noteworthy Americans, was listed in the International Who's Who in Community Service and was named as a member of the Bicentennial Edition of Outstanding Americans.

Dr. Sletten and his wife, parents of four children, reside in Kirkwood, Mo.

Text of regional airport decision

Following is the text of Wednesday's St. Louis regional airport decision announced by Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman Jr.

After careful consideration, I have decided for the reasons set forth in this document to approve the application from the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority for a grant for land acquisition for a new major air carrier airport at the Columbia-Waterloo site.

This approval, however, is subject to the following conditions:

(1) Any master planning grant for Columbia-Waterloo must be structured for commencement of air carrier operations not before Jan. 1, 1992, unless a joint authority representing both Illinois and Missouri equally is developed, in which case such operations could commence as early as 1987, or even sooner if the joint authority so desires.

(2) Priority in the filling of jobs at the Columbia-Waterloo Airport must be given to persons, if any, who lose jobs at Lambert as a result of the transfer of air carrier operations to Columbia-Waterloo.

(3) Legal arrangements must be made to assure that construction and building trade employees from Missouri are given reasonably equal opportunities for employment in the development and construction of Columbia-Waterloo.

(4) The farmlands to be acquired at Columbia-Waterloo must have a delayed acquisition date or be rented to the current owners for continued farming use, if the current owners so desire, until such time as it is actually necessary to begin physical development work. And displacement of farming activities must be kept to a minimum consistent with the development and later operation of the airport.

(5) The Authority must include in its purchase agreement in connection with farmlands acquired for the new site, for those farmers who desire, the right of reversion to the current owners at the price of acquisition plus interest at five per cent or the fair market value, whichever is lower, in the event that — because of circumstances not now foreseen — the land is not subsequently used for airport purposes.

(6) Satisfactory assurances must be given that land in the vicinity of the airport will be utilized for purposes compatible with the estimated level of future airport noise.

(7) The contractors and labor unions which will be utilized in the development and construction of Columbia-Waterloo must effectuate, in a legally binding document, the commitment they have already given for a no-strike guarantee in the construction of the new airport and related facilities of the Authority, even if the then current labor agreements have expired.

(8) The Authority must effectuate its commitment, in a legally binding document, that it would "assume any outstanding debt obligations for Lambert as appropriate, to be supported by the airlines which the airlines will continue to support."

(9) The Authority must give assurances that it intends to comply fully with section 30 of the Airport Act, relating to equal opportunities for minorities and women in activities financed from grants under the Act, and any regulations issued thereunder.

(10) The Authority must file a letter with the administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration within ninety days hereof, or any extended time, given by said administrator, stating that it accepts the pertinent conditions set forth above as terms of this grant.

In addition, I have instructed the FAA administrator, working with other federal agencies as appropriate, to take the following actions:

(1) To assist the Lambert authorities and local government and others to identify in greater detail the specific jobs that are likely to be lost and businesses that are likely to be adversely affected by the transfer of operations, and to develop plans for actions to provide substitute employment and business opportunities to the maximum extent feasible.

(2) To cooperate with the Lambert authorities, including encouragement of the submission of a grant application, in proceeding with planning and development actions necessary and appropriate for Lambert's continued operation as a major air carrier airport until the date of transfer of air carrier operations to Columbia-Waterloo.

(3) To cooperate with the Lambert Authority in making sure that Lambert, if the Authority so desires, can serve the needs of general aviation extremely well whenever the air carrier operations are transferred to Columbia-Waterloo.

(4) To ensure complete compliance with the requirements of Federal statutes relating to relocation assistance and equal opportunity for minorities and women in both employment and contracting.

My approval of the grant application has been made subject to the above explicit conditions in order to protect the viability of Lambert Airport as an air carrier airport until the air carrier operations are transferred to Columbia-Waterloo, and thereafter as a general aviation airport if the Lambert Authority so desires; to ease individual and community transition problems; and to compel, or at least encourage as vigorously as possible, development of a bi-state authority that represents equally the interests of both states, thereby helping to assure that Missouri will participate actively in the development of the new airport at Columbia-Waterloo.

The decision reflects my firm conviction that the great St. Louis metropolitan area — with St. Louis, Mo., the hub of a vital commercial and cultural center and national resource — is entitled to have a superior, modern airport to serve its needs in the 1990s and thereafter.

And I cannot find that Lambert could be improved, modernized and developed sufficiently to meet that need, nor can I find that any site in Missouri exists which will serve the needs of the St. Louis metropolitan area as well as the Columbia-Waterloo site.

My avowed goal is that the environmental advantages of noise reduction of the Columbia-Waterloo alternative are a compelling argument for developing a new airport.

I have been greatly influenced by Missouri's realization that Lambert plays an important social and economic role in the City and County of St. Louis.

The conditions imposed on the grant to meet those concerns to the extent possible, but yet not deny the city and county the advantages of a new and modern major air carrier airport which will serve the needs of the region and the interstate and foreign air system into the 1990s and beyond.

I believe that the most desirable outcome of this issue, from the local as well as the federal viewpoint, would be local agreement for the operation of the new airport by a joint authority representing both States equally.

Accordingly, my decision includes an incentive to help obtain this objective.

Specifically, any master planning grant for Columbia-Waterloo must be structured toward the commencement of air carrier operations not until Jan. 1, 1992, unless a joint authority is developed, in which case operations could commence as early as 1987, or even sooner if the joint authority so desires.

Inasmuch as the Authority has stated its view that operations should commence in 1987, it would be in its interest to seek bi-state agreement, in order to permit it to commence operations at that date or earlier rather than to wait until 1992 as it would otherwise have to do under this decision.

Similarly, I believe it is in Missouri's interest, now that land acquisition will commence for a new airport, to reach agreement on a method of participating in the ownership and operation of that airport.

Specifying that operations at the new airport will commence before 1987, and possibly not before 1992, will also serve to ensure that necessary improvements to Lambert are made to keep it operating effectively as an air carrier airport rather than to wait until the specified date of transfer.

My decision also includes conditions designed to minimize any unavoidable adverse impact of the transfer of operations to the communities around Lambert, as well as the communities in the Columbia-Waterloo vicinity.

Now that I have approved conditionally the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority (SMAAA) application, it is my deep hope that the responsible leaders of the region will set aside their past differences and take steps to ensure a regional approach to provide for the future aviation needs of the St. Louis area.

I personally remain ready and willing to support further efforts to bring about such a joint approach.

Hopefully, this decision will mark the end of wasteful competition and lack of resolution in planning the area's aviation needs and the beginning of an era of regional cooperation which serves the aviation needs of the citizens of both Illinois and Missouri, as well as the nation.

This decision and the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) will be deposited with the Council on Environmental Quality, and federal officials shall not commence any action hereunder until after 30 days from the date of deposit.

The FAA administrator will implement normal FAA procedures to effectuate my decision, including the various conditions set forth herein.

Testimony here on perils of rail crossings in state

An Illinois legislative subcommittee studying the hazards of railroad grade crossings heard testimony from railroaders, state officials and others during a hearing in the City Hall at Granite City Tuesday morning.

State Rep. Everett Steere (R-Glen Carbon) was temporary chairman for the hearing. Also on hand was Rep. John F. Dunn (D-Decatur), vice-chairman of the subcommittee.

Witnesses testified on the dangers of auto attempting to "beat" trains across crossings and on instances in which drivers do not pay enough attention before crossing railroad tracks.

The hazards of having no warning signals or faulty signals, poor visibility and obstructions in the way of motorists' view of the railroad tracks also were discussed.

James C. Clark, an engineer of Amtrak High-speed trains between St. Louis and Bloomington, Ill., told the committee that the time engineer of a 79-mile-per-hour Amtrak train sees something on the railroad tracks, "It is already too late."

He noted that it takes close to a mile to stop a train at that speed, and the train cannot change its course to avoid the obstacle on the tracks.

Patrick W. Simmons, assistant state director of the United Transportation Union, told the committee members, "I just wish you could take the time to ride in the front of an Amtrak train at 79 mph and watch the cars, tanker trucks, school buses and other vehicles crossing very close in front of the train."

"We are not bad guys. We do not want to hit anyone," he said. "Most railroad men have haunting memories of the accidents they have been involved in. And some of the newer employees have difficulty sleeping at night because of the memories of a recent accident," Simmons told the subcommittee.

He and Clark suggested that all trains, starting with the high-speed trains, be equipped with special headlights which would illuminate the tracks and which have shown they can attract more attention from motorists than conventional train headlights.

Several of those who spoke also suggested stop signs for all railroad crossings not protected by crossing lights or gates.

"Many times, we see motorists go over the tracks in front of a train without even looking — and then continue another 30 feet to a street where they stop for the stop sign.

"If they would stop and look before crossing the railroad tracks, perhaps many of them would not be killed," Clark said.

He said the only sure answer is separating the railroad tracks from the roads, using overpasses and underpasses. But crossing signals with gates provide the next best form of protection, the committee was told.

"Flasher lights just do not seem to do the job, especially in daylight. It may be that the motorists do not see them."

"All of the time, I see motorists just drive through the crossing lights like they did not see them."

"If you have the lights and the gates and they ignore them, at least you know they know there is a train coming and then it is up to them."

Rep. Steere asked whether passing other trains near crossings present a problem. Clark said the lower speed trains try to avoid passing near crossings because the rear of one train blocks motorists from seeing the approaching train.

"In the high speed trains, however, it is impossible to judge that closely, so we cannot even try to avoid passing at crossings," Clark testified.

He also said there are rules against parking a train too near an intersection and blocking the sight lines of motorists, but added, "The rules might need more enforcement."

"In the past, I have had my opinion on where crossing gates should be installed when the state has limited money and cannot place them at all crossings."

Clark said the first priority for gates should be crossings where the main arteries are blocked and because of obstacles, hills, curves or weeds, "Flasher lights and gates cannot see both directions clearly."

The second priority should be where a road crosses two "mainline" tracks with at least one handling high-speed trains, it was asserted.

Clark also said that by school buses also should receive a high priority for installation of crossing gates, he said.

Once dangerous crossings are protected by crossing gates and lights, railroads should take steps to see the gates are not missed, he said, and local police departments should consider motorists who cross where the signals are operating as having committed as serious a crime as going through a red traffic signal light.

"Normal (Ill.) once had a high fine for running the gates, and rarely do you see anyone even today going through the gates there. We want the public to respect the gates," Clark said.

Winston C. Harbicht, state legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way group, represented those who maintain railroad crossings and rights-of-way. He agreed that stronger law enforcement at crossing signals is one way to avoid many train-automobile accidents.

He also suggested that more cities coordinate traffic lights with crossing lights so streets having railroad tracks are not "blocked off" by red traffic signals while a train is approaching.

Mayor Paul Schuler of Granite City noted the importance of railroads to this state, but said living in a city surrounded by railroads presents problems.

"Seldom has the day passed I have not been stopped by a train," Mayor Schuler said.

He also noted that lengthy delays at crossings have been hazardous to emergency vehicles and alleged that three weeks ago an ambulance carrying a bad heart attack victim to a hospital was delayed about 20 minutes by a train and the man died.

He listed some of the problem areas in the Quad-Cities, which included the unguarded Mockingbird Lane crossing, crossing to emergency vehicles in maintaining crossings, absence of a grade separation in the west end of the city, and the dangerous West Pontoon Road crossing where, he said, the signals often operate even though the main arteries are blocked and because of obstacles, hills, curves or weeds, "Flasher lights and gates cannot see both directions clearly."

the state transportation department.

Also testifying was Donald Lindsay, chairman of the Illinois State Legislative Board for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who urged more effective driver education programs teaching the dangers of railroad crossings.

He suggested that a short film be shown to each new driver, with scenes from actual auto-train wrecks showing the horror of rail crossing accidents.

Lindsay urged more overpasses and underpasses, better crossing signals, joint national and state efforts to relocate railroads away from roadways, and efforts to direct traffic away from heavily-congested crossings.

Moberly said Illinois rates among the leaders in the amount of money spent for crossing safety improvements and spent $4.1 million on rail safety last year.

The state's new plan calls for $13.3 million in state and federal funds to be used for rail safety year to improve safety at railroad crossings.

Problems he cited in completing safety projects include shortages of the types of equipment needed, a policy which prohibits railroads from hiring outside contractors to complete some jobs, and the need for a public hearing on the project.

make a decision," Coleman said.

"Everybody likes to be popular and I cannot help but feel a decision which will keep Lambert as a major airport is in my best interest. But I feel it my duty to make this decision," he added.

Coleman placed 10 stipulations on his approval for the new airport, including the mandate that a bi-state authority be created to develop the Illinois facility.

His second stipulation is that priority in the filling of jobs by the new airport be offered to those who lose jobs at Lambert St. Louis International Airport as a result of the new facility.

Legal arrangements must be made to assure that construction and building trade employees from Missouri be given equal opportunity for employment while the new airport is under construction.

Coleman said that the new airport must be reserved for the present owners until it is needed for actual construction.

The authority may either delay the acquisition or may purchase the airport and lease it back to the present owners until it is needed.

The fifth stipulation is that, should the new airport not be built, farmers and present owners will have the first opportunity to purchase the land back at a price of five per cent per year plus five per cent per year.

Sixth in the list is that the authority must give satisfactory assurances that land in the vicinity of the airport will be utilized for purposes compatible with the surrounding levels of the airport will create.

Coleman's seventh stipulation is that contractors and labor unions building the airport approve an agreement with a strike guarantee, even if labor agreements expire during the construction.

The eighth stipulation is that the new airport authority must commit itself to assume outstanding debt obligations for Lambert airport for the amount as supported by airlines.

Ninth is assurance by the authority that equal employment opportunities for minorities and women in all activities financed by federal funds.

The final stipulation is that the existing St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority (the authority) file a letter within 90 days with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) stating the conditions Coleman attached to the grant approval.

Coleman also has instructed the FAA to conduct an investigation in identifying losses in jobs and businesses which can be anticipated by opening the new airport to competition with Lambert authorities in improvements necessary to keep Lambert as a major airport.

He also charged FAA with ensuring compliance with federal laws on relocation assistance and equal opportunities in employment and contracting.

Self-sufficiently Coleman denied allegations that he had delayed making the decision, saying necessary amendments to the bill were signed into law until July 12 and appropriations were not approved until Aug. 12.

He said he had no prior communication with the White House on the issue and received only a request for a copy of his decision. It was hand-delivered to the White House at the same time copies were given to reporters and officials in St. Louis.

Requests by the governors of Illinois and Missouri for copies of the opinions were rejected, Coleman said, adding, "I thought the decision should be given to the people first."

He said he received much correspondence from political figures but that he is not of the issue, but no pressure.

"I do not respond to pressure so, rightfully, it never got to that point," he remarked.

The transportation secretary said he is not debating a future for Lambert Field, noting that St. Louis may have a use of far greater importance than the new airport.

He said he did not want to be in the position of dictating to the St. Louis County what it should do with the land after the new airport is opened.

He said he was not a resident of the federal government will aid all efforts to keep Lambert an adequate and viable general aviation airport into the 21st century, should that be the Missouri officials prefer to do not feel year's announcement would mark "the beginning of the end" for Lambert Field.

"Look at the growth in general aviation. We are talking about keeping Lambert as a major airport until 1987 to 1992, 'longer than most of us will be living.'"

He said overwinding of Lambert Field would be the result by the 1990s, if the new airport were not constructed.

He predicted that, as delays became longer and longer, "you would see the airlines shifting their air traffic patterns away from St. Louis into airports with less delays, and St. Louis would lose its place as an international gateway."

He assured all landowners in the Columbia-Waterloo area that the federal government would protect their rights to a fair price for their property and give assistance in relocating.

Coleman said that the critical responses from several residents of that area who were in the audience.

"The authority must again to the possibility of a lawsuit being filed to block the new airport, but Coleman said that good lawyers have been writing me, saying I did not have the authority to approve an Illinois application for a Missouri airport."

"The statutes they cite seem to apply only when one has a federal airport, and the federal official makes a decision to locate an airport in another state."

"This is entirely different. I have an application from the sovereign state of Illinois that it wishes to build an airport in Illinois," Coleman said.

"If State A decides to do something, I do not think State B can object to it," Coleman said.

Now that a decision has been made, Coleman said, he has master planning for new highways to Columbia-Waterloo can be accelerated, he said.

The conference ended with two talks praising Coleman for his decision. One was from a spokesman for the St. Louis Mayor James Mason, who said Mayor's decision is based on the best available technical studies, and is the result of much hard work done by Coleman.

The final talk was by a Columbia talker and farmer who said he felt the decision was "fair and just."

Two persons were injured at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday when an auto, driven by Mrs. Beverly A. Haley, 32, of 2057 Alton Ave., Madison, was knocked into a ditch at the Illinois Route 162 and 23rd Street railroad crossing upon being struck by a train.

The passenger in the auto, Sharon Haley, three, of the same address, and the driver were injured.

Haley's auto was eastbound on Route 162. An Alton and Southern Railroad train pulling 16 cars operated by James Brightwell of Fairview Heights was involved in the crash.

She said she noticed red warning lights operating but she did not see the train or hear a whistle.

Both were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital where Mrs. Haley was admitted with abrasions and a fracture to her left elbow. Sharon Haley was taken to the right hand and bruises to the right cheek and then was released.

Timely, courageous ruling—Vandalabene

"The concerned citizens in this area are naturally happy and gratified by Secretary William Cornman's decision that the new airport should be located at the Columbia-Waterloo site. It is a timely and courageous decision, reflecting careful thought on his part," State Senator Sam M. Vandalabene of this district said yesterday.

"As sponsor of the legislation that created the Illinois Authority and funding for its operations, I feel a deep sense of personal satisfaction that my judgment has been vindicated by this decision."

"However, in my recognition of the vast problems facing the entire metropolitan area to be served by this great new facility, I hope the states of Illinois and Missouri can go forward in a spirit of conciliation and cooperation."

"This project is too important to the economic future of the region to allow parochial interests to engage in delaying tactics."

"Working together, we can produce an airport that will make this area the economic center of the American heartland in the 21st century."

"That is the overriding vision that should guide all of our future planning and discussion."

Another Douglas of Illinois might have become President

(71st of a Bicentennial year Press-Record series)
Who will be the next President—Jimmy Carter or Gerald Ford?

Illinois contributed to the Presidency of one of the greatest of all the White House occupants, Abraham Lincoln.

The late Adlai Stevenson was twice nominated for the U.S. Presidency and his ancestor of that name held the nation's No. 2 office.

Many feel that still another Illinoisan, the now-retired Paul H. Douglas, also could have served with distinction in the Oval Office. He is well known here, having campaigned often at the Labor Temple and other Quad-City area locations.

A Sangamon State University researcher notes that Douglas was born in Salem, Mass., on March 28, 1892; grew up on his uncle's farm at Newport, Maine; graduated from Bowdoin College in 1913 with a degree in economics; and began graduate work in that subject at Columbia University.

He accepted a teaching position at the University of Illinois in 1916. In the next few years he taught at Reed College in Portland, Ore.; at the University of Washington; and at the Seattle Lake College.

In 1920, he was appointed to the economics department of the University of Chicago, where he matured as a scholar and teacher.

During the closing years of World War I, Douglas experienced a spiritual conversion after reading the Journal of John Woolman, an 18th-century Quaker.

He became a convinced pacifist and a Quaker. As he explained it, "I first felt intensely the power of active good will to awaken similar motives in others and to transform hatred into love."

One of his basic concerns centered about stabilizing the economic security of laborers by establishing a family income plan.

With that central theme, he published a number of articles and books dealing with the wage system, including Wages and the Family, 1925; Real Wages in the United States, 1926-1928, 1930; and Theory of Wages, 1934.

He also became an admirer of socialist leader Norman Thomas.

Although he never joined the Socialist Party, Douglas dedicated his book, Coming of a New Party, 1932, to Thomas.

In it he asked for the formation of a new, liberal, left-wing third party organized around socialist ideas.

Regularly active in civic affairs, Douglas helped establish the Illinois Utilities Consumers and Investors League in 1928 to fight the activities of Samuel Insull, a Chicago utilities magnate who appeared to be profiting at the expense of the people.

Douglas accepted minor appointments in several New Deal agencies and helped draft Illinois legislation on such topics of concern to Illinois as the Old Age Pension Act of 1935 and the Illinois Unemployment Insurance Act of 1937.

In 1938, he ran, as an independent Democrat for alderman in Chicago's Fifth Ward, won the election and served on the Chicago City Council from 1939 to 1942.

Douglas remained a pacifist until the Italian invasion of Ethiopia, the Spanish Civil War, and the Munich Conference led him to reject his earlier commitment.

At a rally in Decatur in 1941, he told the audience, "There is no question but that we shall need to resist Hitler. He is out for world domination."

With a rekindled drive for public service, he successfully sought the Democratic nomination for United States senator in 1942.

He received the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star before being discharged in November 1946, and underwent five operations to regain partial use of his injured left arm.

In 1948, Douglas soundly defeated incumbent U.S. Sen. Charles W. McNamara for his vigorous record during the war.

With their support, Illinoisans knew they were voting for a war hero, an anti-Communist and a convinced opponent of Soviet expansion.

Douglas began an 18-year senatorial career in which he was in the forefront of countless legislative struggles for civil rights, economic reforms, housing, medicare, federal aid to education and a host of social welfare measures.

At the same time he advocated fiscal economy, conservation and a sound national budget.

Recognizing the seeming inconsistency of some of these positions and pointing out a classical political dilemma, he wrote:

"My constituent who tries to help his constituency and yet protect the public as a whole can be prevented from being so effective by his efforts in behalf of local interests."

He regularly supported foreign aid, the containment of Communism, the Korean War, and the official position on Vietnam.

Seeking a fourth term in 1966, Douglas was aware that he had lost some support because of his hawkish stand on Vietnam.

He was defeated by Republican Charles McNamara, partially because of anti-war sentiment and partially because of his age (74).

Venice city levy

The City Council of Venice passed a $500,338 annual tax levy which is expected to increase the rate per $100 valuation from $1.39 to $1.473.

The city's assessed valuation has declined by $3,000,001, from $36,729,201 in 1974, to $33,649,110.

A large amount of the reduction, City Attorney Harry E. Hartman said, was due to a lower Union Electric Co. property assessment caused by depreciation.

Alderman Thomas Voegele reported a letter from Hardesty & Hanover, New York engineering firm overseeing maintenance of the city's McKinley Bridge on behalf of the bondholders.

The letter informed the council that the bid of J. S. Liberty Construction Co., low at $370,737, was $95,000 over the estimate for repairing a viaduct portion on the Illinois side.

Regularly active in civic affairs, Douglas helped establish the Illinois Utilities Consumers and Investors League in 1928 to fight the activities of Samuel Insull, a Chicago utilities magnate who appeared to be profiting at the expense of the people. Douglas accepted minor appointments in several New Deal agencies and helped draft Illinois legislation on such topics of concern to Illinois as the Old Age Pension Act of 1935 and the Illinois Unemployment Insurance Act of 1937.

Environmental advantages from new airport; Missouri workers protected

Environmental and economic aspects were among the points that weighed heavily in U.S. Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman's decision Wednesday favoring establishment of a new Columbia-Waterloo area metropolitan airport, he told newsmen.

"What has made this decision particularly difficult and complex has been its uniqueness as an issue of federal and multi-state relationships."

"In my view, the problems and priorities of an interstate metropolitan area can be addressed most effectively through interstate and local cooperation, with federal support and participation," Secretary Coleman commented.

In this case, eight years of effort have failed to produce the agreement necessary to meet local requirements, and the federal government has been forced — under his statutory mandate and his assessment of the public interest — to make a choice between two jurisdictions.

"Failure to decide at all would ultimately penalize all the people and their official representatives by foreclosing federal grant assistance and creating a climate of uncertainty that would deter financing and private investment."

"Even though airports in metropolitan areas serve as integral links in a network of interstate and international commerce, they nonetheless are and should remain instruments of local purpose."

"The selection of sites should be coordinated with local, state and regional land use planning, integrated with metropolitan transportation systems, and reflect the balanced judgments of the community about convenience of access, residential land use and environmental protection."

"Unlike the situation in most urban areas today, where site selection for a new airport would be the responsibility of a single airport sponsor, the application of the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority required me to consider the arguments of two competing claimants, each seeking to define the local requirements in its own way and proposing different solutions to the area's future transportation needs."

"However much as I would have preferred to wait for local consensus on the matter, I must face the fact that indecision would deny the Illinois authority its right to a fair evaluation and disposition of its application."

"That application represents a forward-looking state and local initiative which seeks to preserve and promote the safety and quality of air service."

"Nor can I avoid my statutory duty to minimize the adverse environmental effects of transportation services."

"I must recognize the consequences of federal action for the economic well being of the nation and the region, as they are reflected in employment opportunities, commercial vitality, and responsiveness to the consumer."

"Our interest here transcends that of any one locality or state, and seeks to apply both regional and national concerns after listening and giving fair consideration to local concerns and priorities."

"True federalism balances genuine respect for local priorities with the diligent pursuit of national interests."

"In my evaluation, I have considered controversial questions that are not easily reconciled; their value for present and for future metropolitan residents and air travelers must be weighed and compared."

"Such judgments are inevitably based on projections of varying precision and recommendations that reflect the views of specific interests and localities."

"Recognizing the strongly-held convictions, the heated controversy, and the substantial implications of my decision for the convenience and commerce of the citizens of the St. Louis area, I have sought to define the issues, produce the analysis, listen to the people, and make the decision on the merits and on the public record, explaining as completely as possible how I have reached my conclusions."

"My greatest concern is that people who disagree with my decision may think that the democratic process has failed, and that it is consistent with my statutory mandate and the broader public interest to the extent that the analytical tools at hand provide me with the wisdom to define that elusive goal."

"That is one reason why I have taken so long and explained in such detail my reasons, for the people have a right to know and judge the integrity of the decision-making process, the efficacy of the analysis and rationale, and the soundness of the legal and public policy foundation."

"My decision is also rightly subject to judicial and Congressional review," Coleman commented.

"Three considerations have been especially troublesome. First, many Missourians and their elected representatives have opposed the Columbia-Waterloo site."

"I have sought to meet their legitimate concerns by placing conditions on the grant that will benefit Missourians by providing investment in local infrastructure created and I hope, bringing about their early equal participation in a bistate authority."

"Second, I recognize that the new airport will not be as near for many citizens who live west and north of St. Louis. Ultimately, the reduced delay time will partially offset the inconvenience for the increased access time."

"The St. Louis city center will benefit from the stimulus to growth eastward, and patterns of development in the future may reduce average access times."

"Third, Lambert Airport remains completely safe and currently provides convenient service which it likely can continue to do for approximately another ten years.

"Because of the decade of lead time required in planning and constructing an airport, we cannot fix with precision the time when Lambert's capacity will have been exceeded."

"But neither can we neglect the need to anticipate and plan, recognizing that time will not necessarily leave available sites undeveloped."

"The conditions I have placed on this grant are intended to encourage a decision on the ultimate transfer of air carrier operations by a duly constituted bistate authority that equally represents the interests of both states."

"The conditions also are designed to ensure the continuation of Lambert as a modern general aviation airport, if the Lambert Authority so desires."

"Columbia-Waterloo will offer many advantages as a site for a new airport. As presently planned, it will meet the expected capacity requirements of the 1990s and beyond, and its capacity may be expanded easily to meet further increases in the levels of air traffic."

"More importantly, the new airport will avoid the projected airport delays at Lambert, delays that could exceed those experienced at the most congested airports in the United States."

"A major determinant in my decision is the fact that Columbia-Waterloo will have substantially less adverse environmental consequences in terms of noise than would an expanded Lambert alternative."

"Since the advent of the jet, aircraft noise has become an increasingly serious environmental problem."

"Although the federal government will aid airports that are technologically feasible and economically reasonable to reduce aircraft noise at its source in accordance with our statutory mandate, these steps are not sufficient."

"Additional land use planning, compatible zoning, sounder insulation and, most importantly, appropriate airport site location are absolutely essential if we are to seek and attain an environment free of excessive aircraft noise."

"The planners who designed and constructed airports before the jet age simply did not have to contend with the noise problem we know today."

"In many areas in the country there simply are not adequate alternatives for airports located in congested urban areas."

"The St. Louis area is fortunate in that the land is available which will meet its needs effectively without having a significant noise impact on many residents in the surrounding community."

"It would border on negligence for me to ignore this alternative when so many other communities throughout the country are calling for federal action on airport noise."

"I have carefully designed conditions in this decision to ensure that such dislocation is minimized."

"Moreover, it is my conviction that the development of a new airport at Columbia-Waterloo will enhance the innovative and dedicated revitalization of the St. Louis center which has been successfully under way for several years."

"While transportation decisions must be made primarily to promote safe, efficient and competitive transportation services for the American people, we can no longer make such decisions in a vacuum."

"Transportation policies must serve broader goals of our society, promoting economic development and a better environment, providing jobs and equal employment opportunities, and ensuring national growth."

"It is my judgment, based upon the available evidence, that the new airport at Columbia-Waterloo will provide not only substantial transportation benefits for air travelers in the metropolitan area but will serve the long-term economic, social and environmental interests of the community and the region.

"I will assist measurably in the restoration of St. Louis to its historic prominence as a transportation gateway to the West, and help to capitalize on the substantial but underutilized human potential that exists in the area of Southern Illinois within the metropolitan area."

"I strongly urge the responsible leadership of the metropolitan area to set aside their past differences and take steps to seek regional solutions to the needs of aviation in the St. Louis area — and to integrate air services with a metropolitan surface transportation system that will provide fast and convenient access to the new airport for all its prospective users."

"I support fully any reasonable effort to bring about such a joint effort."

"I hope this decision will mark the end of wasteful competition and lack of resolution in planning for the area's aviation needs and, instead, mark the beginning of a new era of regional cooperation to serve the transportation needs of the citizens of both Missouri and Illinois, as well as the nation."

"Having analyzed the record on this matter, and for the reasons summarized, I have decided to approve the application of the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority for a grant of federal funds to help acquire a site for a major air carrier airport at Columbia-Waterloo, Ill., but only with the conditions I set forth herein, which conditions in my judgment fully protect the economic, political, social and transportation interests — and provide for the legitimate concerns — of those who live in the city and metropolitan area of St. Louis."

Two injured

A two-car accident at Route Three and West Pontoon Road at 6:55 p.m. Tuesday resulted in injuries to two passengers in an auto driven by Timothy M. Sanders, 17, of 2528 Circle Drive.

The other car was operated by George L. Reid Jr., 53, of 2450 Waterman Ave., said to be turning left in front of the Sanders auto.

Sarah Sanders, 13, of 2528 Circle Drive, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital and then transferred to Cardinal Glennon Hospital, St. Louis with a spine fracture. Velma Sanders, 15, of the same address, had right shoulder and arm pains and was treated and released from the local hospital.

Dr. Bruce Stolar on medical staff here

Dr. Bruce Stolar, M.D., has joined the medical staff of St. Elizabeth Hospital, specializing in urology.

Dr. Stolar was born in St. Louis. He is a 1963 graduate of the University of Texas, Austin, where he received a bachelor of arts degree.

He received his medical degree from Tulane University in New Orleans in 1967 and interned at the Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans.

He received a fellowship in shock and trauma at Tulane University Medical School in the Department of Surgery. At the Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N.Y., he received a fellowship in the field of urologic oncology.

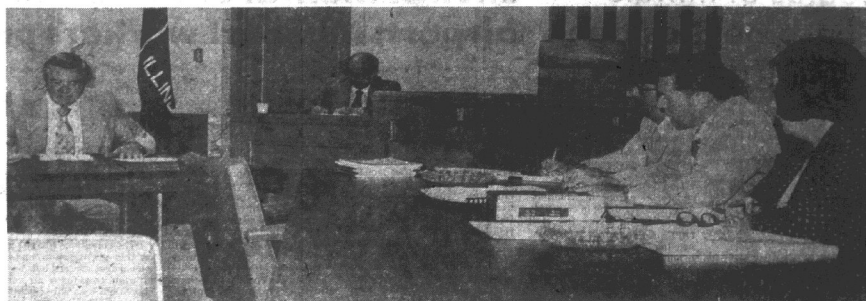

He served his residencies at the University of Minnesota Hospitals in general surgery and the State University of New York at Buffalo in urology. He spent additional time in urologic oncology at the Roswell Park Memorial Institute during his residency.

Dr. Stolar is an Associate of Dr. Robert Halley, whose office is located at 3165 Myrtle Ave., Granite City.

He is married and resides with his family in Creve Coeur, Mo.

ROBBERY OF SUITCASE

A wallet and a suitcase containing clothes were taken Monday afternoon from James McCallister, 2251 Washington Ave., while he was walking in downtown East St. Louis. Two men had stopped him and asked for directions. They fled after the strongarm robbery.

CROSSING HAZARDS are the topic of this public hearing. Held Tuesday morning in Granite City, the hearing was conducted by an Illinois House of Representatives subcommittee studying ways to reduce the number of car-train accidents. Shown testifying at the left is Granite City

Training for Cadet Jones

Cadet Dennis H. Jones, whose parents are retired Air Force Senior Master Sergeant and Mrs. Robert G. Jones, 3237 Lakeview Drive, has completed a U.S. Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps field training encampment at McChord Air Force Base, Wash.

During the encampment, cadets receive survival and small arms training and aircraft and aircrew indoctrination. They also have the opportunity to observe careers in which they might wish to serve as Air Force officers.

Cadet Jones is a student at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Thompson proposes city landfill powers

"Illinois is facing a critical period of environmental decision-making and a responsible state government should begin action now rather than reacting later when the quality of life of its own citizens is in jeopardy," Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson said Tuesday.

He said state government must develop a strong, coordinated and responsible environmental program and announced his proposals in a major position paper on the environment. He talked about his paper, the ninth of the campaign, during news conferences in Cahokia, Chicago, Moline and Springfield.

Thompson's plan calls for preserving resources through conservation of open spaces, reclamation of strip mined land, solid waste disposal and the protection of productive farm land; water and air pollution control with an emphasis on red tape and an enhanced degree of business and public involvement; preservation of existing water supplies; the need to protect the public from the threat of hazardous materials; and responsible energy planning and power plant siting.

"The manner in which we resolve current environmental and energy issues will have a significant impact on industrial growth, urban sprawl, diminishing open space, the conservation of land and the quality of drinking water," Thompson said.

"Because of the overriding importance of these issues to the future of Illinois, we must approach them from an informed and well-reasoned perspective."

Thompson called for a "comprehensive conservation policy which focuses on preserving the natural values of Illinois for many generations to come."

He said this can be accomplished through a four-point plan, which includes the following:

1. "The conversion of acreage in private hands to public use without major capital expenditures."
2. "The long-term purchase arrangements which combine tax writeoffs for the land owner with modest installment payments by the state would allow economically usable land to be used by the owner until it can be converted to public purposes."

"In order for this program to be successful, the Department of Conservation should begin to survey and prioritize available sites on the basis of its existing budget."

"Efforts must be made to acquire the land on the basis of negotiations with the owner rather than condemnation."

"Economic impact statements must be provided to the community in which the site is located to insure that their tax-loss caused by the property removal from the rolls will be restored by tourist trade, enhanced employment opportunities and increased property values."

"Good conservation programs will help Illinois business, and our businessmen clearly recognize that fact."

2. "Because of the economies of strip-mining and its importance to the overall energy situation in the nation, it is imperative that regulations be flexible enough to permit fruitful development of the coal industry—and yet tough enough to insure that productive land will not be mined unless it can be reclaimed to full productive capacity."

"The amended Illinois Strip Mining Reclamation Act provides the legislative framework necessary to insure this level of confidence."

"But, in order to insure that these environmental related functions are performed, the staff of the land reclamation office should be increased by transferring other Bureau of Mines and Minerals personnel where possible to allow the presently understaffed section to more effectively monitor reclamation activities and more adequately conduct and analyze the local public hearings and reclamation plans."

"Annual evaluation sessions should be held by the governor with the Reclamation Advisory Council and key members of the House and Senate conservation committees to review the effectiveness of the recently amended law and its administration."

"The Abandoned Mine Reclamation Council, under the direction of the lieutenant governor, would develop a long-range plan to deal with the estimated 100,000 acres of strip mined land before the enactment of reclamation legislation."

3. "Determining new sites for solid waste disposal is a major problem in Illinois."

"Legislation should be enacted to give local governments the option of approving a site selection or designating a particular area within its boundaries as an alternative."

"One potential solution is the development of a system under which local solid waste planning bodies would acquire land and lease it to private landfill operators."

"The operators would then charge for its services over a designated period of time and eventually return the site to the communities in a condition developed for recreational purposes."

"Concerning the disposal of liquid or potentially hazardous industrial wastes, industrial waste scavengers should be subject to a limited, inexpensive licensing system."

"Legislation should be enacted providing for administrative hearings before the EPA to permit public input and compel the agency to better articulate the reason for the action both to applicant and the public."

"Although Illinois thus far has not suffered from a lack of water, because of increasing population, uncontrolled growth and evidence of change in water table levels, there is a need for a program concerned with Illinois water resources, including:

A. "Development of a program to control and prevent construction on floodplains and other natural holding areas for water."

B. "Upgrading quality control standards for those water bodies from which drinking water may be eventually obtained."

"Protection of Lake Michigan against pollution from within Illinois and other states."

D. "State action to obtain permission from the federal government to utilize additional water from Lake Michigan."

Thompson expressed concern for the potential threat of accidents involving hazardous chemicals.

He proposed that legislation be enacted immediately to compel users of hazardous materials to obtain a local fire and civil defense official of the location of such use."

"Plans for control, as well as contingency accident plans, should be developed privately and submitted to the EPA for review, he said."

Thompson also called for the development of a comprehensive energy program including the following:

"The expansion of the Division of Energy program of the federal energy and development information available, to include a clearinghouse for information on energy availability and conservation for Illinois businessmen, farmers, in-government so a strong National Pollutant Discharge Elimination system program can be administered in Illinois to end the dual permit process."

Thompson called for immediate steps which would enable Illinois to assume exclusive control over permit approval with respect to air pollution. This would alleviate duplication of effort, red tape and increased costs, he said.

"The process whereby individuals or industries discharging contaminants obtain a permit from the EPA must be reformed to avoid costly delays and promote public confidence."

"Legislation should be enacted providing for administrative hearings before the EPA to permit public input and compel the agency to better articulate the reason for the action both to applicant and the public."

"The expansion of the Division of Energy program of the federal energy and development information available, to include a clearinghouse for information on energy availability and conservation for Illinois businessmen, farmers, institutions and the general public."

"The development of a state energy conservation plan which would serve as a model for the private sector."

"A review of the current utility rate structure to promote energy conservation. The Illinois Commerce Commission should explore the available alternatives to the present system and assess the experience of other states with new programs."

"An Illinois Coal Initiative under which the Division of Energy insures that undue limitations are not being placed on the use of Illinois coal."

"The Division of Energy, upon request from a given industry, should make an independent determination of a plan to use Illinois coal and submit its findings to the EPA and Pollution Control Board."

"The division should also continue its past efforts to attract to Illinois the kinds of federally-funded pilot projects and research programs designed to develop alternative uses of Illinois coal."

"Establishment of a mechanism for rational decision-making for new power plant siting based on which would include several permanent members and rotating members representing the locality in which the site is sought."

"The board would provide a uniform state siting policy, end a confusion and better direct citizen input into the decision."

"Establishment of an annual energy conference open to all and designed to allow all relevant individuals and groups to assess the status and options for Illinois in energy use. The attendees could discuss the problems involved with a view to addressing and resolving critical issues with appropriate legislation."

Thompson said many of his proposals have a byproduct significant to Illinois' employment picture.

"As sound conservation programs are implemented, land values will increase and recreational facilities will become a strong selling point to attract industry to Illinois."

"As scientific advancements are made in the environmental areas new industries will develop and new jobs will become available."

"As environmental control technology advances the increasing use of the state's energy sources will substantially benefit our job market," Thompson said.

"Our ultimate environmental policy should envision a physically healthy and socially enjoyable environment that promotes rather than prevents sound economic growth."

Retirement plan—know yourself

By DARLENE NEER
Madison County Extension
Advisor-Home Economics

Knowing yourself is the most important preparation for retirement.

There are many different retirement plans. To find the one that is most satisfying to you as an individual, you must first know yourself.

—What is most important to me?

—What activities do I enjoy most?

—What kinds of accomplishments or experiences make me feel really good about myself?

—Who are the people who mean the most to me? Are they relatives, neighbors or co-workers?

—What are my abilities and limitations?

—What are my outstanding personality characteristics?

—What are my unfulfilled dreams?

—If I had all of the money, time and power I could use, what would I most like to do with it?

—How many of my answers to the above were centered around my work?

After you retire you will be the same person you are now, but in a somewhat different situation.

—You'll still need security, friends, a sense of accomplishment and the ability to adjust to reality.

If the person you want to be in retirement has different abilities or characteristics, start changing them now. Passing years usually intensify your basic character rather than alter it.

Completes field medical school

Navy Hospitalman Apprentice James A. Belling, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Belling, 2536 Pine St., Granite City, has graduated from Field Medical Service School at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

The five-week course is designed to prepare Navy hospital corpsmen and dental technicians for duty with Marine Corps combat units. During classroom instruction, practical application periods and field training exercises, he learned the fundamentals of battlefield survival and personal protective measures.

Belling studied tactics and weaponry, and gained proficiency in emergency medical techniques, casualty evacuation, field sanitation and preventive medicine procedures.

A 1975 high school graduate in Granite City, he joined the Navy in December 1975.

Discounts apply to total charges on Direct-Dial calls, but only to additional minute charges on Operator-assisted calls. Direct-Dial calls do not apply to coin, hotel-guest, hospital patient, credit card, collect or person-to-person calls, or to calls charged to another number, because an Operator must be involved with such calls. They do apply to calls placed with an Operator from a residence or business phone where Direct-Dial facilities are not available. Discounts to Alaska and Hawaii are one-quarter off after 5 p.m. on weekdays and one-half off on the weekend—anytime Saturday or before 5 p.m. Sunday.

Responsibility education being introduced this fall

It's not a new textbook. Nor is it a new course. Nor a new state mandated program. What it is, in the view of State Superintendent of Education Joseph M. Cronin, is the fourth "R" of schooling: responsibility education.

"Teaching the basic skills of reading, writing and arithmetic is still the first obligation of our schools," says Supt. Cronin. "Just as intellectual development is fundamental to the learning process, though, so is the training of children for adulthood, for the world of work, the community and the nation," according to the state's chief school officer.

"Responsibility education," he says, "is an approach to education that emphasizes the values, ideals, understanding and judgment essential for character development and responsible citizenship."

This fall, the concept will be introduced in a pilot network of 40 to 50 schools in Illinois.

To help the schools implement the program, the Illinois Office of Education will be offering inservice training for teachers. And state education office professionals who specialize in individual subject areas will be developing articles, ideas and guidelines on how to fit the responsibility concept into each area of study. Also being planned is a teachers handbook that will serve as a guide for schools planning subsequent entry into the network.

In addition, a task force of representatives from business, labor, community, government, education and special interest groups will be appointed later to help foster wide support for the concept and to provide guidance in the implementation process.

Dr. Cronin first advocated education for responsibility in a speech last November before a statewide gathering of school administrators and school board members.

In April, the State Board of Education unanimously endorsed the concept and directed the Office of Education to develop the curricular models, materials and training programs needed for implementation.

"The emphasis on responsibility education," the superintendent told the board, "builds on a long tradition that public schools would teach and reinforce the high ideals known collectively as the American Creed."

He said the need for the current emphasis is reflected in student crime statistics, dropout and unemployment rates and the political apathy among young voters.

For example, during 1975, he said, American school-age children were responsible for 270,000 school burglaries and vandalizing more than $600 million worth of school property.

Even though responsibility education won't become a mandated program, several subjects compatible to the goals of training mature citizens already are required in Illinois schools.

Environmental education fosters understanding of the need for prudent use of natural resources.

Consumer education helps students avoid economic illiteracy by teaching them buying and budgeting skills.

Health and safety education emphasizes the prevention of illness or accidents involving one's self or others.

Other goals of the responsibility concept seek the development in students of occupational awareness, knowledge of law and authority, an ability to deal with change and an aptitude to think creatively and with flexibility.

Specific kinds of programs and activities designed to fulfill the goals include:

1. School practicum programs in which students spend one semester learning the responsibilities of adults by working as apprentices to administrative personnel.
2. Work-study programs involving the economic components of social studies and business education.
3. Law-focused education which exposes students to the legal system, learning about elements of justice, actual court cases, corrections and rehabilitation.

4. Community-based education, including first-hand work experience with public buying and budgeting skills.

Park pre-school starts Sept. 20

The Granite City Park District's preschool program will begin the week of Sept. 20, it was announced today by Harold Brown, superintendent of parks and recreation.

At the time of registration, the starting date had not been determined, he explained.

Classes will be held at the Nameoki Recreation Center, Amos and Franklin avenues, on Mondays and Wednesdays.

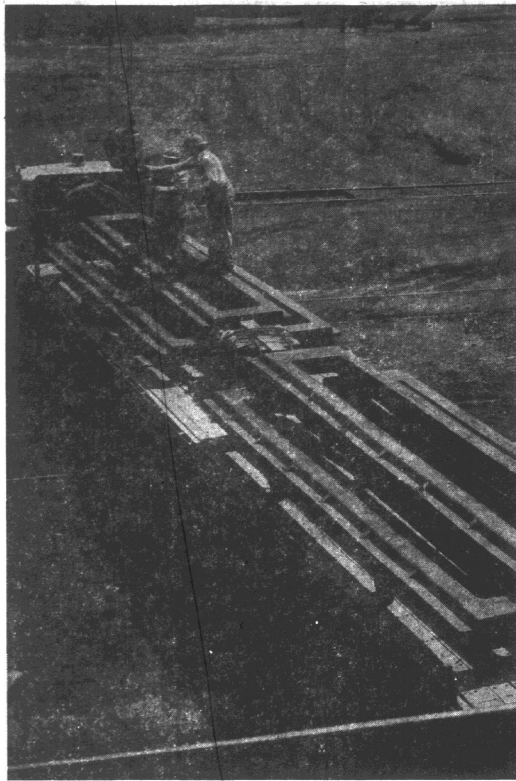

Morning sessions will take place from 9:30 to 11:30 and afternoon sessions from 1 until 3.

Parents having children registered in the preschool program may call the park district office, at 877-3069, for additional information, Supt. Brown said.

A December registration date will be set for 35 children wanting to join the program whose fourth birthday occurs before Feb. 1, 1977.

$300 TOOL THEFT

Johnny D. Hall, 4900 Lindsay, Granite City, reported during the weekend that his truck was entered and a toolbox containing $300 worth of assorted tools was taken while the truck was parked in the driveway of his home.

NEW OVEN DOOR JAMBS are about to be lifted from a truck for installation at the ends of the tall, narrow coke ovens in Granite City Steel's "C" battery. Improved operations are expected to result from the current project.

State health officials recommend flu shots

By MARY RICHARDS
Illinois Department of Public Health

There has been a lot of controversy about the New Jersey (Swine) Flu immunization program.

Some people take a "better safe than sorry" stand, while others seem to feel that it's not necessary to immunize everyone.

State public health physicians in Illinois, however, are unanimous in their belief that Americans should receive the vaccine.

"This particular strain of influenza hasn't been seen in the United States for more than 40 years," said one physician. "That means that most people have not had an opportunity to build up any natural immunity to it."

Public health officials fear that, because nearly everyone is susceptible to this type of influenza, an outbreak in the United States could mean one as large as the 1918 epidemic.

In that epidemic, millions of Americans were infected, schools and other public places were closed, churches suspended services and many places of business had to close until the epidemic was over.

Public health officials point out that, for the first time in history, they have advance warning that a particular strain of influenza might appear during the winter months.

They cannot, of course, say with certainty that there will be a New Jersey influenza epidemic this winter. But if this flu virus follows the traditional influenza pattern (a few cases early in the year followed by an increase in cases late in the year), its appearance could be expected around the middle of December.

"Knowing this," commented one physician, "how can we not encourage citizens of Illinois to receive the vaccine?"

The New Jersey influenza mass immunization plan has been compared to preventing forest fires. It's much better, and easier, to prevent a forest fire (or an epidemic) than to deal with it after it has started.

The decision to have this immunization is, of course, up to each individual person. But, according to Illinois public health physicians, it's truly a matter of "an ounce of prevention" being worth much more than "a pound of cure."

If you want more information about New Jersey (Swine) influenza, write to: Illinois Department of Public Health, Division of Disease Control, 535 W. Jefferson St., Springfield, Ill. 62761.

Miss Bonnie Luebbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Luebbert, 21 Riviera Drive, has just returned home from a three-week stay in Scotland, England and Ireland. The local girl traveled with several members of the junior company of the St. Louis Civic Ballet, whose senior dancers performed at the International Festival of Youth Orchestras and Performing Arts in Scotland.

She also visited points of interest in the London area and Glasgow.

Miss Luebbert was born in Forfar, Scotland, while her father was stationed there in the U.S. Navy. Her background and love of dancing, including her skill in performing the native Scottish dances, were described in two articles appearing in the Aberdeen (Scotland) newspaper.

A student at Granite City High School South, Miss Luebbert also studied Scottish dance numbers with teachers over there.

Previously, she has received awards for her performance of the scottische, a round dance in duple measure similar to a polka but slower, at contests in St. Louis and also in Scotland.

Earlier this summer, the youthful dancer studied ballet at the National Academy of Ballet in Champaign, Ill. During auditions to enter the academy, Miss Luebbert earned "very good ratings," her teachers report.

She is currently a student of the Ballet Arts Academy in St. Louis and the Salem School of Dance in Granite City, under the tutelage of Mrs. Marge Salem.

Mrs. Salem, who operates her dance school at 3836 John Glenn Drive, has been elected secretary of the St. Louis Civic Ballet Company for 1976-77. She also is a member of the governing board of the St. Louis Dancing Teachers Association of Dance Masters of America.

Henry Gantt family reunion at GC park

The Henry Gantt family held a reunion in Wilson Park with relatives gathering here from Texas, Kentucky and North Carolina, among other locales.

The day was spent reminiscing, playing games and celebrating the birthday of Norman G. "Babe" Gantt of Granite City. An extensive picnic meal was prepared by the women in the Gantt family.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Gantt, Mr. and Mrs. N. G. "Babe" Gantt and children, Kay, Laura, Gail and Carol, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold McKinney and children, Nancy, Jimmy and Janet, all of Granite City.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Lee Tucker and children, Diana and Clinton Del, all of Collinsville; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Juenger and son, Kurt, Troy, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Clinton L. Gantt and son, Larry, Richardson, Tex.; Mrs. Douglas Allard of Plano, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Dale Gantt and children, Rickie, Rita and Marybeth of Houston, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. David Short of Hubert, N.C.; Mrs. David Gantt and son, Dennis, of Murray, Ky.; and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Anderson of Kirkwood, Mo.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH REEDER JR., who were united in marriage at the Second Baptist Church in Marion, Ill. The bride is the former Miss Teddi Alyce Mitchell, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mitchell of Marion. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reeder Sr., 3148 Myrtle Ave.

Teddi Mitchell becomes Mrs. Ralph Reeder Jr.

Miss Teddi Alyce Mitchell, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mitchell of Marion, Ill., became the bride of Ralph F. Reeder Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph F. Reeder Sr., 3148 Myrtle Ave., on Aug. 7 at the Second Baptist Church in Marion.

Burning tapers in branched candelabra illuminated the sanctuary for the 4:30 p.m. double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Wallace Curlee of Marion and the Rev. David B. Maxton of Granite City.

Wedding music included the Lord's Prayer, Excerpt from Semele by Handel and "Trumpet Voluntary" by Purcell for the processional and recessional.

For her wedding, the former Miss Mitchell, chose a full length gown of ivory organza and reembodyered Alencon lace etched with pearls.

The molded bodice of lace featured a high neckline and short cap sleeves. From the natural waistline the organza circular skirt fell softly into a chapel train.

She wore a picture hat covered in ivory Alencon lace and held a bouquet of ivory roses and smilax accented with lace ribbon and beading.

Miss Stasia Mitchell, a sister of the bride, served as maid of honor with bridesmaids, Miss Reeder and Miss Rebecca Reeder, the groom's sister.

They wore identical long gowns created in an opal chiffon and designed with Empire bodices with halter necklines with flowing capes with mandarin collars.

Each attendant wore a matching chiffon picture hat and held a nosegay of miniature pink carnations with ivory mums and baby's breath.

The groom chose Bernard S. Miller III as his best man. Groomsmen and ushers included Gary Loy, William Nicksch, Gregory Hutchings, Stuart Berkson and Stephen Mitchell, a brother of the bride.

Michael Calvo, a nephew of the groom, was the ringbearer. Guests were received by the newlyweds at a reception held in the church fellowship hall after the service.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted at the Uptowner Restaurant in Marion.

The couple are now residing in Champaign, Ill., after a wedding trip to the Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Marion High School and the groom was graduated in 1973 from Granite City High School. They are both senior students at the University of Illinois and are both majoring in biology.

Pi Eta Chapter plans projects

Mrs. Charlotte Charbonnier was hostess to members of Pi Eta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, at a "Beginning Day" brunch this week at her home 2224 Dwight Drive.

The president Mrs. Judy Onesty presided at a business session as chairmen of various committees outlined projects for approaching months.

Mrs. Barbara Kennerly, service chairman, announced the chapter had aided in the "meals on wheels" program and they will start a collection of all aluminum products which will be recycled for funds to be donated to the Kidney Foundation.

Social chairman Mrs. Charbonnier reported on plans to take children of members, and guests on a tour of the botanical gardens in St. Louis and to the afternoon at the zoo on Sept. 19.

Two ways and means projects were discussed by Mrs. Jerry Turner to take place within the month.

The president invited the group to her home for the Sept. 1 meeting and said a representative from the American Cancer Society will be the guest speaker on the topic of "Detecting Cancer."

Those attending included guests Judi Campbell, Sheila Loftus, Shirley McClellan and members Donna Yehling, Janice Noland, Betty Welch, Wanda Graham, Sandy Ashcraft and Mary Ruth Snelson.

Seniors Club hosts potluck

The More Merrier Senior Citizen Club hosted a potluck luncheon at the Senior Citizen Center, 1920 Edison Ave. on Thursday.

President John Winkmeier opened the meeting and the Rev. Wallace Curlee, pastor of the church, was led by Chaplain Ruby Corbett.

The president then introduced Frank Mercer, guest speaker for the day.

After lunch games were played and prizes awarded to Bernice Caldwell, Charlotte Smith and Ruby Oronovich. A floral bouquet donated by Willis Florist was won by Clara Westerman.

Those honored on their birthdays were Villa Riding and Jessie Chase. Two new members, Harold Hines and Leola Sedabres were welcomed by the group.

Others present included Emma Cobble, Della Robb, Mae Findley, Loretta Wychoke, Edward and Elva Lallende, Neal Panha, Lena Harnsen, Theresa Dear, Elizabeth Gasko, Filomena Gruber, Martin Schulte, Gertrude Bundy, Louis and Edna Wille.

Blanche Schaver, Sylvia Simurda, Dot Brookscher, Ida Cassel, Freda Zimmer, Alene McPherson, Roy Lytle, Mildred Johnson, Helen Newland, William Dumont, Florence Ashal, Ruby Nagy, Hazel Demos, Frank and Fern Johnson, Esther Paterson, Grace Paddock, Ivalie Streetmaker and Edna Wheat.

MRS. RICHARD PICKERING whose wedding took place at St. John Lutheran Church in Granite City. Formerly Miss Janet Suzanne Corbin, the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Corbin of Marine Ill. formerly of Granite City.

Janet Corbin marries Richard L. Pickering

The wedding of Miss Janet Suzanne Corbin and Richard Lee Pickering of Wood River, was solemnized on July 30 at St. John Lutheran Church, Granite City.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. James E. Corbin, Rural Route One, Marine, Ill., formerly of Granite City. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pickering of Springfield, Mo.

The Rev. Samuel Boda of ficiated at the 6:30 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Wedding music was played by Ellen Boda at the organ. She accompanied guitarist Greg Heaver who played and sang. "Follow Me" and "Wedding Song."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride, chose a full length gown of ivory organza and reembodyered Alencon lace etched with seed pearls.

The molded bodice was fashioned with a scaling neckline, and long sleeves of Alencon lace. Scallop lace accented the high rise waistline and semi full skirt applied with lace motifs which were repeated on the chapel train.

A lace camellia cap held in place her full length veil bordered in lace and she carried a bouquet of chiffon salmon pink roses, white carnations and baby's breath with ivory satin ribbons.

Maid of honor was Miss Jeanne Corbin, a sister of the bride, and bridesmaids included Mrs. Jacqueline Straube, another sister of the bride, Mrs. Maria Mang, Mrs. Brenda Boyd and Miss Gayle Tippet.

They selected formal length royal blue sleeveless gowns designed with Empire waists and flared skirts with the worn with pouches in off white fabric embroidered with blue flowers.

Each attendant wore a natural color straw hat trimmed with the floral fabric and also held posies of artificial chifon roses, carnations and

Birthday party held at Bason residence

A birthday celebration honoring Keith Santacruz and his grandfather, Alex Bason was held this week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bason, 2114 Cheshire Court.

The hosts served a buffet dinner in the early evening followed by showing family and travel movies in the radio-cassette. Miniature roses centered the serving table and bouquets of assorted roses decorated the radio-cassette.

Those attending included Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Treacy, Mr. and Mrs. Jim McKechnie, Miss Irma Bauer, Sal Rubella, La Don Bason, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bason, Mr. and Mrs. James Whaley and Ann Bason.

MOVIE SCAN

Short takes on new films

"The Man Who Fell To Earth" (R) — English director Nicholas Roeg has made this movie too enigmatic for popular acceptance, but his science-fiction movie is certain to become a cult film. Briefly, the title figure is an intelligent, extraterrestrial visitor who has come to earth seeking a solution to the drought problem on his own dying planet. But, corrupted by earthlings, the visitor is doomed to spend his remaining days on earth. David Bowie, the English rock music star, is ideally cast in the title role.

"Treasure of the Matecumbe" (G) — A current boys' adventure reminiscent of Mark Twain and Robert Louis Stevenson, this is a good movie despite some technical flaws. Disney Studios took Robert Lewis Taylor's book about buried treasure on a Florida key called Matecumbe and added a high-spirited Southern lass, Joan Hackett, to help the boys win out over a gang of cutthroats and forge a happy ending. Peter Ustinov and Vic Morrow give the derring-do movie a certain oomph.

"Gator" (PG) — Actor-director Burt Reynolds' new movie is full of laughs, mostly by the cast. The villain, Jerry Reed, laughs most of the time and Reynolds, the husky hero, often joins in on the hilarity, too. Unfortunately, the audience laughs very little.

This is Reynolds' first directing effort and he treats it pretty much as he does a television talk show. Shot. Reynolds, as "Gator," is blackmailed after a prison term into helping the FBI run down his erstwhile buddy, Reed, with the help of motor-boat and auto chases, etc. The weakness of this movie lies primarily with the villains, who come on as rather likable chaps instead of menaces.

"The Gamball Rally" (PG) — This offering lives up to its namesake as a penny confection, if inflation still permits that. But it gets a little stale after a brief chewing. Former stunt coordinator Chuck Ball produced and directed what amounts to a thrill show instead of a movie, with most of its 106 minutes devoted to auto racing and crashes.

Michael Sarrazin, as a dilettante business executive, brings together members of a loosely knit, entirely unauthorized cross-country race club for a speed run to New York City. The result is spectacular crashes of cars and motorcycles, many of them on Los Angeles streets, freeways and flood control channels. Strictly for the hot rods.

"Futureworld" (PG) — In this American-International Pictures production, James T. Aubrey Jr. and Paul Lazarus III seek a comeback for Delos, the futuristic-themed amusement park first introduced three years ago in the motion picture "Westworld," where human-looking robots led by Yul Brynner went awry and killed the park patrons.

Peter Fonda is effective as an investigative reporter sent to find out whether things are still rotten in Delos, and sure enough, they still are. This is one of the better summer films, especially for science-fiction buffs.

"Tunnel Vision" (R) — Television is such a gigantic target for parody you would think anybody could hit it a few swipes. But this movie, a look at TV as it is to be perhaps in 1985, somehow misses the mark most of the time and the few hits are on the outer fringe of the target. A network called Tunnel Vision has won a court decision giving it total freedom in programming.

The result is situation comedies even snuttier than the ones today, worse soap operas and bloodier cop shows, etc., with little real humor to relieve the picture. Even so, somehow "Tunnel Vision" has received considerable critical acclaim.

From the spirit world to horses

A MATTER OF IMMORTALITY: Dramatic Evidence of Survival; by Jess Stearn; Atheneum Publishers; $9.95. This is a fascinating portrait of well-known Hollywood medium Maria Moreno. Although Moreno is often unaware of her fame or importance, celebrated names, both in this world and in the spirit world, fill her story. To cite only two of the tidbits revealed, we are told Marilyn Monroe did nothing questionable with either of the Kennedys; that Rudolph Valentino actually did die of slow poisoning, the deed of a jealous neighbor. Moreno's revelations as written by Stearn will go a long way in convincing even the most cynical that life indeed does not end with physical death. (PG)

SWEDEN: by Barry Turner; B. T. Batsford Ltd. (distributed in the United States by Hippocrene Books); 156 pages; $12.95. This handsome, well-illustrated (16 photographs, one map) introduction to one of the richest nations in the world should clear up any misconceptions the reader might have about the Swedes' stiffness in social situations and looseness in moral attitudes. Barry Turner presents a perceptive in-depth view of the land and its people with a portrait of the Swedes at home, a short history of the country, a section on food and drink, individual chapters on the major cities and regions and a look at the Swedish social ideology. (MWB)

THE CONCISE BOOK OF THE HORSE; edited by Candice Gedes; Arco Publishing Co.; 166 pages; $9.95. A new version of "Complete Book of the Horse" has been specially designed for readers with a need for a more compact book. Breeds, types, health care and management training as well as a brief history of the horse are included. This informative book traces the rise in equestrian sports to modern-day spectator sports. Propose tool rental shop

The Madison County Zoning Board of Appeals has recommended that the Madison County Board approve special use permits for a tool rental business and for a mobile home, both in the Quad-Cities.

The zoning board recommends a permit be granted to Marshall E. Carney to operate a tool rental shop at 1925 Fourth St., East Madison, in the McNair Subdivision. The property is in an R-4 single-family residential district of Nemo Township.

The petition is recommended under the stipulation that everything associated with the rental business be kept within a fence.

The zoning board also recommends that a permit be granted to Anna King and Daria E. McDonald to continue the placement of a mobile home at 5012 Lakeview Drive, in the Long Lake Park Subdivision of Chouteau Township in an area zoned R-3 for single-family residential use.

The permit is recommended with stipulations that it be limited to not more than five years, that occupancy be limited to the families of those receiving the permit, and that the mobile home be removed from the premises when no longer needed.

Services are held for Mrs. Wright.
Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at a Granite City funeral home for Mrs. Norma Wright, 65, of 4808 Lakeview Drive, Fonton Beach.

She had collapsed at her home Monday and was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital, where she was pronounced dead upon arrival. She is survived by her husband, Robert; one daughter, Mrs. Howard (Betty) Eates of Granite City; two sons, Harold Lloyd Stevenson of Tucson, Ariz., and Ernest Stevenson of Worden, Ill.; two brothers, Homer Campbell of Madison and Ralph Campbell of Boreno, Ill.; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Burial took place in St. John Cemetery, Dongola, Ill.

MOTORWAYS States are eyeing gas tax boosts

By FRANK MACOMBER

The American motorist, already facing the specter of higher gasoline prices next winter, had better brace for another possible grab at his or her pocketbook. Increased state gasoline taxes in some regions of the nation. The Highway Users Federation, a nonprofit organization representing segments of the highway and transportation industries, says a survey of state legislatures shows that nearly 100 proposals on motor vehicle-related taxes were introduced this year.

Twenty-two states either have considered or are studying tax boosts on gasoline, the federation reports. Idaho this year approved a fuel tax climb from 8.5 to 9.5 cents a gallon. Kansas boosted its gas levy from seven to eight cents, and Hawaii and South Dakota legislatures approved continuation of previous fuel tax increases.

In Minnesota, Nebraska, Tennessee, Washington, Colorado and Wisconsin, moves to hike fuel taxes died or were vetoed.

In Alabama, Alaska, California, Florida, Iowa, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, a variety of gas tax advances still are before the legislatures.

The Virginia lawmakers went a step beyond a plain tax jump by authorizing cities and counties in the Northern Virginia Transportation District to impose a 4 per cent sales tax on motor fuel for roads and transportation purposes, to be determined by local government agencies. Much of northern Virginia is considered suburban Washington, D.C.

Two states, Iowa and West Virginia, considered slapping percentage taxes on gasoline — up to 25 per cent of the per-gallon price. The proposal died in Iowa, but still is being considered in the West Virginia Legislature.

The federation predicts 1977 will bring an even more furious scramble by state legislatures to hike motor vehicle taxes one way or another. Every state except Kentucky will hold regular legislative sessions next year.

A comparison of state motor fuel taxes in 1965 and 1975 reflects an average climb from 6.33 cents to 7.96 cents per gallon — a 25.2 per cent increase.

In the same period, automobile operating costs rose 45.5 per cent, the consumer price index went up 75.5 per cent and highway construction prices rose 125.4 per cent. Eight states — Alabama, Alaska, California, Nevada, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas — didn't hike gasoline taxes at all between 1965 and 1975. Tennessee has had the same seven-cent-per-gallon levy for 43 years.

By the end of last year, state gas tax rates ranged from a low of five cents per gallon in Texas to a high of 16 cents in Connecticut and Rhode Island. However, Pennsylvania is considering a climb in its fuel tax from eight to 11 cents per gallon in its current legislative session.

Add the four-cent-per-gallon federal gas tax to the states levies and the average levy paid by American motorists climbed from 10.33 cents per gallon in 1965 to 11.96 cents per gallon last year.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN'S LUNCHEON SEPT. 11
The Southern Illinois Christian Women's Club will hold its next luncheon meeting at 11:45 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 11 at Fischer's Restaurant in Belleville.

Marilyn Fallon, chairman of St. Louis Southwest County Christian Women's Club will be the guest speaker and soloist. Reservations and cancellations are essential according to Mrs. Charles Hamilton, of the host club. Reservations may be made by calling Marie Schaefer at 561-4970. Tickets are set at $2.50 per person, she added.

Home remodeling can pay off

By DAVID MAYER

Whether you're thinking of adding a room to your home, remodeling your kitchen or finishing your basement, you should do some homework before you start the project.

Should you hire a contractor or do the work yourself? How much of the cost of the improvement can you expect to regain when you sell the house? How can you finance the project?

A new publication, "There's Money in Your House," by Hugh Hennessey, answers many basic questions on home improvements and tells how to get answers to others.

The book is published by Commercial Credit Corp., which made $77 million in home improvement loans to homeowners last year.

According to the author, Americans will spend about $3.5 billion remodeling their homes in 1976. The most popular projects are kitchen and bathroom remodeling, adding a family room and finishing a basement.

Well over half the remodeling jobs are "do-it-yourself" projects.

What effect will a remodeling project have on the value of a house? Hennessey says unless you make unorthodox or unusual changes in improving your home, you can expect its sales value to rise in a direct ratio to the money spent for remodeling. He gives the example of a wealthy man who made structural changes in his house to accommodate a large bathroom with a sunken double tub, built-in stereo and radio, a multitelephone system and a bidet. To do so, he cut down on the size of adjacent rooms and virtually eliminated most of the closet space. When the house was put on the market later, there were few buyers interested in a home with a huge bathroom and no closet space.

Experts say the value of a house will increase most, the author points out, for a new kitchen or bathroom, an extra bedroom or a new family room. Homeowners who make these improvements can expect to recover perhaps 60 to 75 per cent of their costs when they sell the house.

Hennessey gives these pointers for would-be home remodelers.

— Be careful in choosing a contractor. Check with friends, architects, the Better Business Bureau, consumer agencies, building supply firms and banks; then get bids from at least three contractors before signing.

— Make sure your plans conform to local building codes and zoning ordinances, and secure financing before the work starts. Arrange for a contract that includes a payment schedule, work timetable and a detailed description of the work.

— Try to specify the use of stock components and standard sizes, including lumber, stock-size doors and windows, and other items that will cost less than custom-made products.

— Interior work should be done in the winter, off-season for contractors and the best time to get a good price on lumber and other materials.

Exterior work is best done in early spring or fall, when housing construction is slower than in summer.

— Try to be around when the work is being done. If possible, confine the entry and exit of the work crew to one door of the house. Make sure finished floors are protected at all times, and do not make any payment until you have carefully inspected all the work and judge it satisfactory.

— Consider adding insulation — it may help you get by with smaller and less costly heating and cooling equipment.

YIAFFFF! Despite the expression, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville filmmaker Dick Taylor said the "Screamin' Eagle" at Six Flags Over Mid-America was "not really the terrifying ride I'd expected."

CLIMBING TO THE TOP of the first peak on the "Screamin' Eagle," Dick Taylor gets some solid footage as assistant Whit Rejchert looks back and aims the microphone toward other riders. Taylor is a filmmaker for SIUE.

Screamin' Eagle Tests SIUE Filmmaker's Cinematic Skills

By R. A. Wilber
Dick Taylor, filmmaker for Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, will do whatever has to be done to get just the right shot. But a recent trip to the "Screamin' Eagle" at Six Flags Over Mid-America was a true test of Taylor's cinematic skills.

As the world's tallest, fastest, and longest roller coaster rose, dove, dipped, and curved through miles of track, Taylor filmed the frenetic proceedings for future use in an SIUE documentary.

"It was not the real terrifying ride I'd expected," said Taylor, who fancies himself a roller coaster expert as well as a top-flight filmmaker. "I mean, I've been on others that just left you totally wiped out. But," he admitted with some slight understatement, "it did move out a little, didn't it."

Because it "did move out a little," Taylor was unable to use the SIUE Motion Picture Production Unit's sound camera (an Arriflex BL) when he filmed three or four circuits of the track from the last car. That ride (which is, he explained, "always better than the front car—the momentum pulls you along quicker and you get more action.") was too much for Taylor to handle with the bulkier sound camera, so he switched to a lighter, smaller, Bell and Howell camera.

When in the front car to film, however, the Arriflex, with a shoulder mount, was easily handled by the SIUE filmmaker. And his camera lens' view of the ride should make for interesting footage when it is fitted into an SIUE recruitment or information film.

The campus Motion Picture Production Unit, a two-man department run by Director Don Magary with Taylor as his cinematographer, is used to filming unusual shots—although roller coasters are not the usual everyday fare for the busy unit.

Taylor was recently seen hanging rather precariously from a low-flying helicopter filming a construction site for a new road on campus, as an example. And through the year, the two can be found finding whatever shots are most effective for upcoming SIUE film projects.

In recent months, the unit has finished a campus information film on SIUE, a film for the School of Education, a 25-minute feature for the School of Business off-campus programs, a 15-minute feature for the School of Dental Medicine, and a half-hour feature on the Mississippi River Festival, held on the campus of SIUE each summer.

Those films, along with innumerable film clips made for television use, are more than enough to keep the two full-time filmmakers busy, as well as their two student workers who earn while they learn about filmmaking. And the cost savings to the University over having the films made commercially is considerable, according to Taylor.

More importantly, however, for Taylor is the feeling that "our unit's films are as good or better than those that would be hired out. And we feel, as a part of the University, our pictures really reflect the ideas and aims of the school in a very high quality product."

And achieving that quality requires some effort, which is where hanging out of helicopters and challenging the "Screamin' Eagle" come in. It makes for interesting work for Taylor and Magary, and it results in fine films for SIUE. Of course, it can also result in a slightly queasy stomach after eight or nine flights on a rocketing roller coaster. But that too, said Taylor with a strained smile, "is all part of the job."

Automation speeding state license plates

This year Illinois motor vehicle owners are receiving their license plates faster than ever before.

Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett said that as of Monday his office was 26 days ahead of last year's schedule in mailing the 1977 plates.

This year's mailings began Aug. 2, while the mailing period for last year's plates did not start until Aug. 27. Figures further show that two years ago plates were not mailed until Oct. 11.

On Friday, Aug. 27, more than 77,000 license plates had been mailed to vehicle owners throughout the state, more than five times the number of plates mailed by this time last year.

"I am happy to report that, our office has experienced a dramatic increase in the speed and volume of plate mailings during the past three years," Howlett said. "I think we can all be proud of his year's record."

In addition, Howlett reported that license plate requests for Air fare terms vary

By VIRGINIA KNAUER
Director
U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs
Have you decided to fly rather than drive on your next vacation?
That first call you make to the airline or travel agent might discourage you if you don't know the right questions to ask or the terminology used by the reservation clerk or agent.
The first question you'll probably want to ask is—What is the lowest individual discount fare available between the points you want to travel? Then, how can you qualify for the fare?
Most of the time, there are restrictions and conditions (such as advance reservations and ticket purchase, time of day, day of week, season of year, length of stay, day of return, and whether you're traveling on the family plan.) Recently someone in my office made reservations for a trip to Florida.

She had to change her reservation and leave later in the week.
To her surprise she saved about $30 by traveling on a Tuesday when lower fares were available.
If you're planning to take your children along on the trip, you might also want to ask if the discount fares provide a price reduction for children.

Below are the air fare terms most commonly used by airline and travel agents.
FIRST CLASS—Deluxe service, priced accordingly.
COACH—Customer service in coach compartment of the airplane, but not economy fare (see below).
STANDARD—Equivalent of coach compartment on single-compartment planes.
ECONOMY—Thrift or commuter-type service without complimentary meal and beverage—priced lower than coach.
NIGHT SERVICE—Available only on selected night flights, usually between 10 p.m. and 4 a.m.—priced substantially below comparable day service.
EXCURSION—Discount fares requiring advance purchase, round-trip travel, and a minimum-maximum length of stay.

TOUR BASING—Individual and group discount fares requiring prepayment of certain ground accommodations and subject to other requirements such as minimum-maximum stay.
ADVANCE PURCHASE—International discount fare requiring 60-day advance purchase—priced substantially below coach.
GROUP—Available to groups—prices vary by group size.
CHILDREN'S FARES—For domestic travel, children under 2 not occupying a seat travel free; children 2 to 11 with adult normally travel at two-thirds full fare.
For international travel, children under 2 not occupying a seat travel at 90 per cent discount; children 2 to 11 with adult travel at half fare.

CHARTERS—There are several types of charters available to consumers that are normally sold by charter organizers through travel agents and normally offer the lowest cost air transportation available.
Charters are subject to various conditions that must be set forth in your contract.

Chouteau center contracts are to be signed Sept. 7

Contracts for construction of a new Chouteau Township community center and town hall building are expected to be signed by the Chouteau Town Board of Auditors at the board's next meeting Sept. 7.

The new total cost of construction will be $161,977, or $25,314 less than the bids for the construction opened by the board Aug. 23.

The reduction from the $187,291 in total bids Aug. 23 was the result of consultations between the proposed building's architect John Rapp, and the lowest bidders.

Justice courses start this month

Two upper division courses in the Administration of Justice will be offered by McKendree College at the Edwardsville Civil Defense Center on Hale Road, beginning in September.

The courses, Criminal Justice and the Community (AJ 301) and Rights and Responsibilities of Police Officers (AJ 340), will be offered on rotating shifts on Mondays and Saturdays and are open to all interested persons.

Law Enforcement Education Program (LEEP) and Veterans Administration (VA) benefits can be applied toward tuition costs.

Students interested in enrolling in either course may contact Jim Jackson or Robert Eskridge, McKendree College, Lebanon 62254 or telephone 537-4481.

YOUNG WOMAN HURT

Miss Brenda Smith, 16, of 2105 Emzee St., was injured in an auto accident early this week. She was treated and x-rayed at St. Elizabeth Hospital for neck pain before being released.

The town board has slightly more than $182,000 in Community Development grant and federal revenue sharing funds available to construct the building at no direct cost to the taxpayers.

When the bids totaling more than $187,000 were opened, Rapp was instructed to meet with the two lowest bidders in each category—general construction, plumbing, electrical, and heating and cooling—and discuss revisions in the plans which could reduce the price.

Joe Wilson Construction of Godfrey reduced its bid to $119,209 for general construction by deleting 130 feet of fascia and framing at the top of the building in the rear and by accepting Rapp's suggestions.

Following Rapp's suggestions, Meredith Wilson Construction Co. reduced its bid to $125,848 from $140,000.

Rapp suggested deleting the earth berm and treated railroad ties around the proposed building, the ceramic and vinyl tile all carpeting, and the prefinished wall paneling, interior painting of concrete block walls and the canopy over the main entrance.

All of these things can be added or completed at a future date, when more funds are available he noted.

The contractors also agreed that any or all of the deleted work could be added to the job at any time during construction with an appropriate price increase.

Low bidders on electrical work also were requested to submit reduced bids due to deletion of lighting in the canopy. Wegman Electric, the former low bidder, was the only one to respond, reducing its bid from $20,480 to $17,420.

Spiroff Heating and Cooling of Granite City was the only company to reduce its low bid for the deletion of a hood over the kitchen equipment, downing it from $15,841 to $14,987.

Modern Plumbing Co. agreed to reduce its low bid from $11,000 to $10,381 by deleting a water cooler and a few other items.

The township auditors and the township's Community Development committee then studied the revised bids and agreed to award contracts for the low bids totaling $161,977.

The contracts currently are being prepared by Rapp and the township's attorneys will review the contracts prior to the Sept. 7 Chouteau Town Board of Auditors meeting where the board will be asked to approve the contracts.

Counties deserve state help on criminal justice costs—Howlett

The responsibility of state government to help counties support their criminal justice systems should be re-appraised, Michael J. Howlett, Democratic candidate for governor, said during the weekend.

Howlett told the Urban Counties Council of Illinois that "the 1970 Constitution cost the county governments substantial revenues from traditional sources."

"The three per cent fee on tax collections for other local governments was discontinued. A four per cent inheritance tax collection fee and a substantial personal property tax revenue were lost."

"Federal revenue sharing began in 1972 but didn't make up the difference in the larger counties."

"Counties rely for their general fund mostly on real estate taxes, fees and fines rather than on the income tax and the sales tax, which are more responsive to inflation."

"County governments receive sales taxes only from businesses in unincorporated areas and receive a share of the state income tax based on their unincorporated population."

"As counties grow, and municipalities annex more territory, the unincorporated areas diminish, eroding the sales and income tax base for county governments."

"Meanwhile, the real property tax base is slow to keep up with inflation."

"Between 1966 and 1971, for example, total assessed valuation of Illinois property rose 25 per cent while county expenditures rose 106 per cent."

"Counties carry a heavy load for their part in the state's criminal justice system. In the larger counties, about half the general fund expenditure goes into courts and law enforcement."

"Criminal justice costs have risen rapidly in the larger counties at the same time the counties have been more highly urbanized."

"Jail residents come disproportionately from the municipalities, the very areas which do not provide sales or income tax moneys for the county governments.

"Illinois is 47th among the 50 states in its percentage share of state and local expenditures for criminal justice."

"A thorough study of criminal justice financing should be undertaken. It should consider additional state assistance—when we get the money—for county criminal justice service as well as transferring appropriate functions to the state."

Howlett said many fiscal problems are imposed on counties by state government decisions.

Among them, he mentioned counties paying part of judges' salaries (previously paid entirely by the state); doubling of workmen's compensation costs for many counties; and state reimbursement of less than full cost of medicare payments by counties.

If the Department of Public Aid provided full cost reimbursement for county homes, more than five million dollars would be taken off the local tax load," Howlett added.

"That amount would then be paid half by state revenues and half by the federal Medicaid match. We should use those available federal funds."

"The federal government has $21 million for Illinois for this purpose which we aren't using."

"We aren't receiving our fair share of federal money. Illinois is last among the 50 states in per capita grants from the federal government," he said.

Before passing legislation affecting counties, Howlett said, the General Assembly should review timely county fiscal data, including expected revenues and expenditures; an "impact statement" should be required for bills that have a financial impact on county government.

"We need to study carefully state programs, including Medicaid, the sales tax distribution formula, the Local Government Distributive Fund formula and our criminal justice system to fully understand their current impact on county government."

"As governor, I would establish an executive task force whose sole concern would be to find a solution to the fiscal problems of county governments."

North student activity tickets

Gilbert Walmsley, principal of North High, noted today that "the Granite City Board of Education wants very much to have all students participate in as many school activities as possible."

"In order for this to be possible, the board has provided a $5 student activity pass which will entitle a student free admittance to five home football games, eight home basketball games, six home wrestling meets, the homecoming play, three vocal concerts and every issue of the school newspaper."

"Normally, admittance to athletic events and plays is 75 cents for students and the school newspaper sells for 10 cents an issue."

"All these activities would normally cost a student $17.50 if he or she were to pay for them individually. This activity ticket will save the participating student $12.50."

Walmsley said any Granite City High School North student can begin purchasing the $5 activity ticket starting Tuesday, Sept. 7, before school in the main office from 7:30 a.m. to 7:55 a.m., or daily in the high school cafeteria during his or her lunch period. Checks should be made payable to Granite City High North.

Reward on construction site vandalism and thefts

"Since reduction of construction site thefts and vandalism losses reduces the cost of doing business, it is the objective of a new program to assist contractors in making crime prevention a company policy," a spokesman said this week.

A reward program, up to $5,000, has been approved by the Southern Illinois Builders Association Industry Advancement Foundation as part of the crime prevention program.

The entitlement, division of the reward and the amount thereof to be paid are to be determined by the SIBA.

The crime prevention committee will act as a clearinghouse for new methods and techniques and will compile, revise and update the prevention program on a continuing basis.

More than 2,000 separate incidents of burglary, theft, robbery, arson and vandalism involving construction equipment and materials were reported to area police agencies in 1975 and compiled by the State Department of Law Enforcement.

The cost to the Illinois construction industry in reported stolen or damaged items was almost $3 million. An inestimable amount of smaller thefts went unreported, the spokesman added.

To date, police have recovered about $235,000 worth of materials and equipment. Howard H. Hall, president, H. H. Hall Construction, East St. Louis, and president of the Southern Illinois Builders Association, notes that the actual cost to a firm is much more because a damaged or stolen piece of equipment means time lost on a job.

Crime is not restricted to the theft of hand tools left at a jobsite, break-ins at onsite offices, shattered windows or other vandalism.

Dennis Carlisle of the Calhoun County Construction Co. of Springfield said two $10,000 Ford tractors equipped with end loaders were stolen in one year from a Granite City jobsite.

"On the first one, they just tripped the motor and drove off," he said. "On the other, we took the distributor wires out. So they just loaded it up on a truck and took it that way."

Although thefts of large equipment are covered by insurance, the contractor's premium is raised to offset the loss.

"And that cost ends up in the price tag of roads, bridges and buildings, ultimately being paid by the consumer," said Carlisle.

"It's easy to steal off construction sites," notes a troubled Lieutenant Robert Klemm, director of operations in the Illinois State Police Crime Investigation Bureau. "When times are hard," he adds, "it's not hard to get rid of stolen equipment. One of the most common targets of thieves is a backhoe, which is similar to a small farm tractor."

"That's a fast-moving piece of equipment," Klemm said. "There's a ready market for them, either to other contractors or through a fence or a legitimate dealer."

Despite a campaign to alert construction firms to possible precautions against jobsite crime, Klemm said. "Some contractors are their own worst enemy."

"Often they don't record the serial numbers on their equipment—making it impossible to trace and return stolen items," he said.

Some contractors also don't seem to want the expense of assigning one person to control inventory, and they don't bother with strict security measures that take time and money.

The Southern Illinois Builders Association (SIBA) is encouraging its members to install special night lighting, guards, fencing and alarm systems at the jobsite.

SIBA makes available signs to be posted at the jobsite, offering rewards up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest of thieves, vandals and trespassers.

SIBA also strongly suggests that contractors inventory all equipment, regardless of how big or how small, and record either the manufacturer's serial number or one of their own.

The Belleville police department has recovered a backhoe that was stolen last October from Modern Asphalt Paving and Construction Co., Belleville. According to police, the recovery was made possible because of the cooperation of Modern Asphalt.

Andy Keeley, president of Modern, had properly inventoried and recorded the serial number of the backhoe, which the Belleville police entered into the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Crime Information Center (NCIC) system.

Upon discovery of the backhoe by the detective unit, the police were able to identify it as the stolen backhoe. Equipment lacking serial numbers can be identified by the driver's license number of the person in the Company.

"All losses over $150 should be reported immediately to the local police so that the stolen items can be fed into the NCIC system," the SIBA spokesman urges.

The Ralph Korte Construction Co., Highland, reports that oxygen and acetylene tanks, hoses, gauges and torches valued at over $400—stolen from a Belleville jobsite—were recovered by the Belleville police tactical unit. The tanks were traced through their serial numbers.

Last year, someone jumped into a bulldozer left at a highway construction site for the night, drove it through a farmland and then broke all the instrument panels.

A few months ago, a bulldozer was stolen from a Central Illinois jobsite. It was taken on a rampage through a nearby cemetery, where it dug up four graves.

At another Belleville jobsite, tires were punctured on 44 concrete trucks. Recognizing theft vandalism as an ever-increasing problem on construction projects, the SIBA board of directors has appointed Korte as chairman of its crime prevention committee.

The committee is charged with the responsibility of developing a comprehensive program to promote jobsite security, prevent theft and vandalism and encourage public safety. Primary purpose of the committee is to reduce cost by increasing security and safety on SIBA members' sites.

On one of H. H. Hall's jobs in East St. Louis, vandals poured curing compound and sand into the fuel tank and the hydraulic system of a Ray-go self-propelled roller compactor. All pumps had to be replaced and the hydraulic lines cleaned, costing $3,700. In addition, Hall had to rent a replacement for one week at a cost of $1,000.

"We figure theft and vandalism and the means to control our losses cost the Hall construction firm $85,000 to $100,000. We spend over $50,000 for nightlights, guard dogs, security containers for tools and vandal-proofing equipment," Hall relates. He noted that his company recently spent $7,000 for covers to protect engines and control panels on road paving and grading equipment.

"If you add in lost time and the time spent at the start and end of each day to perform the protective measures necessary, the cost would amount to a quarter of a million dollars."

Robert F. Hoeft Sr., president of Hoeft-Steffen Construction Co., Affton, Mo., confirms what the construction industry is experiencing in the way of losses.

On one of Hoeft-Steffen's jobs in Alton, three pieces of earth-moving equipment were seriously damaged when vandals drained the oil and replaced it with molasses on one machine; packed the transmission with dirt on another; and poured sugar in the gas tank of the third.

Hoeft estimates total cost to repair the equipment at $35,000, not counting lost time and delay in construction.

"A lot of contractors don't really know what they have," according to Chairman Korte of the SIBA crime prevention committee. The Associated General Contractors of America publishes a booklet for law enforcement officials describing the location of serial numbers on most construction equipment.

SIBA has made this publication available to Illinois State Police, the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police and the National Automobile Theft Bureau.

"The construction industry has not been aware of these kinds of losses as other industries," Korte reports. "But the cost has risen so much that we can't afford not to participate in crime prevention programs. Other examples of recent thefts and vandalism in Southern Illinois include: Office trailer in Jerseyville was broken into, petty cash in the amount of $140 was taken and file cabinets valued at $450 were rendered inoperable.

Two speakers and cords were taken from ready-mix trucks in Belleville. Over 1,000 feet of welding cable was stolen from five service trucks parked in the East Alton area.

Over 120,000 feet of wire valued at $4,000 was stolen from the Highland High School job. Equipment valued at over $3,000 was taken from a Fairview Heights jobsite. Items included a paint sprayer valued at $1,400; 10 tips; spray guns; 200-foot nylon hose assembly; extension cords and dropcloths.

While it was parked at a sewage treatment project in Pere Marquette State Park, Alton, windows were smashed out of a crane. Forty-four truck tires were punctured on ready-mix trucks, boom trucks, dump trucks and backhoes in Belleville.

A 7½-inch portable saw and half-inch hammer drill were taken from a job trailer in Marion.

And a tool trailer located on Interstate 70 in Bond County was broken into. Items reported missing were a sand blast pot; heavy duty pneumatic wheel barrow; power vibratory screen; grinder; weld leads; welding helmets and gloves; 2½-lb. fire extinguisher and vacuum cleaner hose.

Downey joins McKendree

Dr. Leo Downey, dean at College Misericordia in Dallas, Pa., since 1972, has accepted the position of vice president for academic affairs at McKendree College, Lebanon, effective this month.

McKendree President Julian H. Murphy announced the conclusion of a "long, nationwide search. Dr. Downey brings a wealth of experience in secondary and collegiate administration."

"He will spearhead McKendree's 'Invent the Future' long-range planning program as the college moves toward curriculum enrichment and development, expansion in enrollment, faculty evaluation and the development of the School of Business side by side with a School of Arts and Sciences."

"Selected by a search committee composed of all segments of the college community, he will bring added strength and expertise to McKendree as we restore that image of excellence that has characterized 148 years of an illustrious past."

Downey, 56, holds a bachelor degree in education (1949) from St. Mary's University in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada, and M.A. (1964) and Ph.D. (1961) degrees from the Fordham Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Before assuming his position at Misericordia, Dr. Downey was dean at Mills College of Education in New York City, 1970-72, and vice president at St. Leo College in Florida.

At McKendree, he will work closely with the St. Louis Regional Council on Intercollegiate Cooperation (RCIC), a consortium of eight area institutions, in joint educational projects such as the faculty evaluation and development program.

Four new majors—in religion, management, marketing and the administration of justice—have been added to the curriculum, bringing to 21 the number of degree programs offered at McKendree on an undergraduate basis.

McKendree, a private, four-year liberal arts institution, had a student enrollment of 702 in September 1975 and admissions officials are expecting a total of 745 part- and full-time students this fall.

It is the oldest four-year college in Illinois and the oldest in the nation continuously affiliated with the United Methodist Church.

Ways to avoid mildew

By GENE GARY

Q. Three years ago we bought a new house with aluminum windows. The windows seem to mildew on the inside. I would like to know if there is anything I can do to get to remove the mildew? — A. To remove a mild case of mildew, scrub the surface with a mild cleanser or detergent. Next, rinse with a household bleach to kill surviving spores, then with water. For more severe infestations, use a stiff brush and scrub the metal with a solution of two-thirds cup of household bleach available at most drug stores, one-third cup of detergent, one quart of household bleach and three quarts of warm water. Rinse with plenty of clear water.

The basic reason for the trouble is simply too much moisture inside the house. You should get rid of it one way or another. Use an exhaust fan in one or more areas where the moisture is produced, such as the kitchen or the bathroom, or perhaps the laundry room. Sometimes just opening a window a couple of inches when cooking or directly after a shower will help. Or you can get window ventilators or even the small vents that are sometimes installed in the side of a house.

In short, see that the moist air is permitted to escape. If it has a way to get out, it won't condense on cool surfaces and cause mildew. An alternative is to use a dehumidifier, which will trap the moist air.

Q. We would like to replace vinyl tile in our entry with used blackboard slate. The reverse side of the slate we would like to use as a bulletin board. Will you please tell us if this would be satisfactory if we sealed the finished side with one of the new plastic coatings? — Mary S.

A. The floor could be sealed with a terrazzo-type sealer used on slate and terrazzo. However, I question whether your slate may be heavy enough to stand up under floor traffic. Most blackboard slate with which I am familiar is too thin for this purpose and would not hold up without cracking.

Q. What do you do when your sink trap becomes clogged? Neighboring friends of ours recently encountered this problem and the overflow practically ruined their kitchen floor. — Amy M.

A. First, if you face such a problem, shut off that faucet quick. To unclog a drain, first try the old boiling water method to loosen any grease deposits in the drain. If pouring hot water down the sink doesn't solve the problem, try fishing down the drain with a wire. And don't forget that handy rubber suction cup called the plumber's friend. If you find you must take the drain apart to clean the trap, look for the loosening of the snake-shaped pipe underneath the sink. Be sure to have a receptacle handy to catch the water and debris. And wear rubber gloves.

Q. I am building a log cabin in the mountains. I am told that varmish does not stand up on logs. Do you agree? — A. N.

A. I do not agree that varmish will not stand up. Properly applied in thin coats, varmish is very durable. You can also use a single stain or a refined grade of creosote.

TIRE GUIDE

Tips on choosing tires

By DICK APPLEGATE

A problem many consumers have is trying to distinguish the advantage of one tire over another as well as to understand what the different tire series designations mean.

The Tire Industry Safety Council's booklet, "Consumer Tire Guide," has excellent tips on tire selection, care, safety and mileage.

This booklet discusses the principal tire constructions as follows:

Bias tires—may have two, four or more body plies, made of rayon, nylon, polyester or other material which cross at an angle of approximately 35 degrees with the center line of the tire, giving strength to both sidewall and tread.

Radial tires—have body cords which extend from bead to bead at an angle of about 90 degrees "radial" to the tire circumference center line, plus two or more layers of relatively inextensible belts under the tread. This construction gives greater strength to the tread.

Interchangeability of different types and profiles of tires is not possible due to differences in load ratings, tire dimensions, fender clearances and rim sizes.

As to tire-size designations and their meaning, let's label, for example a 7.75-14 size tire. The first number (7.75) refers to the approximate cross-section width of an inflated tire in inches and the second number (14) is the rim diameter.

Then there are the "78," "70," "60" and "50" series tires which use algebraical area and flexibility to the tread motion during contact with the road, thus improving tread life.

Comment and analysis

Sept. 2, 1976

Massive investigation of a vicious, intolerable crime

The massive nature of the police investigation in progress here since Aug. 28 is entirely justified. The slaying that day or the previous day of a 78-year-old Grand Avenue woman is such a vicious act that it cannot go unsolved or unpunished.

The brutal killing recalls that of an aged Kirkpatrick Homes woman (a case that led to prosecution and conviction) and the savage deaths of an elderly Iowa Street couple (subject of a continuing investigation).

Such tragedies cannot be tolerated. Answers must be found, and increased crime prevention steps must be taken.

Constitutional amendments merit more precise wording

Although many people are disappointed that three proposed Illinois Constitutional amendments will not be on the Nov. 2 ballot, we are inclined to agree with their Illinois Supreme Court's decision Tuesday that their wording was vague.

The issues that attracted a vast number of petition signatures were intended to ban advance pay for legislators, outlaw multiple public jobs for the same individual, and forbid General Assembly votes that might involve a conflict of interest.

The initial proposal inspired a legislative remedy this year. The other two points now must await more precise wording. The conflict prohibition, for example, was so broad that few representatives or senators — becoming a year older, as they do, on each birthday — could have voted on matters affecting senior citizens.

Another negative aspect of the proposed reform of the relatively new (1970) state constitution was that the amendments were so obviously politically contrived.

The petition drive, led by a recent aide of the governor, coincided with the period in which the state's chief executive unsuccessfully sought re-nomination while delivering "give 'em heck" campaign talks denouncing the legislature.

How many Presidents, if you count Landon and Dewey?

Press-Record Washington Bureau — The voters will decide Nov. 2 who will be inaugurated Jan. 20 as president.

But the Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary goes to press Sept. 15 and the managing editor has decided to follow the dictates of the Gallup, Harris and Roper "polling samples" rather than the electorate in his recording of history.

The dictionary will designate James Carter as the "39th President of the United States."

The risk, of course, is his and he concedes that "some people will laugh about it" if Carter should lose in November.

We are distressed, however, at the confusion that might result when some far-in-the-future prober seeks out the reference — along with old copies of the Literary Digest and the Chicago Tribune.

He will find it difficult to reconcile the presidential sequence when he discovers that Alf Landon was the 33rd President and Tom Dewey the 34th.

Urges cooperation to cut crime here

To the Editor:

There have been three murders and several cases of rape in Granite City. I would like to know what is being done about it.

I feel it is getting to the point where it is not safe to walk down the street during the daytime, much less at night.

We need to enforce the law more than in the past. One way to enforce it is to have parents watch their teenagers closer. Another way is to keep the teenagers off the streets at night.

I truly feel that if parents worked with the law authorities, this would be a better place to live. So, let's help them keep crime down.

Our town should be a place that we can be proud of, because we all have to live here. Let's help law enforcement beat crime and keep the peace.

Public funding pushed for congressional races

By BENJAMIN SHORE

WASHINGTON — Common Cause has done a fine service in recent years documenting the sources of special-interest money flowing into presidential and congressional campaigns.

The object of its herculean efforts, which would have been possible without the invention of the computer, has been passage of legislation that would provide public (i.e. taxpayer) funding for these campaigns.

Half a victory has been won with the adoption of public funding for this year's presidential campaigns.

The Senate also approved public funding for congressional campaigns as well, but it died when the House just couldn't face the prospect of challengers standing on equal financial footing.

Common Cause and others who think public funding is a good way to give voters a chance to see and hear all candidates for Congress will resume the legislative battle next year.

The outlook for passage is good, says Fred Wertheimer, director of Common Cause's campaign finance monitoring project. The atmosphere on Capitol Hill these days, he notes, is conducive to changes that will help restore Congress' public image.

But to equate the end of big campaign contributions from special-interest groups (labor, business, professions, etc.), with cleaning up federal politics is to assume that this money is, ipso facto, corrupting.

In a few cases, it is. In others, it is not. In most it looks suspicious but actually is quite clean. Nevertheless, appearances are everything if the problem is image.

Common Cause, relying on its computer to trace the dollars, has been able to show the pattern of skillful contributing.

Certain industries, for example, make sure that their employees' "good government clubs" direct their contributions to the candidates (most of them incumbents) whose positions on legislation affecting those industries warrant their support.

So when members of a certain committee are the recipients of reelection contributions from interests concerned about legislation handled by that committee, the pattern looks suspiciously like something in need of reform.

While the ability (or even the intent) of contributors to "buy" a legislator is questionable, the pattern of special-interest giving reveals another effect that may be more worthy of eradication.

In its just-released report and analysis of contributions in the 1974 congressional races, Common Cause found that special interests gave almost 10 times more money to incumbents than to little bit challengers.

This tends to perpetuate the careers of senators and representatives who, were they not rising in committee seniority with each reelection and thus attracting special-interest support, otherwise might be replaced on election day by more qualified persons.

More than removing the appearance of possible corruption by special-interest money, the greater value of public financing for congressional candidates, therefore, would be in getting good persons to run because they would be able to run on an equal financial base.

Forcing incumbents to campaign on their records of accomplishment and their views on issues instead of hiding behind expensive television advertising and mass mailings that their challengers can't afford would be the quickest and fairest way to build an effective Congress.

With longtime Howlett-Thompson friendship lost through Nov. 2?

By KEN WATSON

SPRINGFIELD — Politics is in many ways a world of itself and sometimes produces fascinating relationships. This was never more so in Illinois than in the array of personalities linked one way or another in the Kerney story.

Looking back, the death of former Gov. Otto Kerney came in a setting of circumstances that fitted into the intriguing pattern of that long and tragic drama.

Kerney's death shocked the people of his state, many of whom were hoping he would be granted a presidential pardon before he died.

It came as a man who once defeated in a hard-fought political campaign, U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy, was working hard to persuade President Ford to grant Kerney a pardon.

There are some good reasons for encouraging better relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China. But some must be found to preserve Taiwan's security and the U.S.-Taiwan trading and investment relationship.

There are no valid reasons that come to mind immediately for supporting the idea of unifying the Korean peninsula on Communist terms. Peking, of course, supports North Korea because of the similarity of their nations' political systems.

In a speech Aug. 15 marking Korea's liberation day, President Park called for renewed negotiations between South and North Korea on the territorial division of the country.

The last time such an initiative came from Seoul, Pyongyang agreed but eventually backed out of the talks when South Korea refused to legitimize a Communist party in the south.

This has led many to believe that the demarcation line in ideologies had just as well be as a nation for the Panmunjom truce line. Perhaps an East-West Germany model would be the best bet for North-South Korea in the short term.

North Korea is rapidly becoming an international joke as a nation for its handling of its external economic and financial affairs. Pyongyang has presented itself for membership at the conference of non-aligned nations at Colombo, Sri Lanka. That is about as prestigious as the Soviet Union applying for membership in the Organization of American States.

North Korea needs an attainment of the North-South problem — on its terms — and needs it quickly. The more time that passes, the more is Pyongyang's inefficiency exposed.

Communists may argue that their approach has prospered where the previous mixture of capitalism and exploitation failed in China.

That in Korea the comparison from a similar power base is all too obviously tipped in the other direction. It is vividly seen that the North is faltering. The South's performance — despite some drawbacks — is attributed by some to harsh rule — has drawn out of the Korean people a more creative and spirited developmental effort.

China could demonstrate some international affairs leadership by supporting the status quo in Korea for the time being.

The chance that Peking will budge on this is very remote. In fact, a lot of Washington experts believe that China's proximity to the Chinese mainland means that Peking will be at least as strong as it is not — on the question of Korea — as the settlement of the Taiwan issue.

publican Thompson and Democrat Howlett is an interesting story in itself. Last summer, when Howlett was not generally regarded as a factor in the 1976 governor's race, he was quietly touting the abilities of Thompson as a potential candidate for statewide office.

"This is someone you should get to know; he has a lot of potential."

The personal Howlett-Thompson relationship apparently continues despite the fact they have been trading some occasional barbs in the fall campaign.

As the nominee for governor of a major state Thompson's private life as well as his background, including the prosecution of Kerney and the friendship with Howlett, take on a new dimension.

Howlett already has found that running for governor is much different than running for auditor or secretary of state.

He has been on friendly terms with politicians and public figures of both parties over the years. Yet there is something unique in that he has been on such close terms with both Kerney and Thompson, two men who became adversaries through an unpredictable series of events.

Kerney had spoken bitterly of Thompson, contending that his prosecution stemmed from politics. In contrast, Kerney praised Thompson's friend, Howlett.

Not long before he died Kerney told Howlett "that you have the one thing that the majority of the people in our business seem to lack — compassion."

In the closing weeks of his life Kerney formed a close friendship with Percy, with whom he traded political blows in the 1968 governor campaign. Percy kept in close contact with the Kerney family during Kerney's final hospital stay as well as working diligently in the pardon effort.

Kerney, his son, Tony, and daughter, Helena, are known to have been deeply touched by the compassion shown by Percy toward the former governor.

The Kerney story has had many chapters, and there probably will be several posthumous ones as well.

Thompson has answered charges that his prosecution of Kerney was motivated by politics by pointing out that Kerney was convicted by a jury and that the conviction has been upheld by a Court of Appeals.

South outperforming Reds' North Korea

By EDWARD NEILAN

It is extremely unfashionable to write anything complimentary about South Korea these days.

Critics gain headlines and notoriety by zeroing in on the human rights issue as if that were the overriding fact of Korea's national life.

Editorials in influential American newspapers have focused on the war-torn of the administration of President Park Chung Hee without acknowledging the tremendous progress the country has made under some very difficult circumstances.

At the very least, more perspective is needed in what the American public is given to read about the Korean situation.

Instead of always throwing rocks, it would be worthwhile for commentators to examine seriously the very complex geopolitical scenario of the Korean peninsula.

Full appreciation of that situation aids in understanding why there must be no relaxation in a security sense.

Both North and South Korea, Japan, China, Soviet Union and the United States have definite interests in how the Korean peninsula is to be unified, if unification is indeed possible in the foreseeable future.

The fall of South Vietnam was a bitter pill for South Korea to swallow. The Seoul government had sided with the U.S. effort there. The increased talk of a Washington treaty with Taiwan in favor of diplomatic relations with Peking makes even less sense to South Koreans than it does to many Americans.

There are some good reasons for encouraging better relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China. But some must be found to preserve Taiwan's security and the U.S.-Taiwan trading and investment relationship.

Daley at convention—hard work, charm

By L. S. CLEMENS

This writer is not about to join that Chicago alderman who fills in moments of silence during city council meetings in the Windy City with the exclamation, "God bless Mayor Daley."

But there are some things about this man to be admired, chief of which is that he works at his job.

He is, for instance, chairman of the Illinois delegation at the Democratic National Convention in New York, and I would venture a bet that he was the only man holding that position to be in his seat every minute the convention was in session at Madison Square Garden.

Of course, his time was occupied a little bit more interestingly than any of the others including senators, governors and owners of other famous faces.

He had even fewer moments to himself than they did. Occupying an aisle seat, he greeted a continuing parade of well-wishers who dropped by to shake his hand.

Included among these callers were a great number of young reporters whose memories of the 1968 convention in Chicago would have to be second hand.

Many of these represented specialized publications and the student press, where advocacy journalism has not yet run its course.

So I was curious about what they were asking, and I dropped by to find out. The mayor was entirely accessible, and was courteous enough to show a little extra interest when I identified myself as representing an Illinois newspaper.

There has been no belligerence," he said about his youthful questioners. "I have no complaints at all. In fact, I've been getting a good press all around."

He did get a "good press" as far as New York newspapers were concerned, although that fact was probably more by default than plan.

All of the TV networks interviewed him. So did most of the nation's more famous byliners on the chance that he might have a story of significance.

He didn't, but because he combined affability with availability, he succeeded in disarming would-be critics.

He did capture the top headline in one journal, the "Children's Express," put together by reporters under 12 years of age.

He told an interviewer the 1968 convention "never happened" as reported in newspapers, which seemed to puzzle the young writer. (An observer said the mayor appeared to be startled by the question.)

Yet I suspect that if the mayor was put on a detector, the needle wouldn't quiver one bit.

The evidence is that Chicago's "boss" is somewhat polyanthous; that he is incapable of seeing, hearing or acknowledging anything wrong about Chicago, the Democrats, or any of the other standard virtues.

Given a chance, he might run the Chicago convention differently — but he will never admit to himself or anyone else that what happened in 1968 was anything other than bad news reporting.

River Fest tentmaster has realized many childhood dreams of adventure

By Cindy Kyle

Skip Manley, tent manager for the Mississippi River Festival (MRF), has realized every child's dream of adventure—he has not only bummed around the country in railroad cars, but he also joined the circus.

After finishing school in the early 1920's, Manley took off to find his fame as a cartoonist in the West. Transportation was provided by empty railroad cars until he was sidetracked in Wyoming by a job with the circus.

"I was riding along on the Union Pacific in a coal car with several other fellows when one bum said that he knew we would all have jobs by the morning," Manley tells of his experience with fate. "It seems he had noticed posters advertising a circus playing in the town where the train would stop the next morning, and sure enough we all had jobs by the circus the next day."

From then on when Manley needed a job, he worked for the circus. "The thing to do in those days if you needed money was to look in 'Billboard' magazine for the circuses/route," he said.

"Many people believe that working in a circus is glamorous, but it is hard work all the time," says Manley, explaining that the workers would do a little bit of everything to keep the circus on the move, from helping rig an act to marching in the parades.

"The parades were the main way of attracting attention to the show, and the town merchants loved them. We would arrive in a town at noon, and everyone would dress up and take their positions in the parade riding some kind of animal or a float," he said. "The worst thing I ever had to ride was a camel, and I wouldn't do it again if I had to; every part of your body moves and hurts."

Being a cartoonist was forgotten as Manley worked at most of the big circus shows, including Ringling Brothers and Cole Brothers.

"At Ringling Brothers there was a tent master by the name of Capt. John Curtis who at that time was the epitome of the profession; he knew everything there was to know about tents," said Manley. "He took a liking to me and would teach me what he knew about tents whenever I joined up with the circus. It turned out to be the luckiest thing that could happen to me."

Since that time, Manley has worked with a countless number of shows as the tent master, from his circus days to summer stock groups, musicals and opening the Stratford Shakespearean Show in Canada in 1963. He earned a solid reputation for his skill with tents and his knack for solving problems in the construction of tents.

Manley says the MRF tent was somewhat of a problem.

"In 1968 the U.S. Tent Company in Florida contacted me about the MRF tent because they had refused to build the tent according to the architect's plans," Manley said. "They sent me the plans, and I could see there was no way the tent was going to work with the original plans. I told them to tell me what they wanted to put in it, and I would design one to my specifications. And so Manley has been overseeing the tent at MRF since the festival opened in 1969.

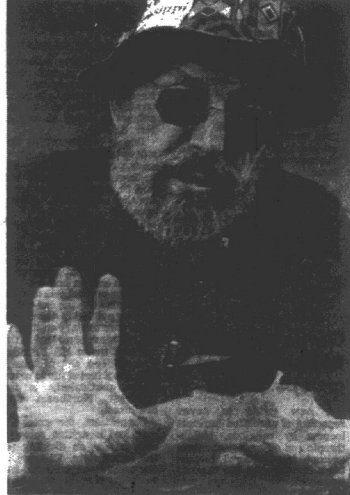

Manley is now one of MRF's biggest supporters. "I was in this state (Peoria), and I felt that this was my chance to do something for Illinois," he said. "I could see big possibilities for MRF as a good event for this area, and by God it is."

The tent master's job does not end when the tent is raised. "I have to be in full control of the tent 24 hours a day," Manley said. "The weather does not punch a time clock and when the weather gets bad, the tent has to be prepared to stand up to it."

"During the first season we were right on the edge of a tornado, during a symphony performance, and about a dozen side poles were about to give way," he recalled. "I hollered at the people to clear the tent, but they just wouldn't move until I jumped down into the audience and started yelling. We were lucky that no one was hurt."

Today, Manley is one of about a half-dozen experienced tent masters, learned in the old tradition of the circus, left in the world. He claims to have seen everything that could happen in a tent from weddings and church services to the death of a circus clown and his funeral the next morning, and almost, but not quite, a birth.

"I saw this lady who was pregnant come into the tent

"I'VE BEEN THERE. Just name it, I've been there," says Skip Manley, tentmaster for the Mississippi River Festival at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and a veteran of many years with major circuses in the United States.

Governor may be eyeing a comeback

By AL MANNING

SPRINGFIELD — Several of the strong supporters of Michael Howlett for governor think Gov. Dan Walker is placing loyal employees in key jobs to help him make a political comeback in 1978.

One of the supporters, William Hardy, executive director of the Illinois State Employees Association, calls these employees Walker's "underground army."

"Walker is placing these people in sensitive jobs where they have full access to critical information in accounting, cy, vouching, property control, communications and other important functions," Hardy said.

"They will be able to secretly funnel information on the next administration to Walker."

Hardy is not talking about the cabinet directors and other employees on the governor's executive payroll. Few, if any, of them would be retained, regardless of whether Howlett or James Thompson is elected.

Instead, Hardy is concerned with the middle-management types who are not visible in the political line of fire.

These people were brought to state government by Walker—some from out of state—and they have switched agencies since Walker's defeat in the primary.

There are even attempts to place some of these employees in positions protected by the civil service code.

The most blatant example of a politico seeking civil service status is Jim Dunn, supervisor of the Illinois Information Service. Walker is not the first governor to manipulate the IIS for his own political benefit, of course, but Dunn was no different than his successor in using the agency for public relations purposes.

We detailed previously how the Civil Service Commission had not approved of Dunn's request. But there were other requests held up that day as well.

Harold "Jim" Murphy, director of the state motor pool, and James Witt, director of telecommunications, were neither approved. And another position in General Services, an executive spot for real estate management, which is vacant, was not approved for coding.

Hardy thinks there are quite a number of vacancies which Walker plans to move key people into before he leaves office.

For example, in the Department of Public Health, a new unit was created by Paul Wueller, chief of the Management Improvement Unit. He transferred from the Bureau of the Budget to Public Health after the primary election. According to his organizational chart, the three top positions under him are vacant. Presumably, those could be filled by Walker loyalists who want to stay on during the next administration.

Taken individually, of course, there is nothing wrong with such transfers. It's normal procedure in state government.

But Hardy and others think there is a pattern to all the shifts, and the purpose is to further Walker politically. There is certainly nothing new in attempting to place patronage employees under civil service at the end of an administration.

In this case, however, there are two major differences. Walker is the first governor since 1878 to be defeated in a primary. Thus, he has six extra months to move his employees under the code.

Also, the next governor is in the unique position of serving a two-year term. The shorter term means the next governor will have to compile a record to run on in approximately one year, rather than the customary three years.

Take child's criticisms gracefully

By DR. WILLIAM ABRAHAM

Q. I always seem to be critical of my daughter (she's 12 years old) because of her dirty nails, hands or face. But now she has turned the tables on me.

A few days ago I was working in the yard and absentmindedly went from there to the dinner table without washing my hands. That factor didn't get past her, not one bit.

Her criticism resulted in some action on my part. I won't tell you what I did to her because I really want to know what you would have done.

A. I'd have thanked her for reminding me, washed my hands and had dinner—which, I imagine, is not what you did.

There is a hint in your comment about what you did "to her" that indicates you didn't accept her criticism gracefully.

How can our children respect us when there's a double standard? If hands are dirty, they are dirty for both parents and children, and a reminder from either side should be welcomed.

Q. Our first grader seems to be getting off to a slow start in reading.

His teacher feels that some practice walking on a "balance beam" will help him. Do you?

A. Ask the teacher what research supports her point of view. Until she comes up with something that satisfies you, keep on being skeptical. It will probably be long after he is out of first grade before she does, if ever.

Q. Do you think it's possible to have a mentally retarded son and want him to be a doctor? I do, because that is exactly what is happening.

I am a physician and my father was. My wife's brother and father too. So you can see how eager we were to have a son to carry on the family tradition.

How can he with an IQ of about 60? He's only 4 years old, but it's all pretty hopeless as far as we're concerned.

Can you provide any consolation for us?

A. Years ago there was a period when people were in various stages of parenthood related to handicapped children. Shock and "why me?" constitutes stage one. Then comes the search to find a correction or cure for the deficiency. Third, a period of adjustment and acceptance evolves.

You may be up to stage three, with a need to accept the fact of his retardation and to help him (and you) adjust to his limitations.

No, he can't be a physician on the basis of our present knowledge. But he can work, produce, earn — and be happy.

You'll have to aim toward pulling together the three A's of his achievement and ability and your aspirations for him which have to be brought into line with his capabilities.

A wise educator once offered the advice to put "accent on assets," a statement which might currently be a guide for you.

Perhaps the local chapter of NARC (National Association for Retarded Citizens) can be helpful to you through their personnel or publications.

Whitsell leaves superintendent job at Miller's

Louis Whitsell, supervisor of Nameoki Township, announced this week that he has resigned from his position as a superintendent for Miller Excavating Co., Route 162 and Mockingbird Lane.

Whitsell said he heard that a rumor was being spread that he might use his influence as a member of Madison County Board and the county's special sewer committee to aid the Miller firm in winning a contract to install proposed sanitary sewers in Nameoki and Chouteau Township.

Whitsell said there is no truth to the rumor. The Miller firm does not have the large equipment necessary for such an extensive sewer job.

Also, all work is to be allocated on the basis of competitive bidding.

Whitsell said he chose to resign from the Miller firm rather than allowing the rumor to possibly undermine the future of the sewers.

Check for spinal curvature

By WILLIAM J. GOLDWAG, M.D.

Q. My 13-year-old daughter is concerned because her breast is higher than the other. Will she outgrow this? Is it common and does anything have to be done about it? She seems to be normal in every other way.

A. A common cause for this appearance is a curvature or scoliosis of the spine. The curvature turns the entire chest cavity slightly causing one breast to appear higher than the other. These curvatures develop slowly and as they progress, the skeleton and organs compensate for the twist, so that with clothes on, you might even not notice anything abnormal.

The child should be examined from behind standing straight on both feet. Sometimes the shoulders or shoulder blades will appear at different heights or uneven which gives evidence of spinal curve. Running your finger down the center of the spine will show up slight degrees of curve that you can't always see especially if the child is slightly heavy. Finally, having the child bend forward at the waist till the back is horizontal, with the arms hanging down and hands touching will show up any asymmetry resulting from the scoliosis.

Several conditions can cause scoliosis, but the majority aren't apparent. Foot deformities or unequal leg length can cause it, and any illness resulting in muscular weakness such as polio or muscular dystrophy may allow a curvature to develop. A certain number can be hereditary so that children of parents having scoliosis should be examined carefully especially between the ages of 10 and 14 when curvatures most often appear.

Since the degree of curvature may be mild when first discovered, regular exams are necessary to see if it is getting worse and an examination won't give this information. Your doctor has to measure the changes over short periods of time. Mild curves require no treatment, but severe degrees or rapid progression may need treatment.

Q. I go on diets all the time but I can't stay on them for long. One thing I always notice is that on men as I start dieting and begin to eat normally, I hardly urinate at all and I begin to retain water and get swelling of my feet. Then I have to start taking a diuretic to keep from getting all bloated. Is this normal or am I some kind of freak?

A. Most reducing diets have less carbohydrates than the average American diet and going on such a diet causes a loss of salt (sodium) from the body. This takes water with it and much of the weight loss on these diets is due to increased water excretion. The opposite occurs when you start eating carbohydrates again. Salt and water are retained, urine volume goes down and you feel swollen and may even notice edema fluid in the ankles.

You don't necessarily need diuretics since the water retention is only temporary and will correct itself when your diet stabilizes. Using diuretics will help deplete your body of needed minerals and severe degrees or rapid progression may need treatment.

The first two changes resulted after Turnhouse allegedly broke her glass, jumped over the bar and began choking Richard Rose operator of Rock's Pub.

Rose said he managed to break away from Turnhouse allegedly grabbed a table and struck Rose with it.
